THE BEST
SPRING MEDICINE

is SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR—don't forget to take it. The Liver gets sluggish during the Winter, just like all nature, and the system becomes choked up by the accumulated waste, which brings on Malaria, Fever and Ague and Rheumatism. You want to wake up your Liver now, but be sure you take SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR to do it. It also regulates the Liver—keeps it properly at work, when your system will be free from poison and the whole body invigorated.

You get THE BEST BLOOD when your system is in A1 condition, and that will only be when the Liver is kept active. Try a Liver Remedy once and note the difference. But take only SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR—it is SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR which makes the difference. Take it in powder or in liquid already prepared, or make a tea of the powder; but take SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR. You'll find the RED Z on every package. Look for it.

CIGARETTES.

"Does cigarette smoking injure the lungs?" asked some one of a leading New York physician. For his answer, the doctor lighted a cigarette, and, inhaling a mouthful of smoke, blew it through the corner of his handkerchief, which he held tightly over his mouth. A dark-brown stain was distinctly visible. "Just such a stain," said the doctor, "is left upon the lungs." If you ever smoke another cigarette, think of the stain you are making.

There is a disease called the cigarette eye, which is regarded as dangerous. A film comes over the eye, appearing and disappearing at intervals. And did you know that boys have been made blind by smoking cigarettes? How would you like to part with your sight, and never again behold the light of day or faces of your friends?

Shall I give you two or three pictures? A writer greatly interested in young people (Josiah Leeds) described a pitiful spectacle which he saw—a pale, woe-begone boy, seemingly less than ten years old, standing at the entrance of an alley, without a hat, his dilapidated trousers very ragged at the knees, his hands in his pockets, shivering with cold, yet whiffing away at a cigarette.

Dr. Hammond says: "I saw in Washington a wretched looking child, scarcely five years old, smoking a cigarette and blowing the smoke from his nostrils. His pale, pinched face was twitching convulsively, his little shoulders were bent, and his whole appearance was that of an old man."—Christian Work.

A Girl in Training.

Take a sponge-bath every morning in water as it runs fron the cold-water faucet. If you begin the practice in warm weather you will not notice the gradual lowered temperature of winter. Rub the skin well with a coarse towel until it is reddened. This will give you a fine sense of freshness, and prevent your catching cold easily.

Exercise for ten minutes at least before breakfast, if strong and hearty, in the way suggested later; if delicate, take five minutes exercise, and the remainder two hours after breakfast or at five o'clock in the afternoon.

Wear no tight clothing of any kind. Tight bands about the limbs interfere with the circulation, change the natural curves of the part into ugly ones, and restrain the muscle unnaturally. About the waist, as a corset, they interfere with the lungs, with the stomach, and with other abdominal organs, and when all these are unnaturally cramped, health and grace are impossible. The most graceful of actresses wear no stays, for they know that perfect ease and grace are impossible in tight clothing.

Also, if you would walk gracefully, never wear tight shoes, French heels, or pointed toes. The graceful Greek girl wore a broad sandal, and had the use of her toes, which our modern girls connot have in the fashionable shoe, but which is essential for a dignified and graceful step.—From Harper's Round Table.

Could do Without Him.

Mr. L., a good-natured German, was the prosperous proprietor of a considerable clothing business in a country town. He had in his employ one John S., whom he had advanced from cash boy to head clerk, and who had for many years been an attache of the store. Since his promotion, John had several times asked for a raise in his salary, and each time his request had been granted. One morning John again appeared at the old merchant's desk with another request for an increase of $10 per month.

"Vy Shon," said Mr. L., "I dink I bays you pooty vell alretty; vat for I bays you any more?"

"Well," replied John, confidently, "I am your principal help here; I have worked you up to a large trade; I know every detail of the business; and, indeed, I think you could not get along without me."

"Ish dot so? exclaimed the German. "Mein Gott! Shon, vot vood I do suppose you vas to die?

"Well," hesitated John," I suppose you would have to get along without me then."

The old man took several whiffs from his big pipe and said nothing. At last he gravely remarked:

"Vell, Shon, I guess you had petter gonsider yourself dead."

Recipe for a Scandalmonger.

Take a grain of falsehood, a handful of runabout, a sprig of herb of backbite, a teaspoonful of "Don't you tell it," six drachms of malice and a few drops of envy. Stir well and let simmer for an hour. Add a little discontent and jealousy, then strain through a bag of misconstruction. Cork it in a bottle of malevolence and hang it on a skein of street-yarn. Shake it occasionally for a few days and it will be ready for use. Take a few drops before going out to walk and yon will succeed.—Selected.

"You say Boggs hated the town and got even with it?"

"That he did."

"How?"

"Organized a brass band."

How He Could Tell.

Some years ago, a man named Greenfield, living in New York State, killed his wife. He was convicted at the first trial, but the case was carried to the court of appeals, which reversed the findings of the lower court. Governor Robinson then ordered a special rehearing to be held at Syracuse. Judge Daniels presided. When an examination of the jurors began, a curious circumstance occurred. One of the jurors declared that he had already prejudged the case. He was asked if he had read the printed accounts in the newspapers. He had not. Neither, he said, had he talked with anyone about it. He was accordingly excused. Judge Daniels, however, was not so easily satisfied. He sent the sheriff before the man left the court-room to ascertain how he could reach a conclusion in a case when he had never read up on it or discussed it. "Why," he, replied, "the lawyers made such darned fools of themselves examining the jurors that I knew the prisoner must be guilty."—San Francisco Areonaut.

Not Afraid of Free Coinage.

The Cumberland, Md., Times sent a reporter out last Saturday, market day, to interview the farmers on the money question, and ascertained that many Allegany Republican farmers are for free coinage of gold and silver.

One Republican was asked by the reporter—"What about the argument that free coinage will drive gold out of circulation?" and received this answer.

"Can I drive a cow out of a field if the cow isn't in the field? There is no gold in circulation, it's hoarded; free coinage will cheapen gold and bring it in circulation. I'm for free silver; I want to try it; it can't worse the condition of the country, and if it does, the same force that put it in vogue, will rise in its might and stamp it out of existence. You will find, young man, that the woods are full of silver Republcans."

An Apology.

A man who has a reputation for being very careless as to his toilet was elected town clerk in one of the small towns in this State some time ago, and the local paper thought it would be a good joke to announce that:

"Mr. Makeup will wash himself before he assumes the office of town clerk."

On reading the notice Mr. Makeup was furious, and demanded a retraction, which the papers accordingly made the following day, in this fashion:

"Mr. Makeup requests us to deny that he will wash himself before he assumes the office of town clerk."

Still Mr. Makeup was not pleased. How hard it is to satisfy some people!

"Well, did you vote?" said Mrs. Spudkins to her daughter, as the latter removed her wraps on election day in 1920.

"Why, mama, I'll tell you how it was," replied the earnest young girl. "A real nice young man — I suppose he was one of the election officers — came up and asked me what ticket I was going to vote, and when I told him he said: 'But surely you are not old enough yet to cast a ballot, miss.' So what could I do but smile sweetly at the compliment and come away?"

Grateful love cannot be restrained; it is like fire in the bones. Our heart would break for love if it could not find a means of expressing itself at once.
