Ku Klux Klan Holds Meeting Here

The Ku Klux Klan held a big meeting in Firemen's Hall, Chestertown, on Tuesday night. The hall was packed to the doors, about three hundred and fifty being present. The speaker of the evening was Dr. Lloyd P. Bloodworth, of Georgia, a former Methodist minister, who spoke for about two hours on Americanism and the principles of the order. His speech was well received by his hearers, who frequently applauded him. He stated that the fundamental principles and the cornerstone of the Klan were: Upholding the church, which he stated was the most important of all our institutions; keeping the Constitution of the United States and its amendments intact and secure, and declaring this was the greatest document, outside the Bible, ever given to the race; restricting the flow of immigrants to this country; he stated that if not restricted, in fifty years there would be more foreigners than Americans in this country; and lastly, undefiled womanhood and the sanctity of the home; he dwelt at length upon these four cornerstones and said, in conclusion, that every true American believed in them. Those who went expecting to hear religious denominations discussed were disappointed. The speaker kept close to the subject of his address and dealt with the Klan more as a secondary measure than the basis for a speech.

Long Distance Service

FROM fifteen to twenty-one telephone operators cooperate in establishing a New York-San Francisco circuit; and other telephone employees by scores must be at their posts to insure efficient transmission.

That you may have a choice of destination for your voice, a vast network of Bell System circuits interconnects all important centers, reaching millions of homes and business places.

Over these circuits more than 158,000 traffic employees stand guard. But long before these highways of speech were ready for use another army of workers had wrestled with problems of construction and maintenance.

A huge manufacturing plant had mobilized its forces.

Thousands of toilers in mine and forest had sought raw materials.

Physicists and chemists through laboratory research, had laid a sure foundation for efficient service.

All the forces and wonders of industry and science have been drawn upon to serve you when you make a long distance telephone call.

WASHINGTON QUINTET PREPARING TO DEFEAT NAVY NEXT WEDNESDAY NIGHT—SEASON OPENS HERE DEC. 20—OTHER SPORTING NOTES

Washington College is preparing to give the crack Navy quintet the game of their lives next Wednesday evening at Annapolis. It will be remembered that last year Washington only lost the game by four points and went into it unprepared and with a new team. This year Coach Kibler, who has given Washington the greatest teams in basketball than it has ever had in any other branch of sport, expects to give them even a harder battle. Prospects for a basketball wonder team are excellent. Gordy has been lost to the team, but it is said that McGrann and Lohran can each of them more than fill his shoes. Washington easily won the State Championship last year and will likely do the same again this year. McGrann is being picked by outsiders as the tip-off man to succeed Gordy. He came from Bridgeport,Conn., where he had a great record as a high school player. Carroll and Dunschott will remain at forward positions; while Carrington and Fiore will play the guard positions. McAuliffe, another Connecticut wonder, is said to be another great player who is expected to make the regulars keep going. The whole Washington College team will be made up of New England youngsters from the Waterbury-Bridgeport section, one of the strongest centers for scholastic basketball in the country. So long as Washington is able to get these fine young fellows, so long will Washington stay at the top of the heap. W. C. has another basketball star in Armstrong, of Chestertown, who did good work on the football team and who is a real basketball star. He is to be reckoned with whenever and wherever the game is mentioned. Cavanaugh is another star in the making.

California's football record surpasses anything of the decade for she has gone unbeaten for four years.

Yale has had ten backs of unusual calibre this year—perhaps the largest number any university has had in the history of the game.

The game wardens are on the lookout for reported infringements of the game laws.

The hunting season in Kent has three weeks longer to go. Game is already exceedingly scarce in the covers of the Eastern Shore.

Washington College has a particularly strong schedule for this season. The first home game is Thursday evening, Dec. 20, with Grove City, said to be the fastest team ever seen on the local floor. The complete schedule is as follows:

Dec. 12—Navy, at Annapolis.
Dec. 20—Grove City College here.
Jan. 11—Catholic Univ., at Wash.
Jan. 12—Marines, at Quantico, Va.
Jan. 18—St. John's, pending.
Jan. 19—Loyola, at Baltimore.
Jan. 25—Western Maryland, here.
Jan. 26—Marines, here.
Feb. 6—Temple University, here.
Feb. 8—St. John's, pending, at Annapolis.
Feb. 9—Mount, St. Mary's, here.
Feb. 11—St. Joseph's College,at Philadelphia.
Feb. 12—Franklin and Marshall, at Lancaster, Pa.
Feb. 13—Gettysburg, at Gettysburg, Pa.
Feb. 14—Albright, at Myerstown.
Feb. 15—Dickinson, at Carlisle, Pa.
Feb. 21—Western Maryland, at Westminster.
Feb. 22—Blue Ridge, pending, at Westminster.
Feb. 23—Mt. St. Mary's, at Emmitsburg.
Feb. 27—Loyola, here.
Mar. 1—Blue Ridge, here.
Mar. 5—Pennsylvania Military College, at Chester, Pa.

Game is going fast on the Eastern Shore. In a section where once quail and rabbits abounded almost without limit, they are so scarce now that the average hunter despairs of going after them at all. This has been due to several causes. One is the fact that dogs, unfed and uncared for at home, range after food; another cause is the fact that foxes and hawks take a yearly toll; another is the fact that farmers in late years have cleaned up game covers, such as briar patches and the thickets, which afford excellent places for them to bred and nest. But however these have taken their toll of the game of the Shore, the fact remains that man himself is responsible for the game shortage. Times were when the hunter sallied forth with muzzle loader and found game plentiful, chiefly because he could not kill but a very limited number. It entailed too much work to load and reload the old guns that he was satisfied with less. But with the advent of the breech-loader and, finally, the double-barreled breech loader and pump guns, game cannot live, especially when they are in the hands of people who want more than they should want—and usually get them. If we keep killing game during the next ten years like we have during the past decade, game will be practically extinct on the Shore.

The 1923 football season, featured by attendance figures that shattered these for all previous gridiron spectacles, by a record array of inter-sectional battles, and by a sensational series of upsets, had added probably the most brilliant chapter of all time to the remarkable growth of the nation's favorite college pastime. Proof of the keenness with which campaigns for major titles were fought is the fact that only three elevens stood out with undisputed claims to premier honors. These were the University of California, Yale and Cornell. Yale, in the opinion of a majority of the critics, is the premier team of the East, although some contend Cornell should be put on a par with them. The year has been marked by many upsets, chief of which the defeat of Notre Dame and Syracuse by inferior teams, after winning from their strongest rivas.
