HELD UP IN A STREET CAR.

Five Tough Citizens of Pittsburg Play Highwaymen.

A Pittsburg dispatch says: Shady Side, in the East End, was the scene of one of the most daring examples of highway robbery in Pittsburg's history.

A Centre and Negley avenue car, well filled with passengers, left the car barn at Neville street and started toward Centre avenue for the last part of its run. The car had only proceeded about a square when the motorman received a signal to stop from two men standing beside the track. As the car slackened the men scrambled onto the rear platform, and at the same moment three others jumped on the front platform. Without wasting any time on the conductor or motorman, they pushed into the car, and to the consternation and amazement of every one, stationed themselves along the aisle and demanded every one to "shell out and be quick about it."

The whole thing had been done so quickly that not a soul in the car made a movement at resistance, and before they had fully come to their wits a couple of watches had been taken out of the owners' vest pockets, and a small amount of money delivered into the hand stretched out threateningly toward the dazed passengers. About a square from Centre avenue the men succeeded in getting off the car, and at once were lost to sight among the large trees lining the street.

The police finally arrested three of the gang.

POOR LO ON A WHEEL.

Bicycles at Last Introduced Among Red Men of Indian Territory.

The other day a strapping big Indian, smelling of camp-fire smoke and whisky, walked into a bicycle store on Delaware street. For a long time says the Kansas City Star, he gazed at the bicycles ranged down both sides of the room, then he pointed one and said: "Me want." After a long dicker he bought a second hand wheel for fifty dollars, every cent he had. He had a return ticket to Indian territory and he borrowed a dollar from the bicycle man to "eat with" going home. Then he pushed his bicycle out of the door and up the street. There are now many Indians riding bicycles down in the territory. At least thirty are in use at Talequah, and the towns of Muskogee, Vinta and Sepulpa and many others have riders. Imagine an Indian war with this new State of affairs. A little handful of men—they are always little handfuls—are crouched behind the ruins of their wagon and the bodies of their dead mules selling their lives dearly. Just out of rifle shot there circles about them on bicycles a band of fierce and bloodthirsty Indians with little caps with green visors and trimmed with eagle feathers. When everything looks darkest the whirr of the wheel is heard in the distance and a troop of United States bicyclers dashes up, the steel of their machines glittering in the sun and with ringing cheers charge in pursuit of the retiring Indians who pump away across the prairie at full speed.

Students as Conductors in Philadelphia.

The Electric Engineer says that "during the past summer between 30 and 40 students of Jefferson Medical College, the Philadelphia College of Dentistry, the University of Pennsylvania and other colleges in Philadelphia obtained employment as conductors on the cars of the People's Traction System of Philadelphia. All of the young men came from outside the city, and were working their way through college. The last of them handed in their resignation last week, which the company accepted with regret, for the young men have proved to be the best conductors in its employ. An official of the company said the students were thoroughly honest, intelligent and polite, and as their desire was to earn as much money during the summer as possible, they were always willing to work extra hours and take out special cars. They lived economically and have probaby saved something like $130 each, which will go a good way toward paying their college expenses next winter. One of the students has almost concluded not to go back to college, he likes railroading so well, and is still in the employ of the company."

Premium for a Husband.—A Local Young Man Answers.—Hip Sing Lee, a Chinese merchant at San Jose, Cal., offers a half interest in his merchandise business and $5000 in cash to any reputable young American who will marry his daughter Moi! A young gentleman residing in the county came to the Record office last Tuesday and informed the occupants that he intended to apply for the position of husband and forthwith wrote a letter to Hip Sing Lee, the young lady's father stating that he was willing &c. Hip Sing Lee is the wealthiest Chinaman in San Jose Valley, and his fortune is estimated at from $50,000 to $100,000. He conducts a general store—with a lottery game on the side, in San Jose, and has branch stores in Watsonville, Santa Cruz and Salina. Hip has become thoroughly Americanized, and as he is getting old it is his wish to see his daughter happily married to some good American who will look after and care for his business and wealth. Hip's wife died about a year ago, and as several attempts have been made to kidnap Moi, he is afraid that if she does not marry soon the high binders may succeed in abducting her.—Centreville Record.

A New Use for the Telephone.

There is a story in the newspapers, which seems to be intended to be taken seriously, about the telephone newspaper which has been working successfully for two years at Pesth, Hungary. It is called the Telphone Herald, has 6000 subscribers, costs two cents, and issues 23 editions daily. A special wire 168 miles long connects it with its subscribers, in whose houses long flexible wires permit the receivers to be carried from room to room. At the office of the journal ten men with strong voices take turns in talking the news into the telephones. This modern journal makes all its deliverances to its subscribers according to a stated schedule, which lets them know what to expect at stated hours of the day. It gives them the telegraphic news duly and carefully edited, the local news, articles on various subjects, and whatever other newspapers have. When there is nothing more important to communicate the subscribers are entertained by vocal and instrumental music, sometimes discoursed for their especial benefit, sometimes gathered from concert halls or churches where music is going on.

If all this really happens at Pesth, and not in the moon, Pesth must be the finest place for illiterate, blind, bedridden, and incurably lazy people in the world. It would not appear however, that a telephone newspaper is of value as a time saving device, or that it is any less devastating to the faculties than a modern journal which distributes its news in the ordinary way.

Spools.

Practically all the wool used in making spools for thread in this country and Great Britain is cut in Maine forests, but so great is the amount of lumber required each year for the making of these seemingly insignificant articles that Maine will not be able to supply the raw material much longer. The spools are made of birchwood, and the birch of the Maine forests is the best for the purpose. More than two millions feet of lumber is shipped to Scotland every year for the use of the great thread manufactories there, and almost as much is supplied to domestic manufacturers. The business began in Maine twenty-five years ago, and land that was cut over at that time is now well-covered with young trees, but not for twentyfive years more will this timber be fit to cut.
