THE NEWNAM FAMILY SETS A FINE EXAMPLE

In may not be entirely original, but it savors of good citizenship to have one's family and collaterals as well as friends banded together in harmonious endeavor for the promotion of internal good will and for high ideals of civic relationship.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Newnam, of Oxford have put the idea into constructive motion. They have eleven grown children all prosperous and a credit to the community in which they reside, besides a large number of grand children. Mr. Newnam has one brother and one sister with families and descendants—all of whom are the kind of citizens America stands in need. W. P. Newnam, of Chestertown, is a son.

The Newnams in business are men of highest integrity and the daughters who have taught have risen to prominence in their profession.

Actuated by ties of consanguinity and the promotion of unity and good citizenship a paper was circulated among the relatives to which scores of signatures were affixed, and it was afterwards enlarged to take in some friends who wanted to be included. No organization nor initiation is intended—just a simple willingness to join the group by signing the following paper:

"The members, connections and friends of the Newnam family of the State of Maryland, bound by the ties of blood, the bond of friendship, and the laws of God, believing the right of self-government to be an inalienable right of all free people, do hereby call together all our kin in an association, free and independent, holding ourselves responsible to the dictates of our consciences, to work in harmony for the further benefit of ourselves, our State and our notion, dedicating ourselves whenever an opportunity present itself, to use our united influence for the betterment of government or the administration of public affairs."

The Howard Hotel, for the past forty years in the hands of the Mitchell family, was sold Monday by Col. W. Arthur Mitchell, its owner, to George Vaggi, who conducts a candy stand and pool room in one of the first store room floors. The price paid was $30,000. Vaggi was compelled to buy the hotel in order to retain his business. This is a well-known Elkton property and sold for a fair price.

COUNTY FAIR DATES

The annual meeting of the Del-Mar-Via-Penn Fairs and Racing Circuit representatives was held in Salisbury on Tuesday.

James M. Crockett, Pocomoke City was re-elected President of the Association and D. J. Ward, was again selected as secretary and treasurer. The dates for the fairs this year were agreed upon as follows:

Harrington, July 24-28.
Cambridge, July 31, August 1-3.
Tasley, August 7-10.
Pocomoke, August 14-17.
Salisbury, August 21-24.
Wilmington, August 27-31.

The most important change in program decided upon for 1923 was the adoption of the three heat plan in racing. This is an innovation in this circuit and makes every heat a race. The purse will be divided by three and apportioned among the horsemen contesting as they finish in each heat.
