

Kent Paid Less Than One Per Cent Of Receipt Tax

Baltimore Retailers Pay Lion's Share

Kent county retailers paid less than one per cent of the total gross receipts taxes collected in Maryland in April and May, figures compiled by Daniel L. Clayland, 3rd, director of the tax division in the State Comptroller's office, revealed. But other counties paid less than Kent. Calvert and Caroline, Charles, Garrett and Howard, Queen Anne's, St. Mary's and Somerset were all further down the scale than Kent, Calvert being the lowest with .25. Kent's contribution was .73.

Baltimore city retailers led with 62.25 per cent while Allegany led the counties with 4.80 per cent, slightly more than Baltimore county's 4.45 per cent.

The analysis showing the percentage and amounts of gross receipt taxes paid by the counties and Baltimore city during April and May follows:

County	Total	P. C.
Allegany	$ 32,434.28	4.80
Anne Arundel	16,080.82	2.38

Total	$675,668.37	100.00

The out-of-State taxpayers represent itinerant sellers, such as hawkers and peddlers, sellers their wares at retail within the State.

Farmers' Day Due At Pioneer Point

Thursday, August 8 Is Set As Date

Pioneer Point Farms, the beautiful Eastern Shore estate of Mrs. John J. Raskob near Centerville, will open its gates to farmers of two states on Thursday, August 8, in the staging of a Maryland and Delaware Farmers' Day. Farm people from both Shores of Maryland and Delaware's three counties are being invited.

Arrangements are being made based upon attendance estimates of approximately two thousand.

Farmers' Day at Pioneer Point is intended to commemorate the tenth birthday of the farm. Originally purchased in 1925, the establishment now comprises five farms operated as one unit.

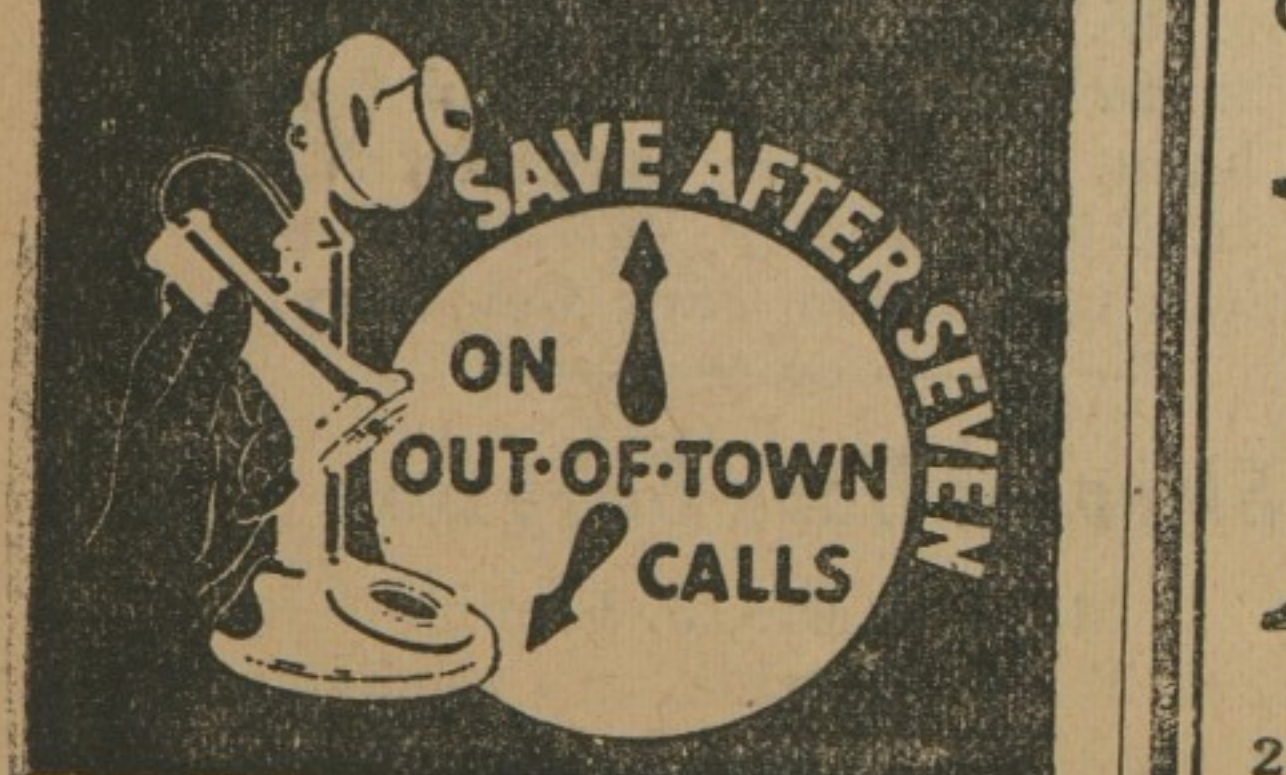

On eighteen hundred acres of land the organization operates a Guernsey herd, a Duroc Jersey hog department producing about one thousand market hogs annually, a poultry department producing black turkeys, white rock chickens and pigeons, a stable of thoroughbreds—brood mares for the production of racing colts, a game preserve for pheasants and quail and diversified farming on thirty-six fields.

All these departments with the full line of machinery used in modern farming will be exhibited and explained in detail to interested farmers who care to attend the event.

"The Egg Dealer and the Fresh Egg Law" will be the subject of a radio talk broadcast by Wade H. Rice, poultry specialist of the Maryland extension service, from Station WBAL, in Baltimore, at 12:15 to 12:30, August 9. At later dates Mr. Rice will discuss this law, passed by the last General Assembly, from the standpoint of its relation to retailers and consumers.
