THAT ACCIDENT.

It Didn't Keep Her Out, So Far as Jack Was Concerned.

She lay on the sofa in her prettiest tea gown, with the blinds carefully lowered, and her dearest friend, rushing into the room, exclaimed:

"Oh, Effie, I've just heard that you had an accident the other day, and I came right over to sympathize and hear all about it."

"Indeed, I had," she groaned. "I had no idea it hurt so badly just to fall off a wheel. It was all Fan's fault too."

"How did she manage it?"

"Well, it came about this way. You know, Jack is a bicycle enthusiast, and I knew if I want—that is, if I cared to"—

"Don't be bashful, dear. Those eyes would be your excuse if his bank account was not."

"Well, I knew I must learn to ride one of the horrid things, so I asked him to teach me. He was delighted, and then Fan decided she must learn, too, and, of course, politeness obliged him to offer to teach her too. We each bought a wheel and got a lovely bicycle suit. Mine is"—

"Yes, yes. I'll see it later. Go on."

"I said nothing to any one, but I was determined to get ahead of Miss Fan, so I just took a few lessons on the sly. You should have seen Jack's surprise when he took us out for the first time and found I could ride right off, for, of course, I didn't think it necessary to speak of the lessons."

"Of course not. Now, did Fan"—

"Oh, Jess, if you could only have seen her! She wabbled about and scrambled and plunged and held on to Jack until I was actually ashamed of her. It was so bold and unfeminine. Poor Jack, he couldn't get away for an instant. I saw then I'd made a great mistake."

"But didn't he praise your ability?"

"Oh, yes. But praise doesn't amount to much when it has to be shouted to you 15 feet away and interrupted by screens and clutches as his was."

"But wasn't it any better next time?"

"It was not, or the next, either. She didn't make any effort to learn—she just played off those eyeglasses and clung to him and screamed, and I did not think he displayed any unnecessary amount of patience."

"Why didn't you get her out to practice alone?"

"I did try, but she wouldn't go—said she'd never dare to mount her wheel without Jack. Well, I know I must do something, so the next time we went out I just went over a stone and fell. He left Fan quick enough then—but I fell harder than I meant to and sprained my wrist awfully.

"Oh, Well, it wasn't so bad after all, since Jack is a medical student."

"I know. He brought me home, bandaged my wrist and has been coming over every day to look at it. Fan came with him one day and told me that it was all because I was too independent, and asked Jack if he didn't admire clinging, feminine women."

"That girl will be the death of me some day."

"M'hm. I'm sorry now that I fell. You see an hour a day spent here doesn't amount to much, and Fan pretends that she is so anxious to learn and has him out every spare minute."

"And she is not learning a bit faster, either. Why, here comes Katie!"

And after a hasty greeting, Katie cried: "Oh, Effie, I've come to ask you to be my bridesmaid. You see, Jack and I had quarreled two weeks ago because I refused to ride a wheel. Yesterday he came over and said I was quite right. I was not to be outdone in generosity, so I said I'd ride, after all, and—well, the wedding is set for June."

"How perfectly lovely," said Jess. "By the way, if you want to buy a wheel cheap, I'm sure Fan would be glad to sell you hers—she has no use for it."

"Thank you," replied the bride elect. "I shall speak to her about it. Why, Effie, I'm afraid you must be suffering more than Jack thinks. I declare you look quite feverish."—Chicago Times-Herald.

RODE A DEER.

Perilous Adventure of a Hunter in Florida.

James L. Harn, of Fort Myers, Fla., took a Mazeppalike ride on the neck of a deer that came near costing him his life.

Mr. Harn and Dr. T. E. Langford were out hunting, when they saw a fine buck quietly feeding half a mile away. It was agreed that Harn should stalk the deer, while Lankford remained with the horses.

Accordingly Harn dismounted and began to approach the deer, which, in th meantime, had moved so that it was n longer visible.

After half an hour Langford heard shot and supposed Harn had killed th deer. A few minutes later he heard cry for help, and immediately after sa the deer come tearing through the brus with Harn clinging to its neck.

At every bound Harn was being terribl lacerated by the sharp hoofs of the dee and the brush. The direction in whic the deer was moving would cause it t pass within fifty yards of Langford, an the latter resolved to shoot the latter a it came by.

The doctor realized that the bulle might hit Harn, but felt it was the onl chance to save his friend's life.

Accordingly, as the buck with its hu man burden came bounding past Lang ford took careful aim and fired. Th shot was successful, and with the nex bound the deer fell dead.

Langford hastened to Harn's aid, and found him in a terribly lacerated condition. His clothing had been torn from him and his skin badly cut either by the hoofs of the deer or the brush. While suffering much agony from his injuries, Harn will recover.

Harn says when he fired the deer fell, and supposing the animal dead he approached to cut its throat. As he reached the buck it sprang to its feet and darted at him. Harn instinctively threw his arms about the deer's neck and then came the ride through the brush. Harn was afraid to let go, lest the buck should paw him to death.

Dr. Langford's shot was a lucky one, the bullet entering just behind the shoulder of the deer.

Miss Newgate—What was done at the New Woman International Progressive Club today?

Bachelor girl—Nothing, you see, Mrs. Sweetie happened to come in with her baby, and before we all got through kissing the little cherub it was time to adjourn.

WHY IS FRIDAY FISH DAY?

"The Friday fasting of the early Christian Church was simply a modification of the Jewish weekly fasts, the custom of observing which grew up, probably, in the post-exile period of Jewish history," says the St. Louis Globe Democrat. "These fasts, said to be in commemoration of Moses' ascent to Sinai and his descent therefrom, were not obligatory on the Jews, but were observed pretty generally. The early Christians did not cease to be Jews because they followed Christ, so they maintained their old customs and fastings. So, too, the Catholic Church obtained the fast day, and in keeping with its custom of retaining the heathen, or non-Christian, ceremonies under Christian conditions, the church soon proposed the Friday fast in memory of Christ's death. The date we do not know. The custom of a Friday fast was maintained by the early Christians without any especial idea on their part, so that it is probably impossible to say when it ceased to be a relic of Judaism and became a mark or duty of Christianity.

The fasts, if celebrated at all by Jesus came not on Friday, but on Thursday and Mondays as well. These were originally market days in Jerusalem, when the people came in large number and then attended divine services at synagogue to hear a portion read from the Book of Moses. Subsequently, after the dispersion, some Jews then, as now, observed the days, at times, as a half-fast day. But Friday was avoided as a fast day, lest it interferred with the joys of Sabbath, and movable minor fasts are not allowed to fall on that day. The explanation of the Friday fast must be sought elsewhere. Perhaps it is in commemoration of the Crucifixion, just as Sunday is the Lord's Day, in honor of the Resurrection.

DEER PARK.

On the Crest of the Alleghanies.

To those contemplating a trip to the mountains in search of health and pleasure, Deer Park, on the crest of the Alleghany mountains, 3,000 feet above the sea level, offers such varied attractions as a delightful atmosphere during both day and night, pure water, smooth winding roads through the mountains and valleys, and the most picturesque scenery in the Alleghany range. The hotel is equipped with all adjuncts conducive to the entertainment, pleasure and comfort of its guests.

The surrounding grounds, as well as the hotel, are lighted with electricity. Six miles distant, on the same mountain summit, is Oakland, the twin resort of Deer Park, and equally as well equipped for the entertainment and accomodation of its patrons. Both hotels are upon the main line of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, have the advantages of its splendid Vestibuled Limited Express trains between the East and West. Season excursion tickets, good for return passage until October 31, will be placed on sale at greatly reduced rates at all principal ticket offices throughout the country. The season of these popular resorts commences June 22nd. For full information as to hotel rates, rooms, etc. address Geo. D. DeShields, Manager, Deer Park.

WHITE parasols of plain silk and no trimming are the prevailing fashion for general use with light gowns, and in addition to these are the changeable silks for greater service, and some that are covered with large Scotch plaids, very conspicuous, but rare in the procession.
