NEXT WEEK THE FAIR.

All Roads Will Lead to Tolchester Next Week, Where the Great Cecil, Kent and Queen Anne's Fair Will be the Attraction.

Next week will be "Fair week" at Tolchester, and those who have fine teams, or any old kind of a team, will use them, or the steamboats to get there to see the races and the numerous exhibits. The management has made greater efforts this year than formerly to secure a large and valuable collection of exhibits and those in charge of the races have been diligent in their efforts to secure a fine class of horses for the various speed contests. Judging from reports from the heads of the various departments of exhibits, and from the splendid manner in which all the purses have filled, the great fair will be the best in the history of the resort, and great crowds will be present each day. The very unfavorable weather which has caused the fruit to rot and the vegetables to be scarce, will effect somewhat the exhibits in these departments, but the big pumpkins will be there, the tremendous corn stalks will occupy a conspicious place, and the golden grain will flourish in its accustomed corner. The ladies department in the annex will be especially full this year of interesting exhibits, and there will be a greater display of machinery, live stock and poultry than formerly. Supt. Noland has exerted his best efforts to create a greater interest in the exhibits, and it is likely that he will be rewarded.

Every day during the races there will be an interesting exhibition in front of the grandstand, and everything has been done to give zest and interest to the fair this year. It is said that all the races have filled well and that some of the best horses in the State will compete for the purses. The following is the programme of the races for each day :

TOURNAMENT AT TOLCHESTER BEACH.

A large number of excursionists enjoyed the first tournament that has been held in Kent county this season, at Tolchester Beach, Friday afternoon. There was a large number of knights present, and better riding has seldom been witnessed than on this occasion.

At 2 o'clock the knights were called forth and the charge was delivered by Mr. W. A. Potts, of Baltimore.

Mr. J. H. Klohr, the Knight of Rockdal, was successful in winning the first prize, which consisted of $50 and also crowned Miss Emma Tibbals, of Rockdale, Queen of Love and Beauty.

Dunkin Almony, the Knight of Fairview, won the fourth prize of $10 and waived his right of crowning to Mr. Edgar Hutchins, the Knight of India Hope, who crowned Miss Mary Patterson, on Monkton, third maid of honor.

The coronation address was delivered in the dancing pavilion by Mr. Samuel Vannort, of Chestertown, and a dance followed. The field Marshall was Mr. Chas. H. Hurlock, of Chestertown. The judges were Messrs. T. E. W. Crew, John Duyer, both of Kent county, and C. S. Hobbs, of Baltimore county.

GOOD PROSPECT FOR OYSTERS.

More Young Oysters in Chester River Than for Years Past—Oystermen Desire Better Local Protection.

The season for tonging oysters will open next Friday, September 1, and the prospect for a good season is very bright. Capt. John Smith, one of the most prominent tongers of Rock Hall, was in our office on Monday and he stated that the condition of the oysters on the Swan Point bar, from information from the most reliable sources, is better than for some years and the yield there will be better than usual. The catch this year will extend beyond Tolchester, where the dredging grounds are said to be in better condition than last year and well supplied with good stock oysters. It is in Chester river however that the most noticeable increase in the supply is found. The river as far as Southeast Creek is said to be full of young oysters, which, if they can be left undisturbed until after Christmas, will make a splendid supply of marketable oysters. In many places in the river young oysters can be found in considerable quantities along the shore, a condition which has not existed for many years, and the tongers are therefore in high glee over the prospects for a good season. In many instances hook and line fishermen have pulled from the bottom large shells to which would be attached a number of young growth, and it is said that the young unmarketable oysters are so plentiful on the bars in the river that it is possible to catch two hundred at one haul. What the oystermen in the river are concerned about is proper protection against unscrupulous tongers, and a rigid enforcement of the cull law in order that these young oysters may have a chance to grow and become marketable before the close of the season. A young oyster grows very fast, and an oyster which measures now 1½ inches in length will be large enough for market before the season closes if left undisturbed. The oystermen want better local protection, and it is hoped that sufficient local police force will be put in operation by the opening of the season to protect the interests of the oystermen in the river.

The local police boat Anna B. Smith, cannot police the grounds of the bay and river at one time. It is necessary to have adequate protection for the river where there is such a large increase in the supply of young oysters and consequently a greater temptation to catch them for planting on private grounds. The oystermen contend that if they can get proper protection and a just enforcement of the cull law their prospects for a profitable season are brighter than for some years. Last season was a very unprofitable one because of the weather. It is hoped that all conditions will be favorable this year, and that the supply will not only be found to be good, but large. The season for dredging will open November 1, two months later than for tongers.

Profitable Mule Sale.

A carload of as fine Missouri Mules as were ever offered for sale in Chestertown was sold by auctioneer C. H. Hurlock for Mr. J. B. Richardson last Saturday afternoon at Whiteley's stables. Mr. Richardson is wellknown in Chestertown, and his reputation is such as to warrant a crowd of good purchasers at every sale he has in Chestertown. He is an excellent judge of fine stock as his last carload of mules attested. An interesting feature of the sale is that cash was paid in every instance but one. R. D. Hynson, Esq., was the attorney, and the sale was advertised in the TRANSCRIPT.

The purchasers and prices paid were as follows:

MR. CLARENCE PRICE.

He was carried into his home near the station and died at 10 o'clock Thursday night. Mr. Price was 51 years of age and was a Republican. He had always taken an active part in politics for his party in the county. Further particulars will be found in our Millington letter.

Base Ball Notes.

Kennedyville team and rooters will journey to Betterton to-day to cross bats with the strong team at the bayside resort. An interesting game is expected.

Kennedyville defeated the Chestertown Giants last Thursday afternoon by the score of 24 to 11. Kennedyville knocked three of the Chestertown Giants out of the box.

Betterton defeated the Armstrong Cork Company team on the Betterton grounds on Saturday. Score 13 to 2. It takes a professional team to get the best of Betterton these days. Her battery, Reynolds and Bouce, is a "peach," while the whole team is composed of rattling good players.

There's enough interest being taken in baseball in certain localities in Chestertown to be the means of organizing a first-class team for the summer league the Baltimore Sun speaks about. Get at 'em, boys.

Fish Notes.

Rev. W. L. White and Messrs. M. A. Toulson and Thomas S. Bordley were the guests of Mr. J. K. Aldridge on Monday on a fishing trip near Quaker Neck wharf. The party landed fifteen dozen perch and rock, eight dozen of which were "beauties."

Three gentlemen, lovers of the sport, went to the Cliffs on Saturday afternoon, and after three hours of fine sport, returned to Chestertown with 80 rock, taylors and perch, some of the rock measuring 15 inches in length.

Messrs. R. H. and W. S. Collins and nephew, Mr. Harrison Stewart, of Philadelphia, were the guests of Messrs. Walter Strong and Thomas Trew on Monday on a trip to the Lankford bay fishing grounds. They caught about 150 fine rock and perch.

Several other parties have been out during the week, and all report excellent sport. The river and bay are full of fine fish now.
