CURIOUS OLD QUEBEC.

Its Dufferin Terrace — St. Anne's Shrine--Montmorency Falls--Break-Neck Stairs and Crooked Streets.

No. 7.

One of the novel means of conveyance in Quebec is by the Caleche (Kalash). It is a two wheel concern with two easy side springs and the driver sits on the dash board on a seat not over three inches wide!

We ride down the Grande Allee, through the St. Louis Gate, into the country where we visit the Governor's home called the "Leftenant-Governor." It is a long two-story frame structure not at all imposing but beautifully located on a high bank overlooking the St. Lawrence. The Governor is appointed by the King and has full charge of the Province.

The Parliament buildings are located here and are spacious as well-as imposing and magnificent. The Upper House is presided over by an Irishman in whose honor the carpet and frescoing are in green. The members of this House are appointed for life, the Lower House being elected by the people.

The city was formerly surrounded by a wall with five gates, Gates St. Louis and Kent being the only entrances. These "gates" are now of modern architecture and ornaments to the city. The four old Martello towers with underground passages to the fort remain intact as they were when Bigot and his cohorts were in command, and on every side are seen relics of past age's.

But lest we consume too much space with other things we will mention here the great sight at Quebec, viz., the fortress, from the bastions of which there floats the red cross banner, the symbo of Britain's power. We visit that magnificent promenade, Dufferin Terrace, situated 300 feet above the river and extending along Cape Diamond for nearly a half mile. It is a veritable Atlantic City boardwalk. Every evening the natives turn out in parade while an excellent band discourses music from dainty pavilions. From this commanding position, half way up the slope of the historic rock, a fine view is had of the Citadel and of the fortifications which enwall it and its forty acres of parade ground, bastions and entrenchments. We enter the fort through the Chain Gate, which gives access to the trenches, thence by the Dalhousie Gate, which ushers us into the heart of the citadel. We visit the men's quarters, magazines, mount the ramparts and view the glorious spectacle. On one side far and wide flows the St. Lawrence; on the other are the Laurentide range of mountains. To the west, stretch out the historic Plains of Abraham, while in another direction rises the imposing front of Laval University, tapered off by the countless dwellings that cling to the sloping flanks of the great red rock. The University has thousands of students all attired in frock coats and green sashes and is the chief seat of French culture in the Dominion. We cannot stop to mention the Basilica, the churches, convents and seminaries which crowd this country and in which is embodied the religious life of a town still breathing the monastic spirit of the seventeenth century.

We next visit the Plains of Abraham and as we look upon this historic field of battle and see the cliff which Wolfe and his noble army climbed it looks like an impossibility. And yet the intrepid leader scaled the cliff and dragged a field gun to the scene of battle. The lines of the hero which he repeated as he floated down the river on the eve of this great battle comes to our mind:

"The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power.
And all that beauty, all that wealth ere gave'
Await alike the inevitable hour
The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

A visit to Lower Town was worth the trib to Canada. This part of Quebec is located along the water front, clings to the side of Cape Diamond and above which frowns the walls of the Cidadel and Dufferin Terrace. The houses are quaint and curious while the streets are crooked, narrow and boarded. Across them we saw the clothes-line stretched filled with the week's wash while little French urchins played in the dirty wash water. We obtained fine pictures of the sights here and prize them highly. This localitv has been changed by the falling, a few years ago, of a portion of the cliff which overhung Champlain street. The huge mass of rock and earth fell without a moment's warning on the houses below and many lives were lost. The rock and earth have not been removed for fear of disturbing the rest of the mountain. The scene of the cave-in and demolished houses may be seen today. In driving about the country and about the city the wayside cross and Parish Church are always to be met with and frequently a venerable Cure in his black "Soutane."

One of the wonderful sights near Quebec is the Falls of Montmorency where a tremendous amount of water fall over natural steps 250 feet high and furnish power for large mills, etc. Then we continue our journey to the famous Shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre where over 100,000 pilgrims annually pay their devotions.

Shortly after the founding of Quebec, some Breton soldiers, beset by a tempest, vowed to build a shrine to St. Anne D'Auray, if they should escape. They landed safely at the site of the present shrine and built a little chapel. It was rebuilt in 1660. The governor laid the foundation, and rich presents and beautiful paintings came from France. It has ever been noted for its wonderful cures and miracles; and pyramids of crutches left behind by pilgrims, cured by the saint, rise up on each side of the entrance to the shrine. At this shrine we leave our readers with best wishes that all may have every ailment cured and every request granted. F. G. U.

OUR ENTIRE STOCK
—OF—
CLOTHING CONSISTING OF
Men's, Youth's, Boys' and Children's Suits, &c.,

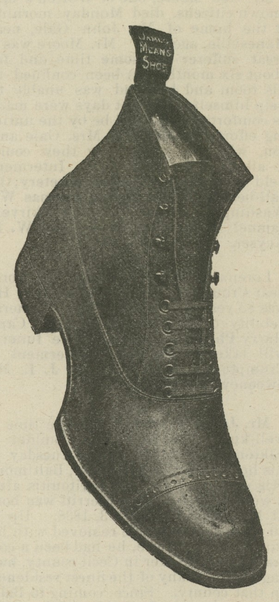

will be sacrificed to make room for our constantly increasing Shoe Stock.

OUR

has met with such flattering success that we have determined to so enlarge the stock as to be in a position to suit all customers who may favor us with a call. We must have room and the only way to secure it is to get rid of our large stock of Clothing.

In order to do this successfully and quickly we will from now on sell you any Suit in the house for considerably below cost. We cannot quote you prices for this would be foolish unless at the same time you could see the suit for which the price is quoted. We can only say however, that in many instances the price will be nearly one-half the value of the goods.

It is no wonder that our Shoe Trade has met with such flattering success. We are trying our best to build a successful and lasting trade, and it is our aim in every instance to give every customer such values for his money as will induce him to come back to us for his next pair of shoes.

This is particularly true of the celebrated JAMES MEANS SHOE, a cut of which appears in this column. It but faintly represents the beauty, grace and quality of this remarkable shoe. More than one hundred satisfied customer who are now wearing this shoe, cheerfully attest its wearing qualities and are recommending it to their friends A great many customers who have been in the habit of wearing $3.50 and even $5.00 shoes, have bought the shoes as an experiment, and have become so well satisfied with their beauty and wearing quality that they claim they are every bit as good as the higher price shoe.

We keep this shoe in five different kinds of leather, including Lace, Congress (gaiter), Oxfords (low cuts), and in every size and last, including the half-sizes, and so as to fit every foot, and the price, plainly marked on box and bottom of shoe, is we have also succeeded in securing the handsomest, both for Boys and Girls at only $1.25 on the market. I respectfully invite all in quest of shoes to inspect this stock.

OLD FACES MADE YOUNG.

There is a decided advantage in having the eyes properly fitted with glasses, not only changes the value of the eyes, but changes the appearance of the face. Perfect vision makes you look pleasant, keeps the frowns and wrinkles out of your face, helps you to know the good of life by enabling you to see the best of life.

We employ a graduate optician who will examine your eyes and test them by the latest scientific methods free of charge, then if your eyes need glasses, we furnish them at a very reasonable price.

Let us attend to your eye troubles and you will be pleased with our work.
