FREE AT LAST!

Miss Stone, Brave Missionary is Set Free By Paying $75,000.

Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary until recently held captive by brigands, arrived Sunday from Salonica and proceeded to the United States legation.

A. A. Gargiulo, the first dragoman of the United States legation, also returned here today. He says Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka are in excellent health and do not look as though they had spent half a year in the custody of the brigands. The latter called Mme. Tsilka's baby Kismetcha, or "Lucky Child," saying she brought them luck.

The following account of the captivity of Miss Stone has been obtained by the Associated Press from reliable sources, some of the information having been secured from accomplices of the brigands.

Band Lives Comfortably.

After the capture of the missionaries near Bansko, September 3 last, the brigands hastened across the boundry and established themselves on the mountain of Gueltepe, in the Elledero district, Bulgaria, where the whole population were in sympathy with the enterprise, this fact enabling the band to live comfortably and safely and to keep in touch with the outside world. While awaiting the result of their efforts to secure the ransom the brigands drew their supplies from the adjacent village of Ledjuma. Feeling perfectly secure, the members of the band used to show themselves openly in Kamenica and neighboring villages until thy were warned by their local adherents to be more careful. The prisoners, however, were jealously secluded.

Result Nearly Disastrous.

When C. M. Dickinson, United States consult general at Constantinople, arrived in Sofia early in October last and disclosed to the authorities the whereabouts of Miss Stone's captors, the result was nearly disastrous to the prisoners. The Bulgarian Government ill-advisedly pushed troops to the vicinity of Gueltepe, forcing the brigands to break off negotiations, and the band changed its quarters to Kilo. The cold weather made travel in the mountains a dreadful ordeal for Miss Stone and Madam Tsilka, encumbered as they were with the latter's infant. Every change of camp occurred at night. The mountain roads were frequently almost impassable, being often deep in snow.

Kindly Treated

The brigands treated their captives as kindly as the circumstances permitted, but the food supply was necessarily precarious, though the ladies were given the best the inhospitable region afforded. The strain and suspense equaled the physical hardships. The captives at no time knew their whereabouts, the brigands always telling them that they were not in Bulgaria, and they were in fear of an attack by the troops whom the friendship of the natives was not always able to prevent coming close upon the trail of the band. An equal cause of anxiety was the baby, which it was frequently feared would die from exposure.

Established in a Cave

Not until November 2nd did the American emissaries come in touch with the band, which was then established in a cave near Dubnitza, but fear of the troops forced the brigands to another flight. This was made in a blinding snowstorm which covered the tracks of the outlaws, but caused bitter sufferings to the captives. After this the brigands succeeded in completely eluding the authorities, toward the end of Noyember, by a long circuit, they succeeded in returning to their old haunts in the Elledere district. Then they caused to be circulated a report that the captives were dead, and from that time managed to keep Miss Stone and Madame Tsilka safely under cover until the actual release of the captives took place.

JOHN T. WILSON.

John T. Wilson, proprietor of the Howard House, in Elkton, Md., died Sunday afternoon after a short illness from Bright's disease, aged 61 years. Mr. Wilson was a son of William Wilson, and was born near Middletown, Del., April 14, 1841. He received his early education at New London (Pa.) Academy, which was followed by a course at the Delaware College, and later on he graduated from the Minnesota University. At the death of his father in 1879 he assumed the management of his father's estate, containing 3500 acres of the best land in Cecil co., Md., and Newcastle co., Del. He took an active part in democratic politics, and was elected to the Delaware Legislature from the Middletown district. About 10 years ago he came to Elkton and assumed the management of the Howard House, one of the leading hotels in Cecil county, which he conduced at the time of his death. He was well known on the race tracks, owning a stable of runners on some of the best tracks in this country. Deceased leaves a widow, who was Miss Laura Linsday, of Chesapeake City, and several sisters and brothers. His funeral was held from the Howard House on Wednesday afternoon.
