LOCAL MATTERS.

Dates of Closing Schools.—The school board, at its meeting on Tuesday, decided to close the white schools of the county on Wednesday, June 21st. Notice is given in this issue that the colored schools of the county will close for the schlastic year to-day, April 15.

Fell Dead at His Door.—George Mitchell, colored, fell dead as he entered the door of his home on Calvert street, about 11.30 o'clock Monday night. Dr. H. G. Simpers promptly responded to the summons for medical aid, but upon his arrival life was extinct. He pronounced the cause of death heart disease, and Justice T. Waters Russell, acting coroner, decided an inquest unnecessary.

Sale of Wirt Estate.—The real estate of the late John S. Wirt was sold by his administrator, George R. Ash, at public sale in Elkton on Tuesday. The fine farm on Bohemia river, containing 300 acres, was sold to Samuel Hurlock for $13,600. The residence in Elkton was purchased by Dr. Charles M. Ellis, of Elkton, for $4,700. The stone quarry of 15½ acres was bought by Mrs. McLaughlin, of Baldwin for $650. Thirty-five acres of Woodland in Elk Neck was sold to George A. Blake, for John Keithley, for $100. Among the purchasers for the residence in Elkton were Hon. W. T. Malster, of Baltimore, J. Wallace Scott, of Wilmington, and Dr. Chas. M. Ellis.

Glee and Mandolin Club Concert.—The Glee and Mandolin Club of Washington college will give its annual concert in Stam's Hall on Thursday evening, April 27th. This is the second appearance of the club before the public, and judging from the excellent programme rendered on the occasion of its first appearance last spring, the concert will be such as will please all lovers of classical and popular music. There is some splendid vocal talent in the glee club, and the choruses are all well balanced, while the instrumental part of the programme is all that can be desired. The club deserves the patronage of the community and county, in view of the generous assistance which its members have rendered the social and religious gatherings during the past winter, and we hope for them a large and fashionable audience. The club contemplaes making a tour of the peninsula after their appearance in Stam's Hall.

Death of Mr. Albert Groves.—The body of Mr. Albert Groves, of Wilmington, formerly of Chestertown, was found floating in the Delaware River yesterday morning off the city of Wilmington. It is supposed that the body had been in the river about three weeks, as it had been that long since he was seen by a relative on the streets of the city. Mr. Groves was employed as a conductor on the street cars in Wilmington. About three weeks ago he met an uncle on the street to whom he said he was going to get his pay for his services as conductor on the cars. That was the last seen of him until his body was found yesterday morning in the river. The remains will be brought to Chestertown to-day on the noon train, and interred in Chester cemetery. The deceased was a brother of Mrs. A. C. Loud, of Chestertown.

Mr. Brown Wins Case.—John B. Griffith was on Wednesday found guilty, with a recommendation for mercy, by a jury in the criminal court, Baltimore, of obtaining $3,000 by false pretense from H. Clay Brown, formerly of Chestertown, but more recently associated in business with Griffith. In January 1903, Griffith advertised for a partner in the real estate business. Mr. Brown answered the advertisement, and after some negotiations in which it was alleged, Griffith represented that he had purchased the interest in the business of Henry W. Rogers from his widow for $4,100, and that the business yielded a net income of $3,000. It was testified that Griffith had never paid Mrs. Rogers $4,100, but only about $600, also, the books had been altered to show a fictitious income of $3,000. The case was finished Tuesday afternoon, and the jury retired with leave to bring in a sealed verdict Wednesday.

Accidental Shooting.—Frank Maul, the 14-year-old son of Mr. John L. Maul, of Middletown, was shot and almost instantly killed by a companion on Tuesday afternoon. Young Maul in company with Ephraim Jolls, son of clerk of the Orphans Court, Joseph C. Jolls, and Howard Savin had gone out to Frogtown Crossing about one-half mile north of the town. Ephraim Jolls had a revolver with which to shoot at fish in the branch and after tiring of this sport the three boys had gone into the flagman's house before starting home. While young Jolls was examining the weapon, thinking it was empty, it was accidentally discharged, the bullet entering Frank Maul's forehead and passing entirely through his head. A physician was hastily summoned, but the lad never regained consciousness, and died before he could be carried to his home. The lad was 14 years old and his parents are prostrated at the awful shock, as are also Mr. and Mrs. Jolls and young Jolls.

"Why is it any the less our duty to advise all the people we can when we know of a good and comparatively inexpensive remedy that makes many cures, and benefits in almost all cases?

GEN. LATROBE HAS NEW LIZ.

Is the Granddaughter of the Original "Old Gray Mare."

Old-time Democrats who still remember the original "old gray mare" known as Liz, driven by Gen. Ferdinand C. Latrobe during his many terms as Mayor, were delighted yesterday when the former Mayor appeared driving a nag so like old Liz as to make those who had known that faithful steed in her prime, sit up and rub their eyes in wonder.

"General," asked a friend, "is that Old Liz come back to earth or not?"

"No," said the General, "that's not Old Liz herself but it is her graddaughter. This is the first spring she has been in harness, and I am breakiug her in. She is in good shape to make any campaign. "Liz No. 1 was buried about 10 years ago on Carroll Island, and last year I turned Liz No. 2 out to pasture, so that she could end her days in peace and plenty. She was then about 24 years old.

"Liz No. 3 is not quite 6 years old, and I expect to drive her for many a year yet—that is, unless they Osterize me when I'm not looking."

In speaking of the original "old gray mare" General Latrobe recalled a song written in her honor years ago and sung with great effect by Mr. Thomas F. McNulty. The last verse ran like this:

They say that when that old mare dies
She'll join some angel band.
With silver hoofs upon her feet
She'll prance the golden strand.
And if Republicans come about
She'll lift those heels behind
And kick them into kingdom come,
That old gray mare of mine.

The sire of Liz No. 1 was Governor Bowie's Stonewall Jackson, and Liz No. 2 was sired by Mr. Ross Winans' Count. The sire of Liz No. 3 was McCormick's Orange Blossoms.
