From the Cecil Democrat.

A GREAT BUTTER COW.

WARWICK, MD., June 5, 1895.

MR. G. R. ASH, Editor:

Dear Sir—Below I give you the test of a Holstein cow for the month of May, which, if you think worthy to make mention of in your paper to the farmers of Cecil county, do so.

This cow, Venetia 2d, was milked out clean on the evening of April 30th at 6 P. M. The next day, May first, she gave at three milkings 57 lbs.; on the 8th of May she gave 76 lb.; on the 15th 88 lbs.; on the 22nd 87 lbs.; on the 29th 88 lbs.; on the 31st at 6 P. M., for the last day of May, she gave 83 lbs.

During the month her best seven consecutive days milk, 14th to 20th inclusive, she gave 618 lbs., an average of 88 2-7 lbs. Her best ten consecutive days 877 lbs., an average of 87 6-10. Number of pounds given by her for the entire month, 31 days, 2486 lbs., an average of 80 6-13. On the morning of May 31st I took a sample of her milk with three samples of other cows milk to the Odessa creamery to have it and the others tested for butter-fat, with the result that for the month she would have made over 64 lbs. of butter. This test was made by the Babcock test, and the result given me by Mr. Geo. S. Townsend, a distinguished party and gentleman, beyond giving an unjust decision in this matter. I fed this cow as follows:

One gallon wheat bran morning, noon and night for the first 15 days of May, the remaining 16 days I gave her in addition to the bran scant two quarts of corn meal. This same cow I tested 30 days last year without any grain and she gave 1640 lbs. 8 ounces. She was then at good grass and she has been during this season. I feel confident that this cow could have easily been fed to have given 100 lbs. of milk in one day, but I was afraid to do so, as force feeding often results in the loss of part if not all of the udder and very frequently in the loss of the cow entirely. The cow during her milk test this season was milked three times each day.

Many will ask why is it she did not test a greater per cent. of butter-fat or butter from such a flow of milk? That can be seen I think by most any one she was fed for milk alone. It would be quite easy to reduce the flow of milk and increase the butter-fat by the proper feeding. She dropped her last calf Feb. 22d, 1895, and I shipped it to Orange county, New York, on April 3d, with ten others.

I would be glad to have any one passing through Warwick stop and see a pair of calves I have raised from the milk of this cow since I sent her calf away. I think I can show as fine pair of calves raised from the milk of one cow as is generally found when one calf only is raised. These calves are getting nothing but her milk, only what little grass they pick up in a little orchard where they are running for exercise.

If there are any doubting Thomases let them put up in your hands a wager to the value of the cow and you send some reliable man to decide the matter by seeing this cow milked, her milk weighed, giving her actual milk for 24 hours, but give me one week's notice to care for her as she is now since her test not fed, only what grass she gets.

Respectfully, E. E. MARSH.

Oh! Why Should the Spirit of Mortal Be Proud?

Oh! why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
Like a swift-fleeting meteor, and fast-flying cloud,
A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave,
Man passes from life to his rest in the grave.

The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade,
Be scattered around, and together be laid:
And the young and the old, and the low and the high,
Shall moulder to dust and together shall lie.

The infant a mother attended and loved,
The mother that infant's affection who proved
The husband that mother and infant who blessed—
Each, all, are away to their dwellings of rest.

The maid on whose cheek, on whose brow, in whose eye,
Shone beauty and pleasure—her triumphs are by,
And the memory of those who loved her and praised
Are alike from the minds of the living erased.

The hand of the king that the sceptre hath borne;
The brow of the priest that the mitre hath worn;
The eye of the sage and the heart of the brave,
Are hidden and lost in the depth of the grave.

The peasant whose lot was to sow and to reap;
The herdsman who climbed with his goats up the steep;
The beggar who wandered in search of his bread,
Have faded away like the grass that we tread.

The saint who enjoyed the communion of heaven;
The sinner who dared to remain unforgiven;
The wise and the foolish, the guilty and just,
Have quietly mingled their bones in the dust.

So the multitude goes, like the flower or the weed
That withers away to let others succeed;
So the multitude comes, even those we behold,
To repeat every tale that has often been told.

For we are the same our fathers have been;
We see the same our fathers have seen;
We drink the same stream and view the same sun,
And run the same course our father's have run.

The thoughts we are thinking our fathers would think;
From the death we are shrinking our fathers would shrink;
To the life we are clinging they also would cling;
But it speeds for us all like a bird on the wing.

They loved, but the story we cannot unfold;
They scorned, but the heart of the haughty is cold;
They grieved, but no wail from their slumbers will come;
They joyed, but the tongue of their gladness is dumb.

They died! aye! they died; and we things that are now,
Who walk on the turf that lies over their brow,
Who make in their dwelling a transient abode,
Meet the things that they met on their pilgrimage road.

Yea! hope and despondency, pleasure and pain,
We mingle together in sunshine and rain;
And misles and the tears, the song and the dirge,
Still follow each other like surge upon surge.

'Tis the wink of the eye, 'tis the draught of a breath,
From the blossom of health to the paleness of death,
From the gilded saloon to the bier and the shroud,
Oh! why should the spirit of mortal be proud?

A Mystery Explained.

Mr. Newlywed — What makes you smile so cynically this evening?

Mrs. Newlywed—I was just thinking how you use to hold my hand by the hour before we were married. How stupid you were!

Mr. Newlywed —Stupid! Not much. I held your dear little lilly white paw to keep you from pounding the piano.

His Pet Grievance.

"What makes you look so unhappy while you are singing?" asked a friend of the tenor of a prominent church.

"Put yourself in my place," said the tenor, crossly. "As soon as I reach my solo the soprano begins to flirt with the bass and the members of the congregation are so diverted by them that they pay no attention to me. Is it any wonder I look unhappy?"

Common Sense

Should be used in attempting to cure that very disagreeable disease, catarrh. As catarrh originates in impurities in the blood, local applications can do no permanent good. The common sense method of treatment is to purify the blood, and for this purpose there is no preparation superior to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Pills cure constipation by restoring peritfaltic action to the alimentary canal.

The smallest boy in the arithmetic class is the son of a man who works in a coal yard.

"William," said the teacher, "How many pounds are there in a ton?"

The smallest boy was silent.

"Why, that's a very easy question, William."

"Yes'm, I know it's easy, but, please, ma'am, am I supposed to be buying the coal or selling?"

ECZEMA From early childhood until I was grown my family spent a fortune trying to cure me of this disease. I visited Hot Springs, and was treated by the best medical men, but was not benefited. FROM When all things had failed I determined to try S. S. S., and in four months was entirely cured. The terrible Eczema was gone, not a sign of it left; my general health built up, and I have never had any return of the disease. I have since CHILDHOOD recommended S. S. S. to a number of friends for skin diseases, and have never yet known a failure to cure. GEO. W. IRWIN, Irwin, Pa.
