ASHAMED OF BEING WHITE

Woman Captured By Indians In Childhood Is Wife Of Chief

Mrs. Broken Horn, an aged white woman, who has been a captive of Indians more than half a century, is the most interesting woman I have ever met.

I shall never forget the sensation, something like a shock, which I felt when Maj. T. J. McCoy introduced me to Mrs. Broken Horn.

In Utah there is a large settlement of Indians, including Arapahoes, Navajos, Bannocks and others. It was in the Arapahoe camp that I met this queer woman.

"This is Mrs. Broken Horn," said the major, who had charge of Indian affairs.

"She is a white woman," he added.

"White " I echoed his word with astonishment, for she certainly looked like an Indian—until I looked closer. Then I traced the difference in her features, her hair and so on.

I talked to her through the major, who acted as interpreter.

"I am not able," she explained, "to stand as much as the other women, but I am perfectly happy. But I do get tired easily."

She speaks no word of English, does not like to be reminded of the fact that she is really white, and stains her face red every morning and combs her hair like an Indian's to make sure that no one will remark the difference. She appears to be at least 70 years old and the lines that seam her face indicate the truth of her statement, that she is scarcely able to compete physically with the real Indian women. This perhaps makes her seem older than she is. She is the wife of Chief Broken Horn—a council chief of the tribe.

The story about her is that some 60 or more years ago she and her sister were captured by Arapahoes from a wagon train and brought up by the tribe. Her sister also married, but died a few years ago.

The thing seemed like a piece of imaginative fiction, but there was the evidence before my eyes. She was unidenably a white woman.

Yet, somehow, I could not find it in my heart to feel especially sorry, because to all appearances she was content. After all, from childhood, she had been with the red men. She knew nothing else, and not having any very potent recollections, apparently, of her former life and people, could hardly be expected to long for it or them.

INSURANCE RECORDS BROKEN

The Year 1922 Showed Increasing Prosperity and Improving Business Conditions

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company broke all records in amount of business done in the year of 1922, according to a report published to-day. The amount of new business placed on the books exceeded the phenomenal year of 1920 and was far in excess of what had been done in 1921. The Officers of the Company believe that this certainly reflects improved business conditions.

Particularly significant is the fact that Industrial Insurance, which is taken largely by wage earners and their familfes, had such a great volume. The total amount of Industrial Insurance placed during the year was over $775,000,000. The investment situation is also good. The income of the company increased by over thirty-eight and a half million dollars that of 1921, reaching the total of $340,6868, 301. The assets of the Company increased $144,,267,300 and at the end of the year stood at $1,259,850,325. The mortality increased somewhat as compared with the previous year, and the total number of claims paid was $365,276. This was an average of one claim paid every 24 seconds of each business day of eight hours, or just about 1,000 a day during the year, including Sundays and holidays. The amount paid to policyholders averaged $803.81 a minute of each business day.

Along with this great increase of the business side, the welfare work done by the Company, in behalf of the health of its Industrial policyholders, kept pace. Metropolitan nurses made more than two million free visits to sick Industrial policyholders, bringing the total number made since this service was inaugurated to over sixteen million. The Company has distributed altogether two hundred and seventy-two million booklets and pamphlets giving hints on hygiene and prevention of disease and this, in cooperation with the general activities which are widening each year on the part of all official and semi-official health organizations, has resulted in extending the life expectancy among Industrial policyholders by eight and one-half years since 1911.

Indications Are That Yield Will Total 300,000 Barrels, Says Agricultural Economics Bureau

Up until February 3 there had been shipped of tMhaeadnylrlutheduoetet shipped of the Maryland 1922 apple crop 656 carloads, or, on a basis of 170 to the car, 111,570 barrels.

The shipping season ends April 30, and the figures justify the statement that the commercial crop amount to 300,000 barrels, or about 1,770 cars. These figures are given by John S. Dennee, agricultral statistician, Bureau of Agricultural Economics. In 1921 the commercial crop of apples was 92 carloads. In the big year of 1,920, 1,639 carloads were harvested.

Early in the spring of 1922 the cry went from one end of the state to the other that the crop was ruined by a five-day frost in May. The estimate of the growers was a 25 per cent. crop. It turned out to be nearer a 100 per cent. yield. The money value of the 1922 crop is $1,620,000.

Four hundred and ninety-five thousand barrels of peaches were grown and the net return on the crop of 83 per cent. quality was $842,000. In 1921 the harvest amounted to 59,000 bushels.

A CHESTEHTOWN INTERVIEW

Mrs. Parrott Tells Her Experience.

The following brief account of an interview with a Chestertown woman many years ago, and its sequel will be read with keen interest by every citizen:

Mrs. Jas. P. Parrott, 200 S. Front St., gave the following statement August 17, 1916: "I had been troubled off and on with kidney disorder and backache. My kidneys were irregular in action and caused annoyance. I had spells of dizziness and saw black spots before my eyes. I was tired and miserable most of the time. I began to use Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave me relief."

On January 26, 1921, Mrs. Parrott said: "Doan's Kidney Pills practically cured me of kidney complaint, as it is seldom I have the least trouble now. I resort to Doan's at the first sign of my kidneys being out of order and they give me prompt relief."

"Feeling Fine!"

"I was pale and thin, hardly able to go," says Mrs. Bessie Bearden, of Central, S. C. "I would suffer, when I stood on my feet, with bearing-down pains in my sides and the lower part of my body. I did not rest well and didn't want anything to eat. My color was bad and I felt miserable. A friend of mine told me of

CARDUI

and I then remembered my mother used to take it. . After the first bottle I was better. I began to fleshen up and I regained my strength and good, healthy color. I am feeling fine. I took twelve bottles (of Cardui) and haven't had a bit of trouble since."

Thousands of other women have had similar experiences in the use of Cardui, which has brought relief where other medicines had failed.

If you suffer from female ailments, take Cardui. It is a woman's medicine. It may be just what you need.
