VALUABLE CAGER

A valuable member of the Washington College cage squad and one who is likely to see plenty of action during the rest of the campaign is Ed Evans, Selbyville, Delaware, boy. Evans, is a southpaw, plays a forward position and is a junior at the local college. Besides his basketball ability he is also one of the Shore school's outstanding baseball and football players.

WASHINGTON LEADS IN STATE CAGE LEAGUE

Three Victories In As Many Starts Give Advantage

Team	W.	L.	1,000
Washington	3	0	1,000
St. John's	1	0	1,000
Loyola	1	1	500
Mt. St. Mary's	1	2	333
Hopkins	1	3	250
Western Md.	0	1	000

Washington College, with three victories in three starts, stands at the top of the Maryland Collegiate Basketball League, sharing the percentage column, however, with St. John's which has been successful in its only start to date.

So far Washington has won over Hopkins, Western Maryland and Mt. St. Mary's, the latter two games on the Chestertown court. St. John's lone victory was at the expense of Hopkins.

Loyola has beaten Mt. St. Mary's and won over Hopkins while Mt. St. Mary's has lost to Washington and Hopkins but won from Loyola. Hopkins' lone win was over Mt. St. Mary's at Emmitsburg in the first game of the league season. Since then the Blue Jays have bowed to Washington, St. John's and Loyola. Western Maryland has played only once and in that game lost to the Shoremen.

Herb's Rollers Victorious

The bowling team representing Herb's Restaurant won the first half championship of the Chestertown Bowling League on Monday night by defeating the N. B. R. team, their nearest rivals.

Herb's rollers were in front by one game over the N. B. R. outfit prior to the Monday meeting. By winning the first two games the ultimate victors clinched the title and made the third contest unnecessary.

WASHINGTON SCORES OVER MT. ST. MARY'S

Locals Win Extra Period Tilt, 29-27

Salter Registers Six Points In Overtime Play

The six points that Jim Salter, Washington College freshman forward, winged through the hoop last Saturday night in the five-minute extra period gave the Shoremen a 29-27 victory over Mt. St. Mary's and their third straight win in the Maryland Collegiate Basketball League.

With the count knotted at 23-23 at the end of the regulation playing time an extra period was required. It was then that Salter, who had played well all evening, really came into his own. He accounted for all of his team's six points in the overtime portion of the game as the Mounts were held to a total of four.

The contest started slowly, featured by close guarding from both teams. At the end of ten minutes the visiting Mountaineers were in the van 8 to 6. Then Washington spurred and finished the half in front by a margin of 12 to 8.

In the second half Washington led most of the way but Mt. St. Mary's closed fast and the score was all even at 23 points each as the gun sounded.

In the extra period Salter completely dominated the play. He opened the scoring by caging a foul shot. Then, as Mt. St. Mary's went ahead on Reilly's score, Salter came back with a double-decker to put Washington in front again by a single point. Mitchell counted two points for Mt. St. Mary's in the final minute and once again Salter came through with a double-decker to regain the lead. This shot was from near mid-court. With twenty seconds remaining as the ball was tossed up at center this same Freshman forward crashed in and got the ball from the tap. He was fouled and made good to give Washington a two-point advantage. Once again the ball went up at center and once again Salter grabbed the sphere as it was tapped. He immediately dropped to the floor with the ball under him, successfully "freezing" it as the final few seconds ticked away.

Kibler Strikes New Combination For Shoremen's Battle At Loyola

From now on the starting combination for the Washington College basketball team is likely to be Salter and Horowitz, forwards; Skipp, center; Wilmot and Huffman, guards. After weeks of experimenting, during which process Wilmot was shifted from forward to guard, Tom Kibler has just about decided that such an arrangement is his best bet.

Horowitz is the newcomer, the only one of the five who hasn't been in the starting combination pretty regularly to date. He is a freshman, a Baltimore youth, and tabbed as a real star of the future. Inexperience and nervousness—the kind which is akin to stage fright—have held Horowitz back. Now he will be given a chance to work these off in actual play.

Washington is working hard in preparation for the game this Saturday with Loyola in Baltimore. The Shore mentors believe that Loyola is the team that will give them the battle for the title. If Washington can gain a win over the Greyhounds at Evergreen this week it will boost the championship stock of the Shoremen like no other victory would.

It has been quite a few years since Washington has come away from Evergreen with a Jesuit scalp to its belt. There have been many close battles in recent campaigns, frequently the Kibler crew would be out in front most of the way. But something has always happened to send the tide of fortune against the lads from the east of the Chesapeake. With four freshmen in the starting combination it may develop that the jinx which has hounded the Shore five for a number of years at Evergreen will be broken.

Tom Kibler, veteran of many cage wars, realizes that his team was fortunate to win over Mt. St. Mary's last week. The Shoremen played their poorest game to date during the current season. And a victory under such conditions is always taken as a good omen. To be able to get a bad game out of its system and win at the same time is something few teams are fortunate enough to do.

What pleased Kibler most with his team in Saturday night's contest was the fight the outfit showed, the way it came back again and again and finally finished on top.

It is expected that a large crowd of rooters, students, alumni and others interested in the college, will follow the team to Baltimore on Saturday. The Loyola contests have always been among the biggest drawing cards on the Washington schedule and annually several hundred Shore supporters make the trip to Baltimore for the contest there.

This year the Baltimore Chapter of the Washington College Alumni Association has arranged a cabaret dance, to be held at the Hotel Emerson, following the game. College heads, the athletic department personnel and the cage squad will be guests of honor at the affair.

ASCO FIVE BEATEN BY DOVER GUARD QUINTET

The Ascots, managed by Foster Brown, took their second licking of the current basketball campaign from the Dover National Guard five on Monday night, bowing on the local Armory Court by a score of 46 to 40.

Gonzales Heads Centreville Card

Henry Gonzales, Kent boxer, goes back into a main bout role at the Centreville Armory Friday night when he faces Earl Norwood, New York 145-pounder, in the wind-up of the Eastern Shore Athletic Club card. This bout will share spotlight honors with the wrestling bout between Swede Garbo and Wild Bill Park.

Another Kent boy is on the Centreville card this week in the person of Kid Smith, of Betterton. He will battle Kid Ewing, of Cordova, in the opening four round bout.

James Rhodes, 170 pounds, of Hurlock, faces Joe Rond, another 170-pounder from Baltimore, in a four round bout while the semi-windup will bring together Reddy Shreeves, of Onley, Va., and Joe DeCarlo, of Baltimore. These boys weigh in around 135 pounds.

YOUR SPORTS

And—MINE

By H. S. ARE

A few more games like the Washington-Mt. St. Mary's thriller of last Saturday evening and basketball will have regained its old-time popularity locally. The average fan doesn't care particularly about a fine exhibition of playing. He likes a close contest, one with a hair-raising finish.

Basketball does seem to be on the upgrade after a couple of years of languishing in the depths. There is more interest than at anytime in the past couple of seasons. And, best of all, that interest seems to be steadily increasing.

The prospective formation of a four-team league among Chestertown players should give further impetus to this revival of interest in the cage sport.

Neither Washington College or Mt. St. Mary's was at its best in the game here last Saturday. From a strictly scientific standpoint the game was one of the poorest exhibitions of the year. The one bright spot in it as far as the Shoremen were concerned is the fact that they had the stuff to keep trying and eventually win out.

It was Washington's worst game to date. The Shoremen were far off in their shooting, missing enough easy shots to have won the game by a dozen points. The passing of the locals was even worse than their shooting. Mt. St. Mary's, too, was faulty in the same departments, but not as glaringly so as Washington.

The defensive work of both teams was of high order, however, and that might have had some bearing on the sloppy work otherwise.

Washington still has the toughest part of its league schedule to play. Loyola and St. John's are conceded to be the strongest league foes the Shoremen will have to play. Two games remain with each.

Mt. St. Mary's will be hard, very hard, to take on the Emmitsburg court and Western Maryland, if it improves as it should, will be another tough spot for the Shoremen at Westminster.

The contest with Loyola in Baltimore on Saturday of this week catches the eye as one of the high spots of the league season. The Shoremen and the Greyhounds have ever been bitter foes on the basketball court and where the two teams are favored to top the league standing the rivalry should be intense.

Washington used to take the Jesuits into camp with regularity when the teams played at the 104th Regiment Armory. But since the Evergreen gymnasium has been the site of the contests Washington's victories have been few and far between. This "new deal" in athletics, which seems to have struck the college, may see a turn of the tide of fortunes. Perhaps Washington will be able to take the measure of Loyola this time.

The four-team cage league in Chestertown, which seems to be in the process of formation, should afford a lot of sport and amusement for six weeks this winter. Basketball is a great sport for the player and almost as great for the spectator.

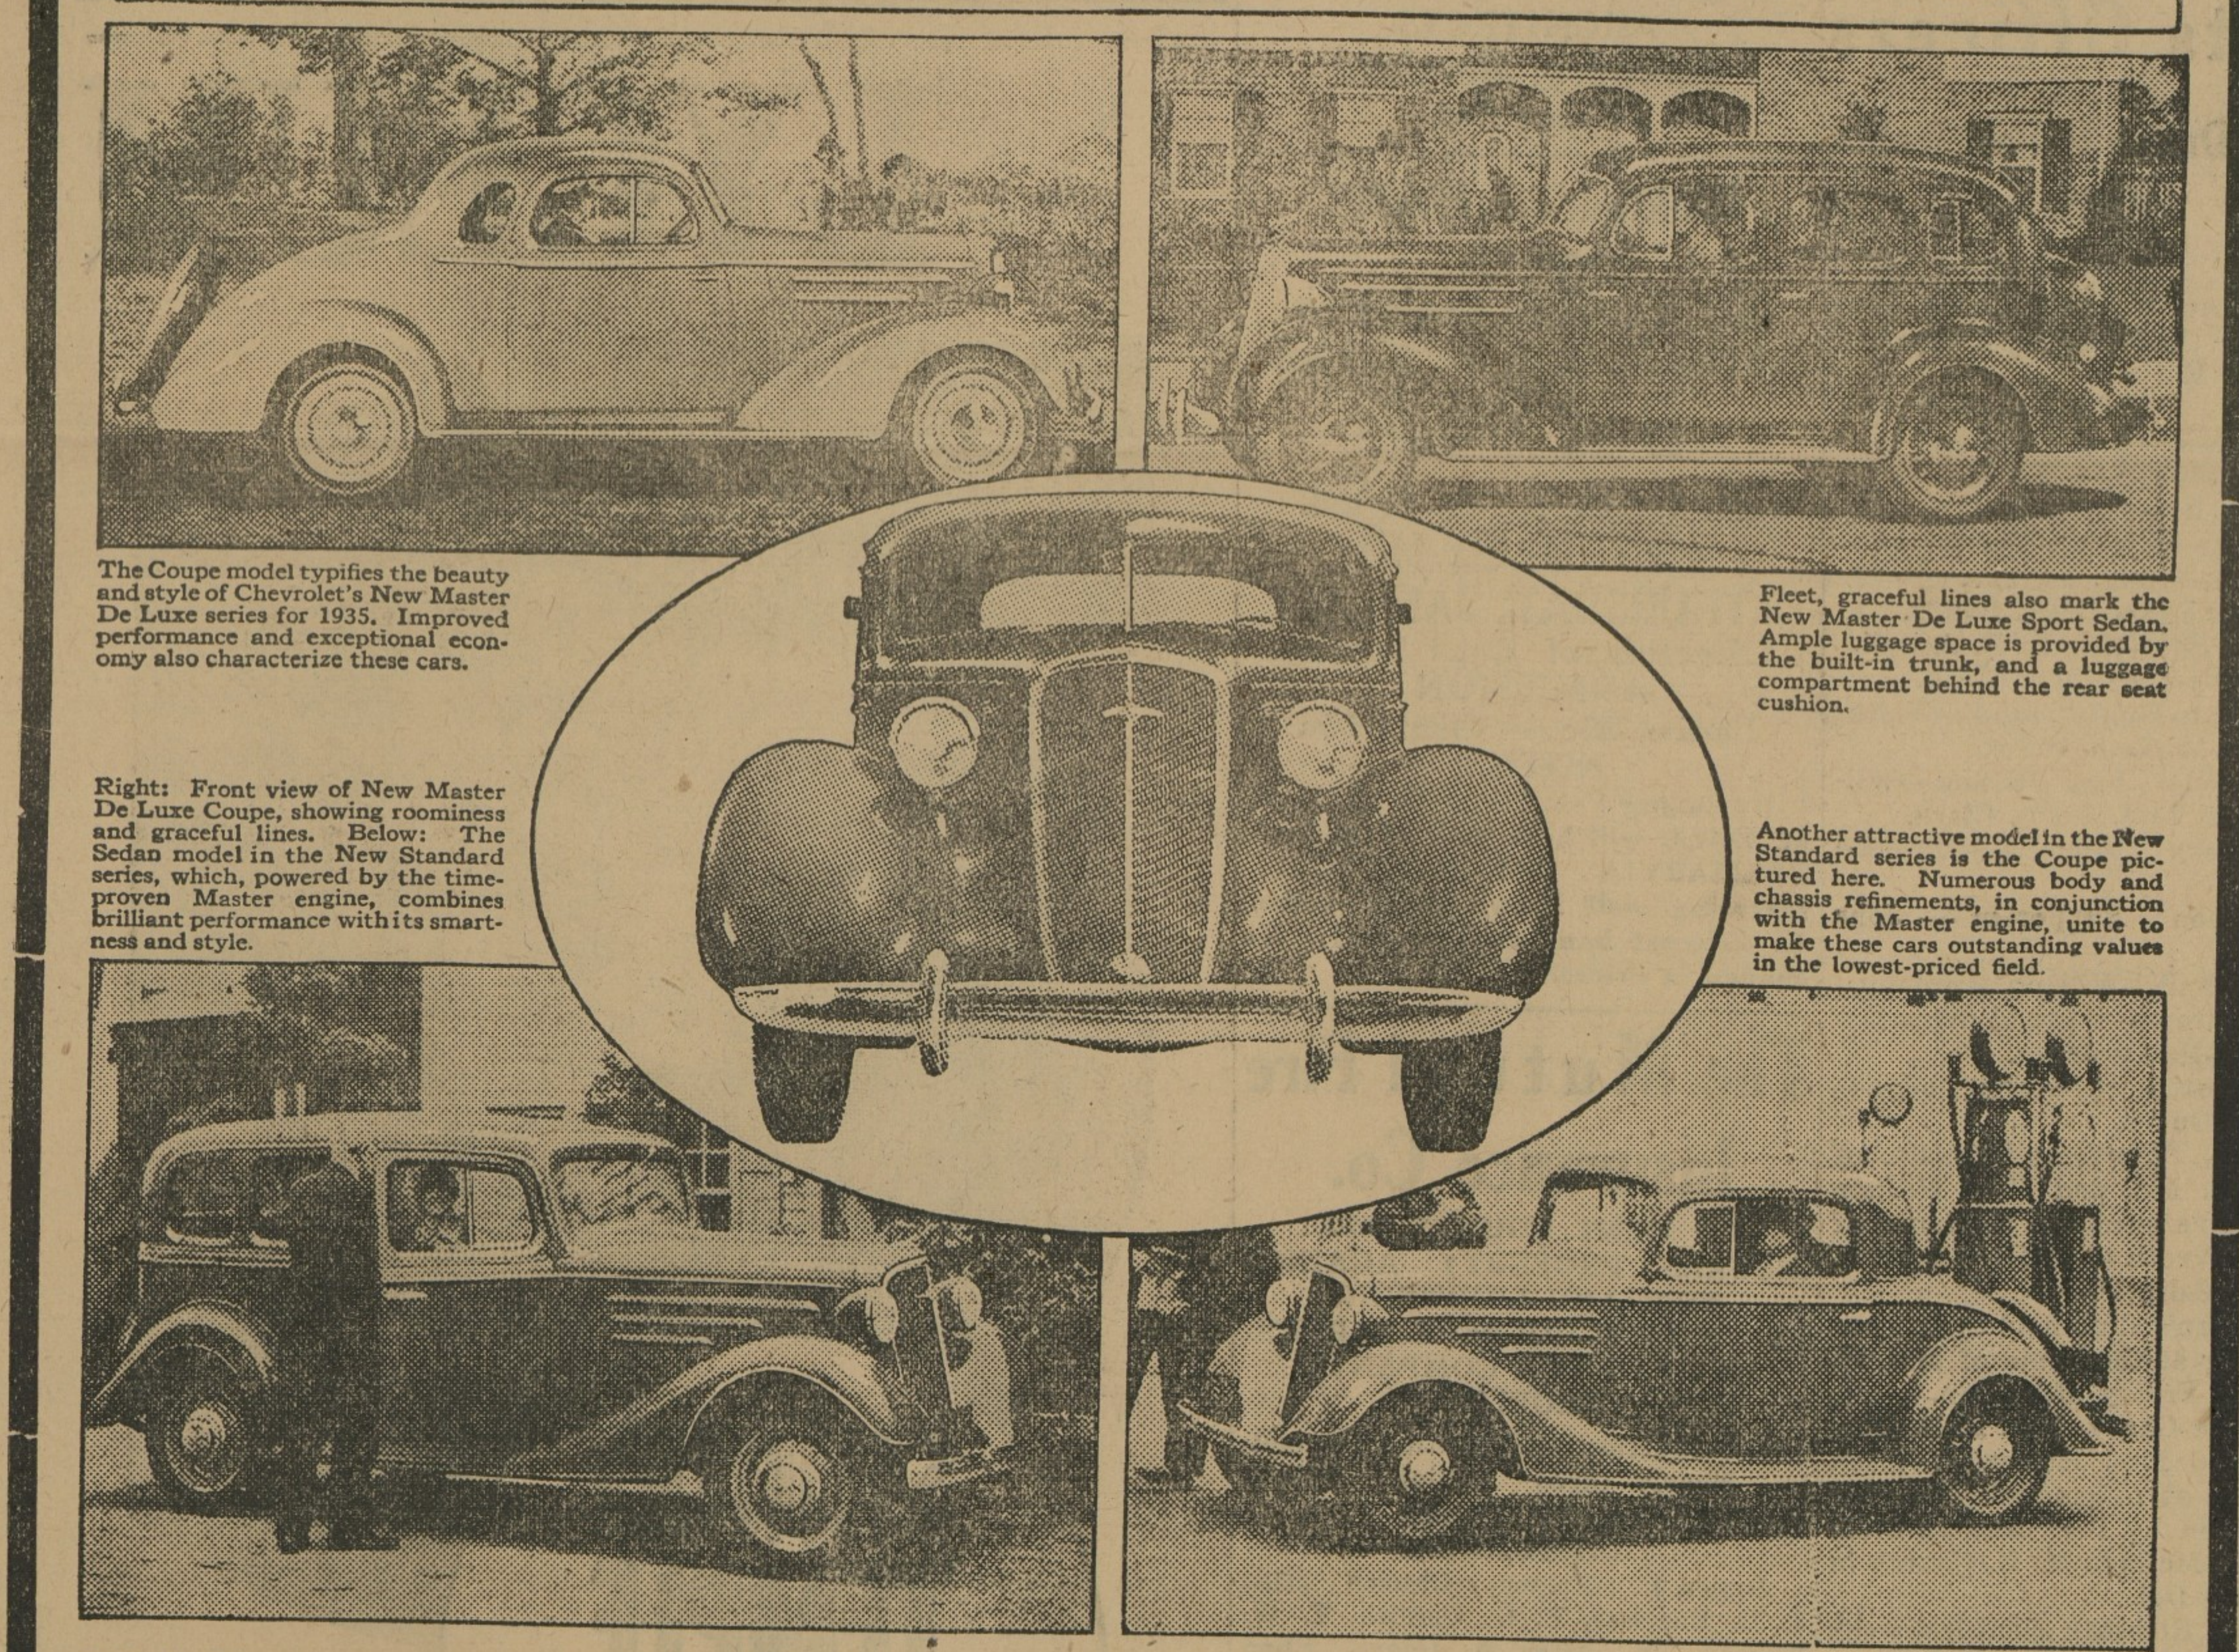

We would offer a word of caution to those forming the new organization. Make a set of rules and regulations for the league and stick to them regardless of whose toes are tread upon.

First the teams should turn in player lists, each outfit not to exceed a squad of ten. To these squads the teams would have to stick throughout the season. There would be no strengthening, to stacking up for particular games.

Playing regulations as to substitutions, time of contests, officials and the like should be clearly understood and arranged before the league opens.

A basketball league can afford a lot of pleasure for a lot of people the remainder of this winter if the thing is operated properly. But to have a slipshod affair, with each outfit going its own way, would make for misunderstandings and arguments that would spoil the whole affair.

Chevrolet Announces Two New Lines for 1935

The Coupe model typifies the beauty and style of Chevrolet's New Master De Luxe series for 1935. Improved performance and exceptional economy also characterize these cars.

Fleet, graceful lines also mark the New Master De Luxe Sport Sedan. Ample luggage space is provided by the built-in trunk, and a luggage compartment behind the rear seat cushion.

Right: Front view of New Master De Luxe Coupe, showing roominess and graceful lines. Below: The Sedan model in the New Standard series, which, powered by the time-proven Master engine, combines brilliant performance with its smartness and style.

Another attractive model in the New Standard series is the Coupe pictured here. Numerous body and chassis refinements, in conjunction with the Master engine, unite to make these cars outstanding values in the lowest-priced field.

Typical of Chevrolet's two new lines of cars are the models illustrated here. The Master De Luxe series reveals strong emphasis on beauty and style. Mechanically, the Master De Luxe series and the New Standard series have much in common, including the Master engine, in which numerous refinements have been made to enhance performance, durability and economy. As these pictures reveal, the New Master De Luxe departs distinctly from previous Chevrolets in the striking advance which has been made in body design and trim.
