WEST VIRGINIA LEADS IN OUTPUT OF CARBON BLACK

West Virginia produces immense quantities of carbon black. In 1921 twenty-four million pounds or 41 per cent. of the output in the United States was manufactured in the State.

Carbon black is "smut" produced by burning natural gas. It was first made at New Cumberland, West Virginia, in 1872.

The Bureau of Mines describes something of the history as well as the use of carbon black. In the order of their importance they are, printer's ink, rubber, black and gray paint enamel and stove polish, other products such as crayons, typewriter ribbons, black and gray paper, glazed paper, tarpaulins, black leather, bookbinders' boards, marking and stenciling ink, rubber sheeting and clothing, hard rubber, artificial stone, black tile, Chinese and India inks, insulating materials and case hardening.

With the increased production of automobiles, large quantities of carbon black are consumed in the manufacture of tires, tops and upholstery.

Every telephone contains carbon black in its "make up." It is found in the hard rubber of the receiver and mouthpiece, in the transmitter as well as in the enamel with which the telephone is painted. The hard rubber jack panel strips in telephone switchboards, the japans, printers and stenciling inks used extensively in the manufacture of telephone and other electrical equipment all contain carbon black.

DADDY WAS NOT CONCERNED

Information Must Have Been of Considerable Importance to Woman Who Was Returning Home.

The woman was evidently returning from a trip away from home. When she came into the waiting room at the station three youngsters swooped down upon her and all but smothered her with hugs and kisses.

"My, I'm glad to get home!" the mother exclaimed. "And how is Harry?" she asked.

"Oh, Harry did just fine while you were gone!" Virginia put in. "He didn't tease me a bit, and he helped with the work, and he took his music lesson, and he practiced every day, and—and everything."

"That was fine, Harry!" mother praised. "And you, Virginia; how did you do?"

Of course it was up to Harry to do his part here.

"Say, mamma, Virginia's a brick!" he exclaimed. "She can cook 'most as good as you can, and sweep—say, mamma, you ought to see her sweep!"

"Well, I'm certainly glad to hear that," mother told them. "And little Rosemary, of course she was all right—but how mamma did miss her!"

"I helped Virginia cook!" Rosemary told her mamma, with evident pride. "Well, you all did just fine, I can see that," mother repeated. "And, now, what about daddy? You haven't told me a thing about him!"

"Oh, daddy's all right," Harry assured her. "Why only last night dad said you needn't come back for three months as far as he was concerned."—Kansas City Star.

Likens Yankee's Telephone To Britisher's Daily Bath

English papers frequently comment on the fact that the telephone is much more popular and more useful in the United States than in Great Britain. In an article on "American Telephone Progress," the Financial Times of London remarks: "In the States people use the telephone as we do water, gas or electricity, perhaps even more so"; and the Nottingham Journal and Express optimistically declares: "We look for a day when every house will regard the installment of a telephone as essential as that of a bath."

In Great Britain, however, the telephone system is operated by the Post Office Department and there are at present fewer telephones in the entire Kingdom than there are in New York City alone.

Cactus as a Fodder.

The cactus is first exposed to a torch which burns away the thorns, and is then carried to the slicing machine, of the type that is used in sugar works. The machine is provided with specially formed knives and the cactus is cut up into slices, which are then dried and if desired ground into the form of a fine powder. During the slicing operation part of the juice, which is exuded from the cactus, may be pressed out and collected separately. The juice can then be converted into a substitute for gum arabic, which is probably a salt of meta-arabic acid. The yield of dry material, the fodder, is about 11 per cent of the weight of the raw cactus.—Journal of Engineering and Industrial Chemistry.

French Workmen's Houses.

French workmen's building and loan societies, "Habitations a bon Marche," have been started to help the construction of buildings for the working classes and to improve the sanitary conditions of those already existing in France. The state has granted a subvention of one-third of the cost of the construction, according to the commerce bureau.

In addition, the state will lend 75 per cent of the balance required, to be reimbursed within forty years, at an annual interest of 2½ per cent on the amount borrowed. These societies are increasing, but not in sufficient number to meet the existing demand.

IN THE INTEREST OF THE BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION OF CHESTERTOWN

By Wm. R. Moody

Up-to-date the following have contributed to the Chestertown Band and their new band-stand. Let us add your name to this list.

E. S. Adkins Co., Dr. H. P. Copeland, W. P. Newnam, H. F. Jefferson, Blackway Bros., J. W. Kirby, P. M. Brooks, Jones & Satterfield, Vansant & Newsome, J. S. Kreeger, J. H. Bonnett & Co., Dr. L. C. Hess, Sidney P. Townshend, Esq., Bartley & Son, John N. Bennett, John D. Urie, Esq., M. J. Lewis & Son, J. Hydie Thompson, M. A. Toulson, Thomas W. Eliason, H. N. Baldwin.

The full amount necessary has not yet been subscribed. Who will be the next to help make it up?

To love your town you must help to make your town lovely. To do this—burn all rubbish possible—never throw it in the streets, gutters, alleys vacant lots, back or side yards or over the back fence. Keep your sidewalks and gutters clean. See that spaces between sidewalks and gutters are clean. See that spaces between sidewalk and curb are well sodded. Alleys should be kept clean. Cut all weeds before they seed. Grow vines on back and side fences. Aim for the cleanest and most attractive block in the town. Obey the town laws and then all of the above will be accomplished.

No doubt you all read with interest the excellent article by President Titsworth of Washington College, entitled "An Old College For A New Day," which recently appeared in the Kent newspapers. The Business Men's Association has since sent copies of the article to thirty newspapers on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, the Eastern Shore of Virginia and throughout Delaware. These were accompanied by a letter from the Association asking that the article be published and setting forth the interest of the Association in the College and its community service. The Association feels that a very important part of its proper activity would be neglected if it did not cooperate very closely with the College and do what it can to help increase the prestige of Washington in this section of the country.

Around The Town Pump

A pretty good firm is Watch & Wait,
Another still is Attit, Early & Late,
And still another is Doo & Darit—
But the best is probably Grin & Barrett.

Hunt for the good in the other fellow—he has to do the same in your case.

A fellow in the Missouri penitentiary is running a newspaper column. We are trying to exchange with him and after we get acquainted we are going to find out why he is in and we are out.

It used to be women, wine and song. Now it's your own wife, near-beer and community singing.

They are cutting Christmas trees in the Adirondacks, which sounds like a hint about early shopping. The Enterprise Publishing Co., has circulated attractive cards to this general effect among the merchants of Chestertown and they are now on display in the show windows. We ask a vote of thanks to the Enterprise. That's enterprise.

When the nurse entered, her boy patient was in a furious state of writhing convulsions.

"What is the matter!" she cried anxiously.

"I forgot" replied the boy, "to shake the bottle before taking the medicine."

If you want to get anywhere you must keep moving. If you want to build up business you must keep advertising. Shake before taking—not afterward. And the test of advertising is not 'does it get by' but 'does it get buyers.'

Give them more than they pay for. If you go to a garage and buy ten gallons of gas and the garage man says, "Thank you" and then adds, "I see one of your tires needs a little air" and gives you the air and adds, "How's the radiator?" and adds a little hot water—that's service. Service is thoughtfulness.

More accurate information is to the effect that Cavanaugh's 55-yard dropkick, which defeated St. John's, exceeded Floyd Brown's dropkick by 8 yards, and was the greatest kick ever made in the history of the college and perhaps the state. In our mind, we doubt if it has ever been surpassed in an actual contest. On the same day that he made the great kick, Cavanaugh stood on his own goal line and kicked the ball out of bounds on St. John's ten-yard line. On the kick-off following his remarkable dropkick, the ball went a good thirty yards over the goal line on the fly. These terific leg-drives puts Cavanaugh in the front ranks of the best kickers of the year. Not only is Cavanaugh a great punter and drop-kicker, but he is easily one of the best, one of the fastest and one of the most aggressive football players ever wearing a Washington College uniform.

Eddie Keenan will, of cousse, be on the All-Maryland eleven again this year. No All-Maryland would be complete without him. His tremendous weight and strength, his aggressiveness, his clean playing, his knowledge of the game and his ability to put fight into the team—entitle him to his place for the third successive time. We also nominate for quarterback of the All-Maryland that sterling triple-threat, Bobby Cavanahgh, who won from St. John's by the greatest drop-kick ever made in this state. Capt. Duffy is also almost sure of a place. He is often spoken of as the best player on the Washington team. But, however that may be, he is certainly one of the best linemen ever wearing the maroon and black. He should also get his place in the hall of fame. If Reiger, left end, had a few more pounds of weight, he would be in a class by himself as an end. As it is, he is the biggest little man we ever saw in action on any football field. Pound for pound, he is the best football player in the state.

There are no more industrious or more valuable laborers on the farm than the birds. From daybreak until nightfall they work for us, unceasingly, quietly, persistently, destroying millions of caterpillars, grubs, borers, beetles and other insects that are destructive to crops, fruits and flowers. They demand no pay for their services whatever and are self-sustaining the greater portion of the year. Only in winter time, when the insects upon which they live have mostly disappeared, is it necessary for us to feed them; and then, unless we provide them with food, especially during the severely cold weather or when a heavy snow covers the ground, they will certainly perish or be compelled to migrate to some other locality. Feed them and keep them with you always.

George E. Sutton arrived home last week from a circuit of races with three horses—Princess D., Lila Dellum and Miss Auction. These are all fine animals.

The State Department of Conservation shows a deficit of $5,840.92 for the fiscal year which ended October 1, 1923, according to figures announced last week by Harrison W. Vickers, Jr., State Conservation Commissioner. "In view of the short oyster season," Mr. Vickers said, "the deficit is not surprising. The oyster industry is not only self-sustaining but had a surplus of approximately $17,000 this year. This money was used to protect crabs and fish and to stock state waters with fish. It is because the crabbing and fishing industries are not self-sustaining and that state waters are stocked with fish with no return to the state for the expenditure that there is a deficit."
