CHESTERTOWN ELEMENTARY
by Naomi Russell
There has been a variety of activities in the Chestertown Elementary School during the past two weeks. The tiny tots in Miss Hoyle's room have been studying about the Dutch. The boys have had bread boards in the shape of a fish. They sure their mothers will find the boards very handy.

The kiddies of the Third Grade are studying the question of "How Our Community helps to provide us with clothing." If the merchants would like to see their stores reproduced in their third grade room and see if they could recognize some of their merchandise in their own store windows. As they found no clothing material produced in our own state or county, they traveled away from home and just lately have been down south in the cotton fields. You should see the cotton fields they made on their sand table. Wool came in for another trip to the West where sheep are raised by the thousands. Each product was traced from the beginning until we wear the finished article of clothing. They are still working on the cotton clothing, learning how they can take care of their clothes made from this product.

The Fourth Grade, in geography, have been visiting the cotton lands of the South. This way of studying is almost as good as taking the trip. The Fifth Grade are quite proud of having 100 per cent in attendance all of the past week. They are trying to get 100 per cent for this week. This is a fine record and we all hope they will keep it up.

I suppose you have heard about our "Magazine Race." The contest is new over, but the seventh grade had the honor of winning. It was very close, the sixth grade having 8 subscriptions and the seventh grade 60 subscriptions. On the last day of the contest the two grades were in an uproar as to the outcome of the race. Every time one side brought in another subscription there was cheering and yelling. Finally when all subscriptions were in each grade own team too. Betty Beck, the business manager, sold the most subscriptions, this number being 11. Mary Emma Chaires came second with 9 sales. The highest in the 6th grade and the 3rd grade in line, was Alan Harris who sold 8 subscriptions. Betty Beck will receive the $2.50 award for selling the most subscriptions. She is almost sorry it came at this time because she has decided to do without candy for a while. The sixth grade were very good sports after their failure to win. We are now sure of good athletic equipment and hope it will enable us to win or Field Day.
