LOCAL ITEMS OF INTEREST

—Many farmers are receiving poor prices for their wheat.

—The Paca will case will come up for trial in Elkton in September.

—Kent canneries are now running in full blast, with a good crop in view.

—Corn is rippening fast in Kent and farmers will soon begin cutting the same.

—The farmers picnic at Washington College will be held next Wednesday, Aug. 23.

—Mr. Thomas Hill, of Rock Hall, had a hand mangled by a threshing machine recently.

—Messrs. James G. Beck and Walter T. Bramble attended the horse races in Philadelphia this week.

—The display of dahlias and other late summer and fall flowers in Chestertown is splendid.

—John G. Wooley, former Prohibition candidate for president, died Sunday in Spain.

—Mr. Sudler Loller, a young farmer residing near Fairlee, has filed a petition in bankruptcy.

—By adv. in this issue, a meeting of the local fire company is called for next Monday evening.

—Foxes have been destroying turkeys and chickens on the farm of Mr. Edward Wilkins near town.

—"Clean-up" week began here Monday, and property owners are giving their premises a thorough overhauling.

—Miss Helen Rasin, a graduate of Washington College, has been appointed teacher in a school at Hyattsville.

—George Harrison, of Crumpton, has sold the Shawn farm, near Queenstown, to Alfred W. Thompson for $6500.

Autos belonging to J. B. Hossinger and C. J. Ryan collided on the state road recently, Mr. Ryan being cut about the face.

—Mr. Charles J. Reiche has contracted with a Baltimore packing house to purchase tomatoes from Kent county growers.

—A recent examination of the oyster bars shows that the oysters are in good condition and far more abundant than last season.
