JUNE IN KENT.

[Written for the TRANSCRIPT.]

Warm sunlight softly filters through,
The dusk of fruit trees close a-row,
Washes with gold the open view,
And sprinkles on the green fallow.

Where are there fairer fields to see,
Than these wide sloping fields of Kent,
Where sun and rain come frequently,
And dew is dawn by dawn besprent

O'er leagues of wheat and roods of grass,
And emerald hedges clipped and clean,
From Chester to the Sassafras
Acres untilled are far between.

Here season long the farmer goes,
Trampling the path to plenty's lair,
Down gleaming green tomato rows—
Through orchards of the peach and pear.

And all along the verdurous miles,
Near homes of thrift and far-seeing,
Are golden stacks that harvest piles,
And tracts where corn is strengthening.

Here carols gay are lightly trilled
From nc.ared nooks where brown bees fare;
White wandering roads are wild flower filled
And swept by clover sweetened air.

Who here would come at leisure's call
Might hold the heart's content in fee,
And roaming where the timothy's tall,
Dreaming might wake in Arcady.

When skies are full of opaline haze
And breezes blow the blue green oats;
And laborers singing till the maize
From morn to eve, and all bird throats

Are slender Panic pipes become;
When cows bite lawns where sun is laid,
And fleecy flocks lie down where some
Old tree doth pitch a tent of shade.

An idle sense far-straying bids
A glimpse of those sweet times sylvan,
When shepherd life looked out neath lids
Of peace on slopes Sicilian.

For here in Kent beneath the trees
Old crooked care's unbent,
Led out and stretched at shaded ease,
And charmed from all lament.

The ninth annual session of the State Camp of Maryland, Patriotic Order Sons of America, will convene at Rock Hall August 9 and continue in session two days. Delegates from various sections of the state will leave Baltimore on Monday afternoon at 2.30 by steamer. The body this year will consist of about 140 officers and delegates, and a full attendance is expected.

The order has been very prosperous throughout the state during the year, the gain in membership having been about 600, making the total membership of the 51 camps in the state nearly 4,000, which represents a gain of 300 per cent, during the eight years' existence of the state organization. The strongholds of the order are Baltimore city, the Eastern Shore and Carroll county, but camps are becoming pretty generally distributed over the northern tier of counties.

The chief state officers are: President William James Heaps, Baltimore; vice president, William J. Carter, Baltimore; master of forms, Dr. W. G. Coppage, Church Hill; treasurer, James W. Lidard, Baltimore; secretary, P. B. Englar, Taneytown. These officers, with nine of lesser importance, will be filled by election on Tuesday afternoon, August 9.

The business of the sessions will be largely routine, pertaining to the work of the order. National Secretary F. E. Stees, of Philadelphia, will likely be present, as well as National Master of Forms William E. Valliant, of Laurel, Del., and Past National President Edward A. Doan, of New York city.
