WASHINGTON COLLEGE

The Adelphia Literary Society held a short business meeting on April 12. As there were several important matters to decide which were expected to take a long while, the literary program was rather short. The first matter brought up under new business was the election of two members to represent the Adelphia in its annual debate against the Mt. Vernon during commencement week. It was moved and passed that the matter be tabled until the following day and to be taken up at a special meeting to be called by the president at the close of the Chapel exercises. It was then moved and seconded that each year the society elect a man who has done most for the society during his membership, and reward him in a manner to be decided upon later. This motion was also tabled until the following week. The Moonbeam was read by Mr. Morris Z. Levy. Then the critic gave his report.

The following day, after Chapel, a special meeting of the Adelphia was called. The business of the meeting was disposed of by another motion which provided that the president appoint a committee of three to select the debaters for the Adelphia. It was later annouced that the committee selected Messrs. E. L. Kaiser and E. W. Nuttle. Their opponents of the Mt. Vernon will be Messrs. Owen Knight and Gilbert V. Byron.

At a meeting of the Mt. Vernon Literary Society, on Friday 13, the following program was rendered. A piano duet was rendered by Mr. Pippen and Miss Crew. Mr. Howes gave a five minute talk on inter-collegiate debating. An impromptu talk on the baseball team was given by Mr. Powell and the occupation of the Ruhr Valley was discussed by Mr. Knight. Mr. George R. Crothers, an alumnus of the class of 1918 and a former Mt. Vernon member delivered a lecture nor an oration to deliver, but development of the world. Though he at first announced that he had neither a lecture nor an oration to delifer, but merely to ramble about, yet there was little of the rambling or disconnected in his speech. It was a well co-ordinated treatise on an extremely interesting and educational subject. All thru the lecture he followed a chronological order. He began with the beginning of mankind. Then thru the ages he followed the development of the mind, beginning with the philosophers of the Orient, thru the Hebrew laws, by way of the Greek and Roman civilizations, to Christianity, and finally enlarged upon this last period and dwelt upon the great philosophers of the Christian era, from the beginning to the present day. The meeting was concluded by the critic's report given by Mr. Byron.

The local Business Men's Association is to be commended upon the co-operation they have shown the college by postponing their meeting from April 19 to a later date. The deed assumes more significance when it is considered that the association had postponed its present contemplated meeting on three former occasions to give preference to some other event in town. This instance is the fourth postponement. The college did not know that the 19th was the date decided upon by the association for its meeting, so it scheduled the "Arrival of Kitty" to be presented by the Dramatic Association that night. When the Business Men's Association that night. When the Business Men's Association found that out it called up the college and informed Dr. Gould that it would postpone its meeting for that night. It proves the fine co-operative spirit of the association and is greatly appreciated by the college.
