MINUTE TALKS BY THE Business Men's Association

Every successful business is in a constant state of reorganization. It is a sign of weakness rather than of strength when the management becomes completely satisfied with methods and policies over 'any considerable length of time and this is true of a Business Men's Association as of any other organization of men. Who can measure the effect of disinterested public service upon the character and broadened vision of men working together for the upbuilding of the community and doing this without any thought of personal gain or desire for personal recognition. The business man, the professional man, in fact every man, needs constantly to be reminded that he is not only a man, but a citizen; not only one, but one of many. He needs to be drawn away from his isolation; to be directed from the earnestness of his pursuits. He needs to be taught the advantage which lies in mutual confidence, and in concurrent action. The whole effect of an organization of men is to socialize, to liberalize, to harmonize. It softens the asperities of competition, it reconciles apparently conflicting interests and it demonstrates that the common welfare is the best basis for individual prosperity. In this connection, therefore, the following definitions of a good citizen are appropriate.

In this connection, therefore, the following definitions of a good citizen are appropriate:

Who Is a Good Citizen?

A good citizen must be honest, honorable and just in his relations to mankind, loyal to his friends, to family and to country and loyal to convictions and to conscience, chivalric to the weak and dependent; ready to sacrifice personal interest and personal comfort for the good of the community; fight for the right and not only pull his own weight but help raise the moral standards of his community to a higher level. (Barton Hepbron, former Pres., N. Y. Chamber of Commerce.)

A man who does not live for himself alone, one who is concerned in the welfare of his fellow; who will if necessary make sacrifices to rectify wrongs, to eliminate evils, and make every effort for the common uplift; who will endeavor by all means within his power to see to it that these principles shall find expression in his laws and in the administration of the affairs of government of his city and his state and his country. This is a good citizen. (Samuel Gompers, Amer. Fed. of Labor.)

A good citizen is an intelligent and judicious man who loves freedom, justice and mercy and is prepared on occasions to sacrifice his own interests to the common good. The fact is, that in modern life, with its far-reaching political and industrial complications, the good citizen is not so common in free states as he used to be, because he needs to possess a high degree of intelligence and good judgment. (Dr. Chas. W. Eliot, Harvard University.)

Zealous in business, not permitting his daily task to obscure his vision of life's great problems, honestly liquidating his debt to the community by expending time, or thought, or money to elevate both social and civic standards; he, whether rich or poor, is a good citizen. (Harry A. Wheeler, former Pres. U. S. Chamber of Commerce.)

The Graduation Girl

Now comes the graduation girl,
Of all the girls we know
None pulls our heart strings as does she,
Because we love her so.

She stands there in her spotless white,
Her thesis in her hand.
She solves for us, in her own way,
The problems of our land.

"Our life work is before us now,"
She reads in voice so sweet.
"Upon ourselves will all depend
How much success we meet."

Dear Girl, if we could have our wish,
As you go forth tonight,
'Twould be that your ideals you'd reach
Without a single fight.

But hardships strengthen character,
If you would win my friend,
To meet them and defeat them
You must fight to the end.

Minerva Florence Swigert.

SPORTS

The question has now been raised as to whether Capt. Kibler's Chestertown team of several years ago, which nearly won from the great Dry Dock team, could beat the down-shore league teams. This is a question hard to determine, as about the only way to judge between two teams is for them to play a series of games and then the result is ofttimes in doubt. However, we hardly believe one of the so-called league teams could play the old Dry Docks such a game as Chestertown did.

Matthews, Chestertown High School track star, gathered all of Kent's five points in the State meet at Homewood last Friday. He finished third in the 220 yard dash and second in the high jump, making a leap of 5 feet and 7 inches.

Gordy is now pitching for Taneytown on the Western Shore.

Washington College will meet the Alumni in the annual game on Saturday. The game is always interesting. Next Monday the Collegians will play the Walbrook A. A. in the final game of the season.

Cloak and Brennan are umpiring in the Eastern Shore League.

WEDDINGS

Galen Vansant, Esq., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Vansant, of Chestertown, and Miss Emily Herduson, of Danville, Va., were quietly married at the home of the bride Thursday. They will be in Chestertown for their honeymoon trip.

MASSEY BASE BALL NOTES

A very fast and interesting game was played on the Massey Diamond last Saturday, June 9th when the Massey A. A. crossed bats with the Kennedyville team strengthened by Washington College's Star Pitcher Hickman, Catcher Carrington, First Base Cavanaugh, and short stop Galvin. It was strong opposition but Massey boys proved to be more than a match for the visitors playing an errorless game. To say the least it was a classy game and a game that is seldom seen on a village diamond. Both teams were in good form and the score was kept close and interesting from start to finish. Massey getting the longest end of the stick. The score being 6 to 4 in favor of Massey. Groff pitched a noble game, striking out 9 men, Hickman did the honors for the visitors getting a total of 7 strike outs. It required but one honr and twenty minutes to play the game.

Symons, director, and the Bureau of Agriculture Economics co-operating with the agriculture statistician. The bulletin gives by counties the acreage, yield, production and value at the farm gate of the import ant crops.
