The wedding of Mr. Hubard Pearce Ringgold, a native of Chestertown, but now in the Baltimore law library, and Miss Ellen Priscilla Moore, daughter of Mr. Wm. Hanson Moore, will take place in St. John's P. E. Church, Baltimore, Dec. 16, 1908.

The consulting engineers on the new water supply system for Baltimore are John R. vandergriff, of Providence, R. I., and Frederic P. Stevens, of Boston. It was decided that each should be paid a retainer of $2500 a year and a salary of $1000 for each day engaged in work.

Jess, the 14-year-old son of Mr. A. O. Jones, employed on Mr. Walter Morris' dairy farm, was treated pretty roughly by a bull a few days ago. He was tossed in the air by the animal and in his fall dislocated his shoulder. Dr. Simmons attended the patient.

Twelve of the leading packers of Baltimore have formed a corporation, to be known as the Appert Club. It is the purpose of the Appert Club to arrange with farmers the headquarters of all streams adjacent to the Baltimore market to increase their acreage in tomatoes, beans, small fruits and all products which can be successfully and profitably canned.

To this end they will supply a fleet of motorboats capable of reaching shallow points. These boats when once loaded will head directly for the point of consumption and will beat the time of the regular steamers by many hours. Arrangements with the planters will be made in advance so that no delay will be caused in the delivery of the produce. It is estimated that vegetables and fruit are ready for use.

By this policy they expect to obtain at least an additional acre of tomatoes next season and fully half as much, if not more, of peas. The growers will have little or no hauling, as they will erect wires in any locality where the promised shipment justifies it.

Mr. H. A. Waidner, of William Numm & Sons, is the president, Charles J. Brooks is vice-president and John R. Baines secretary. Five additional packers will be chosen as the board of directors, and the board the officers will also be members.

The case of Ernest L. Moore, of Elkton, against the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington Railroad, for $5,000 damages for his arrest and imprisonment at the railroad station at Havre de Grace in March, 1907, by one of the regular officers was given to the jury at Easton Friday afternoon. A verdict for the plaintiff for $4,500 was rendered after deliberation for an hour and a half. This is one of the cases removed from Kent, the first man being given a verdict of $1,000 and the second one $500.

In the case of East Crawford, of Elkton, for similar damages, the plaintiff was awarded $1,500 damages.

A practical illustration of what a quarantine means in this State was experienced at Massesey this week when a cartload of hay was not allowed to go to Philadelphia.

The News has received the following inquiry from Judge Advocate J. E. Smith of Wilmington, Del., so that if any reader can enlighten the inquirer he will do so. It says:

"I am trying to find the whereabouts, if alive, of one Julius (or Jules) Raybold, a musician, who was in Wilmington, Delaware, and was afterwards located in Harrington and Millsboro, and has since disappeared. He was located in Chestertown, with his wife and crippled daughter, at the residence of Mrs. J. H. Nichols, on Spring avenue. I would be very much obliged to you if you can put me in touch with the facts surrounding this case, and if he is alive, his address. If you know it, and if it is safe to give it, please advise me of it, and I will be glad to pay you for the information."

Mr. CLIFTON L. JARRELL and family visited Mr. J.'s parents at Ridgely last week. Mr. Jarrell says the distinguishing feature of the town at the time—sending it is so far ahead of Chestertown in appearance is its sidewalks. These are of asphalt and look like solid marble. The cost for the whole town was about $9,000, all of which was paid by the property owners. The increased value of the property justified the citizens in making even this large expenditure. In most towns the owners of property are at the expense of sidewalks whether of brick or stone. The crossings of course are paid by the town. Ridgely yet has the sort of old dirt streets that Chestertown is so well acquainted with.

The congregation at Wesley Chapel, Elksville, have decided to build a hall on the church property and foundations for same have already been put in place. Festivals and entertainments will be held in this hall. Its cost will be about $450. A building of this kind is certainly a valuable and convenient addition.

CARRIERS in Chestertown hauled over 200 tons of soft coal one day this week and they carried it a half mile from the wharf.

POKE, dressed, has been selling $7 per hundred in Chestertown this week.

MR. JOHN CLENNANIEL, the well-known cattle man of Kent, says there are some people in this county who are affected with "foot and mouth" disease.

"I got it," said he, "got what?" asked his neighbor. "Oh, go away! It's only cattle that has that." "Well, I got it all right, he said, "I got darned much and he's all the time kicking!"

THE De Rue Brothers minstrels showed in Stam's Hall Tuesday night to a crowded house. The band was one of the best ever in town while the performance delighted the large audience. The charming 15-year-old interactor was fine while other features were up to the standard. De Rue Bros. will receive a warm welcome upon their return here.

TUESDAY, Dec. 1st, the mercury registered over 70° and the following day it was down to 30°.

OYSTERS are plentiful.
