Important News for Anyone.

The time has come that every person should know how to take care of their eyes and not to buy glasses from peddlers or so-called traveling Opticians who have no right to ruin people's eyes. To prevent this I will advise you not to wait until some peddler will come around to sell you a pair of glasses. You will do justice to your eyes by coming to Chestertown to have your EYES TESTED and GLASSES fitted to the eyes and not the eyes to the glasses.

Respectfully,
A. LEVINE.

LETTER FROM OLD KRISS.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 23rd, 1904.

Dear boys and girls of Cecil, Kent and Queen Anne's counties:—I have read the letters forwarded to me through the TRANSCRIPT last week, and have noted with care all their contents, and I tell you that is saying a great deal for I find that it will take a pretty big pack to carry all that you have asked for in your letters. However, I'll do my best, but I shall have to visit some of you on Saturday night while I shall endeavor to come to the homes of others on Sunday night. There are so many nice boys and girls in these three counties that I do not want to miss a single one, and as I have prepared a lot of things for this Christmas, I think I shall be able to supply most of your wants. So be good children; go to bed early tonight so you won't disturb my reindeer when they come prancing and dancing around your house tops for I am coming in my big sleigh this year. One little boy in your town said I would come in a flying machine this year, but it got broke at the St. Louis Fair, and that other fellow hasn't finished his yet and automobiles are too high for country use yet, so I'll be there in my sleigh. If any boy or girl is awake when I come around I won't leave them a thing. I'll reach Chestertown to-morrow, (Saturday) evening at 7 o'clock. Be good boys and girls.

Your old friend, KRISS.

Letters to Old Kriss.

Millington, Md., Dec. 17, 1904.

Dear Old Kriss—I am a little boy seven years old, and thought I would write to you and tell you what I would like you to bring me. I want a stocking cap, music box and some nice games, and I have a sister. She says bring her somthing nice. Don't forget to bring papa and mama something nice too. Please bring me some candy, nuts and fruits. I will close, from your little friend,

Thomas Edward Turner.

Millington, Md., Dec. 17, 1904.

Dear Old Kriss—Will you please bring me a pair of gum boots, a bair of gloves, a pair of skates, a upright engine, a magic lantern. My little brother wants a pair of gum boots. Yours truly,

John Percy Turner.

CAME OVER TO DO KENT UP.

The Cream of Queen Anne's Horse Flesh Brought to Chestertown to Contest for Honors, but George Rash, Behind West Morrill, Carries off the Palm.

Queen Anne's may raise good watermelons, strawberries and sweet potatoes, but when it come to fast horses, Kent county holds the palm. A very interesting story might be told as to the efforts that were made to find a horse in Queen Anne's that could throw the snow in the face of the champion racer of Kent. But suffice it to say that on Saturday afternoon in the midst of a blinding snowstorm, a very prominent politician of Queen Anne's, accompanied by Messrs. Howard Barwick and George Hazel, of Sudlersville, appeared on High street behind such fast ones as Oakley R., Peter B. and a fast bay mare. A good-natured citizen of Queen Anne's, who has a faster horse than either of the above, had sent word to these fellows to come over on Saturday and beat George Rash—that he had tried to do it but had failed. It was soon noised abroad that Johnny George, of Sudlersville, and several others from the State had arrived and a great race was brewing. Immediately the boulevard along the snow path was crowded with enthusiastic spectators. Pretty soon Geo. Rash appeared on the course with West Morrill, ready and able to maintain the honors of old Kent. One by one the horses from the State tackled West Morril only to be sent to the stable to be groomed and taken back to Sudlersville. Peter B., owned by Howard Barwick, of Sudlersville, has a record somewhere around 2.12, it is said, and Oakley R. has made his mark on many race tracks, while Mr. George Hazel's bay mare is a fine roadster. But there wasn't a single one of the bunch that had speed enough for West Morrill, and Mr. Rash proved that his handsome brown stallion is worthy of the honor of being called Kent's fastest snow horse. It was a sore disappointment to the gentlemen from the State as well as for the friends along the sidewalk to see the very pick of Queen Anne's go down to defeat. But a lesson that Queen Annesers may as well learn now as at any other time is that while they may beat Kent at raisin' potatoes and water milons, they can never beat her at horse racing. Come over again, Mr. George, and gentlemen, when it isn't snowing so hard, and if you're afraid of West Morril, there are others that can furnish you all the amusement you want.

*†*The schools throughout the county closed yesterday for the Christmas holidays. In nearly all the schools programs appropriate to Christmas were rendered, those at Chestertown and Rock Hall being of a very high order. Work will be resumed on Tuesday, Jan. 3, 1905.

VICTORY FOR GOOD ROADS.

Important Decision by Judge Burke, of the Baltimore County Court.

An important victory for the good roads movement in Maryland was won last Friday at Towson, the county-seat of Baltimore county, when Judge Burke, sitting in the circuit court, decided that the State aid road law, passed at the last Legislature and appropriating $200,000 of State funds for the building of county roads, cannot be prohibited under the section of the State constitution of 1867, which prohibits the State from appropriating money towards any internal improvement. This decision was made as the result of a suit brought by Mr. Frank A. Bonsal to test the constitutionality of the Act, by bringing injunction to restrain the county commissioners from accepting and using any of the State appropriation for the use of county roads, and the victory for the road movement was the more sweeping in that the decision of the court was rendered without it even being deemed necessary for Messrs. John J. Donaldson and Osborne Yellott, representing the county commissioners, to make any argument on the defense.

In order that the matter may be finally adjudicated, an appeal from Judge Burke's decision to the Court of Appeals has already been entered, and if the higher court upholds Judge Burke, as is expected, the validity of the law will be finally established and $200,000 of State funds will be immediately available for county roads. It is important to note here that the Maryland Geological Survey will, until March 1, 1905, continue to receive applications from the counties for their several allotments of the State aid road appropriations—after this date the amount of the appropriation not taken up will be re-apportioned among the counties desiring more money than their original allotment. It should be remembered also that the counties incur no risk of expense by applying for State aid, should that law finally be proven unconstitutional.

Encouraged by this decision, the road work in Maryland under the provisions of the state aid law will go forward with more enthusiasm than ever. Since the passage of the Act the counties have been going forward with the work until thirteen counties out of twenty-three in the State have now filed petitions for state aid for their roads or have signified their intentions of doing so. State aid for over 150 miles has been requested and the Highway Division of the Maryland Geological Survey has been busily engaged in making surveys for the work. More than twice the amount of the state appropriation has been applied for, and mass-meetings favorable to the road movement have been held in a number of the counties.

In rendering his decision in the case at Towson, Judge Burke said that the public roads were the property of the state, and that their care and maintenance were dedicated to the various counties by legislative enactment, and that there could not, therefore, be any question of the state contributing to the roads, the title to which is vested in the state. The prohibition cited, Judge Burke said, cannot apply to the building of public roads, which is public work, any more than to maintenance of the Capitol at Annapolis, the Governor's mansion, and various other state institutions, and that the apparent object of the constitutional prohibition was to prevent the extending of aid to railroads and canals, similar to the appropriations made by the state to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

Because of a doubt that existed last winter as to the constitutionality of direct appropriations for good roads, the legislature passed a constitutional admendment submitting the question to the vote of the people. This, like the Poe disfranchising amendment, was not signed by Governor Warfield, and the question whether these two amendments shall go on the official ballots next fall is now before the Anne Arundel County Court of Appeals. In the meantime if the Court of Appeals upholds Judge Burke, there will be no necessity for the adoption of the constitutional amendment, although of course the admendment will as a matter of form be submitted to the people if the courts declare that it was legally passed.

Nearly all religious sects, as their figures of growth for the past year are announced, show a larger percentage of increase then in previous years, and in several denominations the ratio of growth exceeds the usual ratio of increase in the population. This is notably the case in the Episcopal Church, which gained 3 per cent. on its membership of the previous year, while the population growth is estimated at about 2 per cent.

It is stated in the Presbyterian Handbook for 1905 that the religions of the world have 1,430,000,000 adherents divided as follows:

Christianity, 477,080,158: Confucianism, 256,000,000: Hinduism, 190,000,000: Mohammedanism, 176,834,372: Buddhism, 147,900,000: Judaism, 7,056,000: and various heathen faiths, 118,129,479.

The adherents of Christianty are divided in the following branches:

Catholic, 230,866,533: Protestant 143, 237,625: Greek Church, 86,016,000: Church of Abyssinia, 3,000,000: Coptic Church, 120,000: Armenian Church, 1,690,000: Nestorians and Jacobites, 150,000.

The 13th Anniversary of the ordination of Bishop Alfred Allen Curtis to the priesthood of the Roman Catholic Church occurred on Sunday last, and in honor of the occasion the venerable vicar general of the Arch diocese of Baltimore was the celebrant at the high mass in the Cathedral Sunday morning at which Cardinal Gibbons was also present. Bishop Custis was born in Somerset County, Md., July 4, 1831. His early education was received in the Schools of Somerset County, and he was ordained deacon in the Protestant Episcopal Church in 1856. He was at one time rector of Emmanuel P. E. Church, Chestertown. In 1870 he resigned from the Protestant Episcopal ministry and joined the Roman Catholic Church. Later he succeeded Bishop Becker as Bishop of the Wilmington Diocese of the Roman Catholic Church. He was later appointed to the Baltimore diocese. Bishop Curtis is well known througout Kent County, and is regarded as one of the most prominent Catholic Bishops in the State.
