YES, THIS WORLD IS MADE UP OF SMALL THINGS!

There are even some "Small Potatoes" in it. As we said some time ago, they have taken root, and still taking root. Have done some business and intend to do more. Honest, fair and square dealing with everybody, irrespective of color, has made business and will make more.

We are not setting the world afire, neither are we giving you gold dollars for 60 cents, nor a dollar's worth of granulated sugar for 75 cents. There is only one way to do that, you know how if you only stop to think. We don't do it, but what we will do is to give you value for value, in other words, Your Money's Worth Every Time. My patrons so far are convinced of this. If you are not one of them suppose you try.

Respectfully,
JACOB F. THOMPSON,

GOLD VIEWS.

Hon. Isidor Raynor, Ex-Mayor Davidson, John K. Cowen and other prominent Baltimoreans have written able letters against the silver theory. All of them predict ruinous consequences to the business interests of the country as a result of its adoption. They are prominent in the Democratic faith.

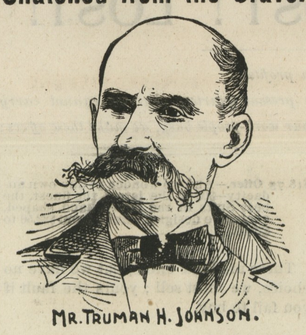

The fog in many minds about the silver question is hard to understand. The dishonest greed of the debtor who wants to pay debts with cheaper money than he borrowed can be understood without difficulty, but not many men are of that class. The soreness of the farmer, who sells his wheat for less than the actual cost, and goes from year to year with depreciating property, declining strength and growing debts is not incomprehensible, though he ought to know that cheap Western land and cheap transportation all over the world have more to do with this trouble than cheap silver.

Intelligent Democrats seriously argue that Cleveland is in league with the Wall street magnates, and free silver is the only thing that will check their rapidly growing influence in the country. It is strange that sensible men can delude themselves in this way, and yet there are many such in this country at the present moment. They complain that monopolies or trusts have grasped everything, including the currency, and that the only way to break them up is to coin silver free, just as gold is coined, or, in other words, to reduce the value of the currency one-half. But if the monopolies and trusts have been able to seize upon everything, what is to prevent them from seizing upon silver, or converting to their own uses the results which flow from free silver coinage? Is a base dollar a sturdier weapon in the hands of the people than a good dollar? Is it any advantage in the struggle against trusts for the people to have the value of their wages reduced one-half, or for them to have to pay two prices for all the necessaries of life? The only advantage worth recounting that can spring from a fluctuating currency is the opportunity to speculate. Nine persons out of every ten will scarcely consider this an advantage, and not one in a thousand ever derives any benefit from speculation; but that is the one advantage which a fluctuating currency offers. But who has a chance to speculate? Certainly, not the masses of the people. They have no money to engage in speculation. If they were to make the value of the dollars only ten cents instead of fifty cents, they would still be unable to speculate. The necessaries of life would cost ten times as much as now, or perhaps twenty times as much, and all the wages they could make by the hardest kind of labor would be consumed in providing for themselves and their families.

The very persons whom they so bitterly oppose—the Wall street magnates—would be the principal beneficiaries of a fluctuating currency. They do not favor a fluctuating currency, because they have learned by a bitter experience that only one person in a thousand is benefited by speculation. They have learned that a sound, honest currency, on a basis that never alters, is the best for everybody, and is the stable bulwark of permanent prosperity. They have the chance to speculate because they have the means at their command, but they do not want such a chance, because they are perfectly familiar with the desperate uncertainties which attend speculation. This free silver movement is the wildest financial fallacy that has ever taken possession of a political party, and if there were any real prospect of its success it would be the most dangerous.

Mr. Whitney has expressed himself to the effect that there is no chance for the gold advocates to accomplish anything at Chicago. But he is yet booked for his best efforts in behalf of the single hard money metal. He will go to Chicago but not as a delegate.
