U. OF M. PLANNING TO HELP DAIRYMEN

NEW BUILDING BEING ERECTED WILL BE GREAT AID TO DAIRY INDUSTRY.

Dedication To Be Held Farmers' Day, May 26.

One of the several new buildings that are needed to equip the University of Maryland with the facilities essential to the place the institution should occupy in the State now is being erected at College Park. It is the dairy building, the cornerstone laying of which will be one of the features of Farmers' Day exercises on Saturday, May 26. The building was made possible by the far-sighted action of the last legislature.

The new building, which will be ready for occupancy with the beginning of the fall term, will house in a fitting manner this growing department of the University. The cornerstone laying on May 26 will be under the auspices of the State Dairymen's Association, of which D. G. Harry, of Harford county, is president. It is expected that members of the Association from all over the State will be present. Special invitations are being sent to members of the organization. Governor Ritchie, State Treasurer John M. Dennis, and other notable figures in the public life of the State will be present.

The building, which is of three stories, is being constructed of reinforced concrete. The first floor will be devoted to milk handling, butter and ice cream-making and marketing. The second floor will be given over to pasteurizing cheese, making and etc., and the third floor will be devoted to class room and laboratories. The building and equipment will be managed by Professor J. A. Gamble, head of the dairy industry department.

Adding of this facility to the University, which came in response to a very healthy dairy development in the State, will be good news to the 8,000 organized dairymen of Maryland, who are interested in seeing their industry come into its own. At the present time more than $10,000,000 worth of dairy products are brought in from the outside each year. Maryland farmers easily can produce this amount, thus keeping within the State millions of dollars that are now going out.

In order that Maryland boys may upon completion of their study at the University immediately take their places, not only in the production, but conversion of Maryland milk into butter and cheese, it was highly important that they obtain special training in dairy manufacturing. The new facilities will make this possible.

Volume must be handled in order to give the proper experience. This means, that like all other State institutions producing material, the dairy products manufactured in the new building will be sold, very largely to the dining hall and the faculty of the University. At the present time the dairy products consumed at the University, especially the butter and cheese, come from without the State.

Any balance that may be left after the University's need are supplied will be made available to automobile traffic on the Baltimore Boulevard, which passes within 80 feet of the new building. This fact should be particularly pleasing to the residents of Washington and Baltimore. About 700,000 automobiles pass the University grounds each year.

At present the dairy business north and east of College Park is growing rapidly and the farmers in these localities are urging that the University get in shape to handle their product at the earliest possible date.

In commenting on the addition of the Dairy Building to the equipment of the University Dr. A. F. Woods, President of the University, says:

"No industry in the State has greater possibilities than dairying. The State has good grazing lands, a better climate, and far better geographical location than the great dairying State of Wisconsin. Maryland's greater market facilities give it an advantage over Western States that is almost impossible to calculate. The new dairy building will give the University opportunities to serve the dairy industry, and will serve as a headquarters around which to develop Maryland into a dairying State, just as already is being done in horticulture. There is no reason why Maryland should not be one of the greatest milk, butter and cheese producing States of the Union."

Priceless Service

"I don't believe there is a man or woman who has ever used the telephone in any hour of need, in illness at night, or in any other human crisis, but will testify that the telephone is worth all that it is possible to pay for it. I know of no greater agency for the public good than the telephone. This system of transportation carries the voices of men and women, the heart throbs of a nation, sets astir the wheels of industry, binding together the component parts of the nation and transacting its business speedily and efficiently."—Governor Edwin P. Morrow, of Kentucky.

During 1922, there were added to the Bell System through new construction, 582,064 telephones and in addition to these, 18,594 telephones were purchased from other companies. It is estimated that this record growth will be exceeded in 1923 by about 200,000 telephones.

On October 9, 1876, Dr. Bell, the inventor of the telephone, and Thomas A. Watson, his assistant, talked successfully over a private telegraph wire, two miles long, between Boston and Cambridge, this being the first two way talk over an outside wire.
