

So they greased the bottom of the ship

SMART builders of smart ships, those hardy settlers along the Atlantic Coast just after the Revolution. Many a time their sharp-built barks and brigantines showed their heels to the Mediterranean blockade and carried American goods into Marseilles. And one ingenious device for getting a knot or two of extra speed was the greasing of the vessel's bottom. So while the friction of the water held back their pursuers, they slipped onward to safety.

Friction is always a drag against progress, especially in the case of motor cars and trucks. For years this company has been aiming at the conquest of friction by means of a lubricating oil scientifically designed. We have been successful. Ask for Polarine, the "Standard" oil for motor lubrication—not just "a quart of oil."

DAIRY COWS SHOW DECREASE

Does Not Seem Likely That Business Will Ever Suffer a Season of Overproduction.

There is little if any danger of overdoing the dairy business. In the United States at present there are fewer dairy cows per capita than there were in 1890 or 1900, and about the same number as there were in 1910. The discoveries of science have stimulated the use of dairy products. Medical advisers are encouraging more use of the product. It does not seem likely that the dairy business will suffer a season of overproduction.

GOOD DAIRYMAN FEEDS WELL

Cows Must Have Abundance of Right Kind of Feed to Give Liberal Flow of Milk.

The good dairyman is a good feeder. He knows that he must supply his cows with an abundance of feed. But he knows, too, that this feed must be of the right kind and balance if the milk flow is to be heavy. Too much roughage with too little concentrates, too small a supply of protein in the form of clover hay, gluten, or the like, a scanty supply of silage or of water, and the milk flow is cut down.

GRAIN REQUIRED FOR COWS

Amount, in Addition to Hay and Potatoes, Depends on Amount of Milk Produced.

Cows that are milking heavy or young calves should, of course, have some grain in addition to the hay and potatoes. The amount of grain required for the cows would depend on the amount of milk they are producing, and the amount required by the calves should be regulated so as to keep the calves in a good, thrifty, growing condition.

MILK CONSUMED ON FARMS

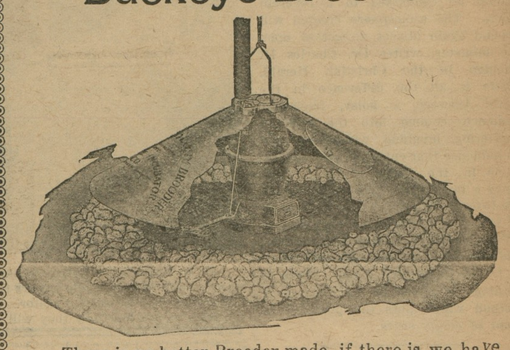

Value Nearly Equal to That of Product Sold, According to Estimates of Department.

The value of milk consumed on farms in 1922 was nearly equal to the value of the milk sold, according to estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture. The farm value of milk sold is estimated at $722,000,000 and of milk consumed on farms at $636,000,000.

DISTINCTIVE NEW WRAPS INVADE THE SUMMER MODES

SOME new thing in wraps for summer are captivating the wayward but discriminating fancy of fashionable women. However light and irresponsible their texture may be, their collars, at least, make a gesture that hints of warmth. These collars are often of fur and more often of a fabric—in any case, they are an outstanding style feature.

Crepe de chine and other crepes, moire, soft wool, in flat and in nappy weaves, are all in demand for summer wraps, with crepe de chine, especially in a dull finish, the favorite. Black leads in the preferred color, but brown, beige, tan and similar shades are included. The colors are sometimes brightened by brilliant embroideries in several high colors on the collar, cuffs, and occasionally in borders or bands. Figured silk serves the same purpose. Gold embroidery is discreetly used on the brown or black crepes, lending a touch of splendor that is approved everywhere in the fashions of today. When embroidery is done in gray, beige or white it is used as lavish as the designer chooses, as in the handsome coat pictured. This is a wrap-around model in black crepe de chine.

Wrapped coats fastening at the side with tie or clasp, designed in several ways, are unrivaled in popularity. Some of them flare toward the bottom of the skirt portion. Whether flaring or straight-line, they are flat at the front and back. Capes are more varied in outline; there are trim models that follow the lead of coats, close to the figure at the front and back, with godets introduced at the side. Others are voluminous, but graceful—a combination made possible by the delicacy of the materials used.

CASTORIA

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Simple China Cement.

To mend china or glassware, make a very thick solution of gum arabic and stir into it plaster of paris until the mixture is of proper consistency. About one ounce each is about the proper quantity to use. Apply with a brush to the broken edges, press together, tie into position and leave for a few days when it will be perfectly firm. This makes a white cement.

Few Will Admit Idleness.

Work, according to my feeling, is as much of a necessity to a man as eating and sleeping. Even those who do nothing which to a sensible man can be called work, still imagine that they are at least something. The world possesses not a man who is an idler in his own eyes.—W. von Humboldt.

"Come Off."

This bit of American slang, used imperatively and meaning "desist" or "cease," is relatively new to modern use. It is startling, therefore, to find that it occurs in Chaucer's "Parliament of Fowles" in exactly the modern sense. The birds grow tired of listening to a long discussion among the young eagles; and so at last: "'Come off!' they cryde, 'alas! you will us shende!'"
