Isn't It Awful?

You surely know by this time that a cream separator may even double your dairy profits, and make the work easier, too. Then why not have one?

Just take one good look at these pictures—and then a good look at your wife. The upper picture shows the simple bowl of the Dairy Tubular Separator—washed clean in one to three minutes. The other picture shows the actual insides of one of the many styles of complicated bowls used in all other separators. Which are you going to ask your wife to wash? We'll be pleased to take a Tubular apart for you. Bring your wife to see it.

SEA AND LAND.

The Way They Meet and Clash and Finally Harmonize.

In "The Wonderful Adventures of Nils," translated from the Swedish of Selma Lagerlof by Velma Swanston Howard, is the following pretty description of how sea and land meet:

You see that sea and land can meet in many different ways. In many places the land comes down toward the sea with flat, tarred meadows, and the sea meets the land with flying sand, which piles up in mounds and drifts. It appears as though they both disliked each other so much that they only wished to show the poorest they possessed. But it can also happen that when the land comes toward the sea it raises a wall of hills in front of it, as though the sea were something dangerous. When the land does this, the sea comes up to it with fiery wrath and beats and roars and lashes against the rocks and looks as if it would tear the land hill to pieces.

But in Heklinge it is altogether different when sea and land meet. There the land breaks itself up into points and islands and islets, and the sea divides itself into fords and bays and sounds, and it is perhaps this which makes it look as if they must meet in happiness and harmony.

Think now first and foremost of the sea! Far out it lies desolate and empty and big and has nothing else to do but to roll its white horses from the coast toward the land it happens across the first obstacle. This it immediately overpowers, tears away everything green and makes it as gray as itself. Then it comes to another obstacle. With this it does the same thing. And still another—yes, the same thing happens to this also. It is stripped and plundered as if it had fallen into robbers' hands. Then the obstacles come nearer and nearer together, and then the sea must understand that the land sends toward it her littlest children in order to move to play. It also becomes more friendly the farther in it comes, rolls its waves less high, moderates its storms, lets the green things stay in cracks and crevices, separates itself into small sounds and inlets and becomes at last so harmless in the land that little boats dare venture out upon it. It certainly cannot recognize itself, so mild and friendly has it grown.

ONE TOUCH OF NATURE.

A Display of Courtesy "in Memory of Old Virginia."

All the seats were taken in the car which I entered one morning in early April. An old colored man sat next the door. It is not often in these days that I see that type of black man. I used to see that kind on the old Virginia plantation, where his wife, "Uncle Lige" or "Uncle Sambo" to all the household. His days were devoted to useful toil and his evenings to his banjo and the old plantation melodies that no one can ever sing again as musically as they were sung then.

"Take this seat, mistis," he said, rising promptly. "Mistis" sounded very "homey" and pleasant to me. It had been so long since I was "mistis" to anybody.

"Thank you, uncle," said I. "Keep your seat. I would just as lief stand." "Scuse me, please, mistis, but 'tain't fitten for you to stand, you must sit," he admonished respectfully.

I took the seat, thanking him for his courtesy. Soon a departing passenger left a vacancy.

"There is a seat for you," I said to the old man.

"Between the ladies, ma'am?" He hesitated.

"Yes," I said.

He bowed apologetically to right and left and took the vacant place. Just before leaving the car I slipped a silver piece into his hand, saying, "Uncle, get you for me, you must sit." "In memory of old Virginia."

"Thank you, mistis," he said, opening his hand to look at the little gift and then closing it. I left the car with a sunny feeling in my heart because of the chance meeting, but with no thought that I should ever again hear of my old Virginia.

That afternoon I received a bunch of about a dozen of the same old man's old colored man—for the tall lady with a long blue coat and white hair in memory of old Virginia on dem old time days."—Lippincott's Magazine.

A Distinction Without a Difference. Five-year-old Deborah had been invited to take luncheon at a restaurant with Miss K.

"Do you like cocoa?" she was asked. "When the answer was 'Yes,' the beverage was duly brought, but remained unattended.

"At last Miss K. said, 'Why don't you drink your cocoa, Deborah, when you said you wanted it?'"

"I didn't say I wanted it," replied the child politely. "I only said that I liked it."—Woman's Home Companion.

Naturally. Towne—Sleep well? Stubbs—Like a top—never lose a wink.

"Great Scott! What do you take?" "An alarm clock to my room and then set the alarm for half an hour after I go to bed. As soon as it rings I naturally roll over and go to sleep!"—Pek-Me-Up.

Helping Him Out. Borrower—I say, old man, I wish you would help me out today.

Business—Haven't time to do it myself, but I'll call the porter. John, open the door and help the gentleman out.—Chicago News.

A KING'S CARRIAGE.

Old Fashioned and Elaborate Vehicle Used in England.

England's state carriage is one of the most costly and splendid in the world. It was built in 1761 at a cost of $30,000 on the occasion of the marriage of George III, and has ever since carried the English kings and queens on all high state occasions. Sir William Chambers designed the vehicle, which weighs four tons.

Despite its many years' service its great wheels, gear and body are said to be as sound as when built, and it looks as if it would go on forever. Steel springs were unknown when the coach was built, and its ponderous yet frail, luxurious body is suspended on leather braces, not unlike those of the old Concord stagecoaches of America. Its balance is so perfect that a touch of the finger is enough to set the body swinging on the big creaking straps which bear the car and its gilded trappings supporting the driver's seat and hammer cloth. The length of the vehicle is twenty-four feet, and it is

The elaborate carvings cost more than the carriage proper, the coach builder's bill having been less than $30,000, while that of the carver was about $14,000. Something of the character of the ornamentation may be guessed from the fact that the artist Cipriani received $1,500 for painting the panels and that the late maker's charge was about $4,000. The satin interior of the carriage being most elaborately upholstered.

The preparation of the royal equipage for state occasions is a real sight. Six pairs of milk white horses from the royal stud are always used, and all wear false tails. The coachman, in powder and curls, mounts his seat with the aid of a ladder, but does not really drive, his position on the horse and the grooms who walk beside them being in command of the team.—Philadelphia Press.

YOUNG COCONUTS.

The Trick of Opening Them as Practiced by the Tahitians.

"Husking a coconut is one of the simplest looking operations in the world, but I have not seen the white man who could do it effectively," writes Beatrice Grimshaw in her book, "In the Strange South Seas." Every native of Tahiti is apparently born with the trick.

A stick is sharply pointed at both ends, and one end is firmly set in the ground. The nut is then taken in the hands and struck with a hitting and about the same shape and size as the brown old nuts that go by ship to England and America, but much younger and more tender, for only the smallest of the old nuts, which are not wanted in the islands for copra making, are generally exported.

A large knife is used to crack the top of the nut all around, like a draft of pure water, slightly sweet and just a little aerated, if the nut has been plucked at the right stage.

There is no pleasanter or more refreshing drink in the world, and this is not the least likeness to the "milk" contained in the coconuts of commerce. No native would drink from old nuts for fear of illness, as they are considered both unpalatable and unwholesome. Only the milk of half-grown nuts is used for drinking, and even these will sometimes hold a couple of pinits of liquid.

The water of the young coconut is food and drink in one, having much nourishing matter held in solution. On many a long day of hot and weary travel I had cause to bless the refreshing and restoring powers of heaven's best gift to man in the tropics, the never failing coconut.

Settled the Ownership. "There was a quaint old judge who used to live in the Pine Tree State," said a lawyer. "One of his decisions gained him the title of the 'Maiden Solomon.' Two women came before this magistrate, the first, fat pullet, each declaring that it belonged to herself. The magistrate from his high seat frowned heavily at the first woman.

"Does this pullet belong to Mrs. Jones?" he asked. "No, it don't," she replied. Then he turned to the other woman. "Does this pullet belong to Mrs. Smith?" "It certainly does not," the second woman replied.

"The pullet," the magistrate then decreed, "does not belong to Mrs. Jones, nor does it belong to Mrs. Smith. The pullet is mine. Janitor, take it round to the house and give it to my cook."

A Great Change. First Gentleman (entering the apartment of second gentleman)—About a year ago you challenged me to fight a duel. Second Gentleman (sternly)—I did, sir. First Gentleman—And I told you that I had just got married and I did not care to risk my life at any hazard. Second Gentleman (haughtily)—I remember, sir. First Gentleman (tearfully)—Well, my feelings have changed. Any time you want to fight let me know.—Human Life.

Beneficial Exercise. "Are you taking any exercise for your health?" asked the wolf of the fox.

"Oh, yes," responded the latter, "and I am improving rapidly! I am taking part in an amateur country club fox hunt."—Baltimore American.
