THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

HON. DAVID LEWIS is making a very active campaign for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator as evidenced by his political advertisement in this issue.

THE unusual amount of rain during the past ten days has delayed the threshing of wheat in all sections of the county. In some places the wheat has been blown out of the shocks and scattered over the fields. A week of dry, hot weather will do much to enable the farmer to harvest his principal crop and to improve business conditions throughout the county. A good wheat crop at the present time is as important a factor to Kent County as a good cotton crop is to the South. If it is possible to thresh the present crop all indications point to a very good yield of wheat and straw.

ACCORDING to information gathered by the American Legion, the war-maimed ex-service man is receiving outrageous treatment at the hands of the present administration. The government has failed to provide sufficient hospitals for those injured in the late war and it has been necesary to send these patients to private and public hospitals at a contract price of so much for each patient. It is charged, and admitted in some cases, that these private hospitals have profited in an exorbintant manner from these patients. Especially those who were mentally impaired during the recent war have been the victims of this ill-treatment. If this information is correct it is certainly a serious reflection on our government. A country as powerful and rich as ours certainly should see that those who were injured, and in many cases impaired for life, receive the best treatment and medical attention possible. Although the war is long over, the injured and mentally unbalanced ex-soldier still lives as an evidence of the sacrifice made that this country might remain as it is today. It is more than a moral debt that we owe to these injured ex-soldiers to give them every chance to recover that which they sacrificed for us and no excuse is admissable for a failure to give proper care to the injured ex-soldier.

Glorious Fourth By The Debaters' Club At Steamboat Wharf

The Debators' Club, which congregates and holds all its meetings at the steamboat wharf of the M. D. & Va., is a very large body, which consists of but one officer, he be either self-appointed or just placed as president by some unknown person or persons.

The object of this club is to attend to everybody's business except their own, listen to all gossip of its members and if anyone tells the truth he is referred to Rule No. 1, or such rules as can be applied to his particular case.

These rules are hung out daily, all framed up, upon arrival of the B. S. Ford, and after the steamer leaves the business meeting follows.

The club consists at present of but one officer, who acts as president and passes on all subjects under debate, but recently there has been some very rash statements made by the retiring president, that he had turned over to the present president the sum of $48, together with all the archives of the club. The archives were never disputed, but the $48 has been the discussion for a long period and claimed by the present president that the retiring president was never worth even 48 cents.

This discussion reached the point that the ex-president was instructed to buy the cream for the 4th, and if he did not pay the bill the present president would, but a Good Samaritan took pity on the club members, sent a gallon freezer down to the wharf all iced up nicely.

All hands became overheated all of a sudden; one member opened up the freezer, another rushed to his home and brought down saucers, spoons and a knife to cut up the blocks of cream and one member prepared the table, consisting of a camp stool, with a board over same for a table.

Coats were taken off, mouths all set, but the cream was found to be rather hard. Wrappers were taken off until the real article was reached, when low and behold one of the members shouted, well I'll be d——d, it's a brick.

Laughter upon laughter followed, tears rolled down their cheeks, handkerchiefs were scarce, so they used their hands and coat sleeves to wipe away the tears of laughter.

It was a big joke on the club and highly enjoyed by all, but not eaten!

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT

DAVID J. LEWIS,

Candidate For U. S. Senate

"He Has Stamped 'Made in Maryland' on the Parcel Post."—Sun.

CONGRESSMAN TALBOTT: I have been in these halls for thirty-six years. In all that time I have not known a man to go as fast or go so far as David. If I were to talk a week, I could hardly say more of one of the most remarkable men Maryland has ever produced.

HON. JOHN WALTER SMITH: He is as sincere as sunshine. Call him dreamer . . . or what you will, his dreams come true . . . (he) conquers monstrous difficulties. (1914.)

SENATOR UNDERWOOD: Mr. Lewis came to Congress especially equipped on postal and transportation subjects and was ready when the occasion called. I suggested to Mr. Lewis that he prepare a parcel post section. Mr. Lewis then prepared the provision and it was adopted by the House.

BRYAN, W. J.: If you want to find out where the people will be tomorrow, see where Lewis is today. He is a leader who thinks with the people.

CONGRESSMAN McCOY (now Chief Justice Supreme Court, D. C.): When Lewis begins to speak, members belonging to both parties come flocking in from the smoking rooms and lobbies. There is no mistaking what this means. They want to hear Mr. Lewis. Why? Because they know he has ability of a high order; that his conscientious industry takes him to the bottom of every question which he investigates. In short, the members of the House have absolute confidence in him. I believe it can be said without fair contradiction that had it not been for Mr. Lewis the parcel post system would not have been adopted when it was. His achievement was due to the qualities of which I have spoken.

BALTIMORE SUN: The Sixth district has become famous through his (Lewis') constructive work and it has shared in the glory of his achievements. . . . Mr. Lewis is a Democrat, but he is something more—he is an American who conferred a great practical benefit on other Americans. The parcel post carries Lewis' name to millions of . . . homes throughout the United States. This Congressman has something to show the people as the result of his being sent to Washington. He does not come back with empty hands simply stained with politics—as so many Congressmen do.
