PART OF YOUTH'S EDUCATION

University Authority Says Some Sort of Athletics Should be Indulged in by Collegians.

The chancellor of an eastern university advises all students to take part in some form of college sport. His reason is that the training and discipline gained from participation in organized sport of any sort will be of service in the major effort of acquiring knowledge in the class or lecture room. Discipline and training team work and the submerging of the individual for the good of the whole are lessons that each student needs to learn.

A broadening of vision, a clearer outlook, a greater faculty for seeing the other fellow's side, with the consequent breaking down of the walls of selfishness that shut off the true picture of life must come from the active practice of any of the games now prevalent at the big schools, observes the Omaha Bee. It is not essential that one make the team or become adept in the pursuits of a particular sport, but it is required that the matter be pursued sufficiently to develop the spirit of true sportsmanship, for that is opposed to the self-centered attitude sought to be overcome. When this is done, the student will take up his scholastic work with better zest, and, by reason of his communication with other students on campus or field, or in the gymnasium, he will get more out of his college life than if he remains a recluse and a grind.

HARD TO TRACE BEGINNING

Custom of Applying Christian and Surname to Individuals Has Been Long Used.

The principal sources from which surnames are derived are personal characteristics, rank or profession, localities, animals or natural objects, or patronymics. Surnames in many languages are derived from the same sources. Thus, Black, White, Brown are with the Germans Schwartz, Weiss, Braugh; with the French, Lenoir, Leblanc, Lebrun. The Gaellic prefix Mac, the Irish O', the Norman-French Fitch, the German affix -shon or -son, the Scandinavian -sen, the Russian -vitch, are all equivalents of the English affix —son.

It is impossible to ascertain with any degree of certainty when the system of having one name for the individual (Christian or baptismal name) joined to a second name which is common to the family to which he belongs (surname) was adopted.

Compounds in names were often the result of applying a sobriquet to a Christian name—for instance, Littlejohn or Micklejohn.

In most nations the wife changes her surname on marriage to that of her husband. In Spain, however, she retains it, while the son may adopt either the maternal or paternal name.

Second Thoughts.

In a certain island section of Florida a good many rough characters live, who are idle, quarrelsome, shift about a good deal and are hard to keep track of. One of them, named Tomlinson, was accused of robbery, and the sheriff went to arrest him. But Tomlinson "got the drop" on the officer, disarmed him and kept him two days. Finally Tomlinson released the sheriff and gave him back his pistol, first throwing the cartridges out.

Then the sheriff returned home, Tomlinson landing him on the mainland.

"Well," the deputy asked his chief, "did you get your man?"

"No," the sheriff replied, "he's about the only man over there who does anything, and I thought I would let him alone."—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Cats Carry Diphtheria.

A curious case is cited by Simmons. An elderly lady developed a fatal diphtheriatic pharyngitis after close contact with a cat (A) which had been sick one week. A second cat (B) which had been in contact with the first cat (A) became sick and died ten days later. The patient had grayish-brown pseudomembrane covering her uvula, tonsils and posterior pharynx. Cat A had a small yellowish-gray pseudomembranous ulceration in the left nasal passage and cat B showed ulcerations of both vocal cords, covered with a grayish-white false membrane. Diphtheria bacilli of intermediate virulence for guinea pigs were isolated from all three lesions.—Journal of the American Medical Association.

Why Called Achilles' Tendon.

The Achilles' tendon is a strong sinew running along the heel to the calf of the leg.

A post-Homeric story is that Thetis took her son Achilles by one of his heels, and dipped him in the River Styx to make him invulnerable. The water washed every part of his body, except the heel covered by his mother's hand. It was on this vulnerable point that the hero was slain in battle. And the sinew of the heel is called, in consequence, tendo Achillis.

The vulnerable or weak point in a person's or a nation's character also is often referred to as the heel of Achilles.

Sorry She Asked.

He—Before I married you I never thought of saving.

She—And now?

He—Now I am always thinking what a lot I could have saved if I hadn't married you.

Farmers, List Your Repair Needs

It would be hard to find a farmer who at some time or another had not lost valuable time waiting for necessary repair parts. Take this territory and total up the time lost in this way and it will astonish you. And all because repairs are not odered as early as they should be.

There is no better time than right now—just before the busiest season on the farm—to go over your machines carefully, make a list of repairs you are likely to need and send it to us. With this list in our hands, we can order our stock so as to be prepared to meet every call promptly.

Repair part service is a necessary part of our business. We realize what it means to you in time and money to get what you need at once. Help us to help you by making up your list now and sending it in to us.
