WASHINGTON COLLEGE RIDES ROUGHSHOD OVER GALLAUDET—COLLEGIANS READY FOR UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE TODAY —OTHER NOTES

The Washington College football machine, rejuvenated and repaired, trained and coached in all the tricks of sport's most deceptive and most sanguinary game, with all parts well oiled and with all cylinders working in unison and giving to a perfect whole all the force that each was capable of, rode majestically and triumphantly over the eleven representing Gallaudet College Saturday, the score being 19 to 7. Gallaudet scored its single touchdown through the courtesy of a Washington man's fumble.

The green-jersied Gallaudets and the maroon-sweatered Washingtons made a most striking appearance as they lined up against each other on the green sward, under a cloudless sky, before a crowd who awaited eagerly the shrill note of the referee's whistle, knowing that a good game was in the offing. Few of this big crowd, however, realized in advance the extent of Washington's superiority over the visitors.

While the day was almost utterly void of clouds, a "storm" developed early in the first quarter of the contest that threatened to break out in all its fury at any moment and rend the gridiron fore and aft with fury. However, during this part of the day the "storm" abated. But in the second quarter, in spite of the fact that the cloudless silence of brown November pervaded the woodlands and overhead the sun wheeled toward the horizon through cloudless seas of deep ozone, the "storm" again gathered upon the green sward. Crowe, Cavanaugh and Bankard began to tear the Gallaudet line to shreds, while Dumschot, who replaced Laurens, tore off yard after yard as the quarter progressed. In a short time the "storm" had developed into almost a "hurricane", and before the quarter was over, the "maroon tornado" was roaring its mightest and threatening at any time to break the bounds of ordinary reason and seek new channels of football history.

During the St. John's contest, early in the season, Washington had made a valiant and almost successful effort to wrest the crown from their ancient rivals, and in so doing many of their best and most dependable men were painfully injured and kept out of the game since, or else took part in the contests in a somewhat incapacitated condition. Catholic University faced a weakened but determined aggregation; P. M. C. faced a team with many second-string men in the line-up; Mt. St. Mary's was up against the easiest proposition of the three aforementioned. But in the game last Saturday Gallaudet faced Washington College football in its full strength, but somewhat out of condition, due to the many injuries of the past. Had Washington faced Catholic University, P. M. C. or Mt. St. Mary's last Saturday, they would probably have received the verdict in each case.

Washington received the ball in the outset of the game and made steady progress toward Gallaudet's goal in two plunges, but a penalty and a forward pass which failed to be completed necessitated them punting the ball. Gallaudet was held for downs and then with the powerful Crowe, the elusive Cavanaugh, the fleet-footed Bankard and the swift and aggressive Flowers hitting the line like battering rams, a touchdown was soon scored. This feat was soon duplicated, Gallaudet's line threatening to collapse before the onslaughts of Washington's backs. In spite of several bad fumbles, Washington again set sail for Gallaudet's line, and would likely have scored again had not a forward pass went into the hands of a Gallaudet man, who carried it well back toward the center of the field before he was downed. Washington was then compelled to kick.

In the second half, with the game well in hand, Washington received the ball and Gallaudet held them well down toward their own goal line. Cavanaugh punted, but the ball went out of bounds and was in Gallaudet's possession on Washington's 40-yard line. W .C. shortly lined up to advance the ball, but a fumble gave the ball to one of Gallaudet's alert backs, who crossed Washington's line for their first score. Soon after this Washington's battering ram, with Crowe, Cavanaugh and Dumschot leading, tore Gallaudet to pieces from end to end and showed the most consistent attack of the whole game, advancing the ball gradually and carrying it across for the third touchdown. Gallaudet tried in vain to penetrate Washington's line and exhausted themselves in vain efforts to advance the ball.

In the second quarter of the game Cavanaugh broke through the Gallaudet team from his own 30-yard line and eluding player after player, tore off 25 yards before he was tackled. From this position Crowe was given the ball, and after breaking through the line, hurdled three other players in his race for a touchdown, finally completing a 55-yard run for a score in what was perhaps the most sensational and effective piece of football work shown here since Floyd Brown made his memorable run for a touchdown against St. John's from behind his own goal line.

Cavanaugh handled the team in a most capable manner and the whole eleven showed marked improvement, developing an interference which made it most difficult for the visitors to stop Washington's backs when they got started.

The victory was well-earned and well-deserved and on Saturday evening the boys who were lost developing into cave-men, because of their determination not to shave until a victory had been won, went about town like debonairs in quest of pleasure.

It has been a cause of comment that Washington lost many opportunities Saturday against Gallaudet because of fumbles and that had they done otherwise, they would likely have scored five touchdowns. Be that as it may, we want to point out here that Harvard would have won from Princeton, probably, had it not been for fumbles, and, perhaps, for the same reason, Camchata University lost to Timbuctoo.

The Rock Hall and Chestertown High School Soccer teams met Tuesday on the Rock Hall athletic field. The game was a spirited one and was hard fought by both sides. At the end of fifty minutes the score stood nothing to nothing.

The Chestertown High School went to Baltimore Friday and lost to McDonough School by the score of 45 to 0. During the game John Jones, son of Rev. and Mrs. O. E. Jones, had the misfortune to have his arm broken. Young Jones is quarterback for the team and a game, heady, aggressive player.

Washington College will line up against the University of Delaware today, Saturday, at Newark. A big following of W. C. enthusiasts will see the game. Delaware has a strong team for a college of this size, but Washington College will go into the contest with a will to win and a spirit to overcome the handicaps that stand between the two teams. Last year Delaware almost routed the Washington College eleven. This year, however, Washington College boys expect to make a far different showing, and we, too, believe they will. Delaware's team is not quite as good as it was last year. Washington's aggregation is far stronger. This being a fact, only a couple of touchdowns one way or the other should separate the two teams at the end of the fourth quarter.

The Chestertown bowling team defeated Rock Hall in the deciding game recently.

As has been forecasted in this column, rabbits have proved exceptionally scarce this year. Hunters, far and wide, report them few and far between.

St. Joseph's College and Washington College will play on Washington Field Saturday, Nov. 25. This will likely result in another victory for Washington College.

Princeton won from Harvard last Saturday, 10-3, showing they will have to be contended with when the dopsters figure out the champion for 1922.

Hopkins and Maryland State will fight it out at Homewood today. Especial interest is attached to this game this year since it marks resumption of athletic relations between the schools after a lapse of some time.

American football proved its superiority over Canadian rugby at Syracuse Saturday when Syracuse University defeated McGill 32 to 0.

When the Bulldog meets the Princeton Tiger today at Princeton it will be a furious attempt to even up the post-war record of football games between Yale and Princeton. Except for possibly Harvard-Yale games, the length of the traditional and historical Yale-Princeton gridiron clashes is unequaled by any other rivals in the history of the game. Princeton has come out on the short end of the number of victories since the beginning of the annual tussle with Yale in 1873. The count is 24 victories for Yale and 12 for Princeton. Only four years during the entire 49 of competition with each other have not seen a football contest between the rival institutions of learning. For two years after the first game, 1874 and 1875, there was no game, and in the two years, 1917 and 1918, Princeton and Yale did not meet on the gridiron. Palmer Stadium today will be the scene of the forty-sixth battle between the rivals. Since the war Princeton took a savage start at Yale and won the first two games in 1919 and 1920 by the scores of 13 to 0 and 20 to 0, but Yale came back next year and won 13 to 7. We predict the score today to be: Princeton 7, Yale 0.

—As a protection against burglary or theft, an alarm signal, described in the Popular Mechanics Magazine, has been devised which is adaptable to many uses. In size, it is only a little larger than a big watch, which it resembles. It is loaded with ten blank cartridges, which are fired by a fuse on the inside of the device. In case of danger it is only necessary to release a safety catch on the face of the device and drop or throw the signal, keeping hold of the finger ring, from which the alarm is released when rung.

Farmers, List Your Repair Needs

It would be hard to find a farmer who at some time or another had not lost valuable time waiting for necessary repair parts. Take this territory and total up the time lost in this way and it will astonish you. And all because repairs are not odered as early as they should be.

There is no better time than right now—just before the busiest season on the farm—to go over your machines carefully, make a list of repairs you are likely to need and send it to us. With this list in our hands, we can order our stock so as to be prepared to meet every call promptly.

Repair part service is a necessary part of our business. We realize what it means to you in time and money to get what you need at once. Help us to help you by making up your list now and sending it in to us.
