KIBLER'S KORNER

No. 48. October 2, 1935. Vol. 7.

A bachelor is a man who only gets a hundred miles out of a pair of socks.

Act now. Fill your bin with Kibler's Clean Coals, Jack Frost is just around the corner.

We know a lady who always pronounces it "unlese" instead of "useless."

Jones seems subdued. He used to think he was the whole thing. What's happened? He got married.

We've never met a man yet who does not like noodles and pumpkin pie. Have you?

All Men Lie About: The speed of their car. Miles per gallon. Value of property when insured and when taxed. How hard they work.

Wife (waking up): "John I'm sure I heard a mouse squeaking somewhere." Husband (drowsily): "Well, what do you want me to do, get up and oil it?"

You can't know too much, but you can say too much.

C. W. Kibler & Sons. Phone 149

Joe says: What this country needs most is a Big Strong Dose of Horse Sense. The world would be a lot quieter, we believe, if the woman could change gears as quietly as they change their minds. This is the time of the year when we begin to think about that extra blanket. Not many straw hats left anymore.
