Beautiful Kent.

March is with us, after the snow, the ice, the sleet and the slush of a long spell of winter he comes with rain in plenty.

Nature seems to be weeping over the ruins of February, over the ravages of the storm and wind, over the death rate of so many innocent and hapless creatures, in wood and in dell. On the boughs, the rain drops linger like tears on the eyelashes of spring, tears for the young lambs gone to their last sleep, tears for the great forest trees stricken and broken, tears for the little wood's animals starved or frozen by the cruel snows. But nature soon recuperates, sunshine will follow the rain drops, and make glad the hearts of mankind.

Spring has spread her broad pinions far over the zone, from Rocky range to ocean, and Spring's three daughters are alert to follow her commands. March holds a palette of beautiful colors for April to paint the delegate tints of forest and meadow, to touch the purple faced violets and the pink tinted apple blossoms. In the heart of the woods strange whisperings are heard, voices of leaves and timid early flowers are talking to invisible insects, birds are fluttering around touched by the magic of Spring and soon the turtle dove and wood pigeon will be pluming their feathers by the brooks' mirrow and calling to the arbutus and violets for whiffs of fragrance, anemone will smile upwards to the sun, and mosses will take on fresher green to tempt the fairies for a moonlight dance.

"In the Spring, a deeper crimson burns upon the robbin's breast,
In the Spring, the wanton cupid gets himself under crest."

Our beloved Kent county is but small spot upon the map, but from the head of Sassafras, the winding blue Sassafras, to where the noble Chester river flows into the Chesapeake, our Kent has an unrivaled interest to those who are so blessed as to claim its broad dimensions for a home, and soon from hillside to the long sketches of shores, from village to village, meadows and fields, over landscapes and brooklets, April will be painting everything rainbow colors. The peach orchards will blossom as the rose, the exquisite pink of these gardens of Kent will only be excelled by the lusciousness of the ripened peaches. Then May will follow April all tuned for bird voices and buming bees and little choirs of songsters will be forming in bowers and clusters of vines to enchant and delight.

Not long ago it was my good luck to spend April in Holland. It is there very level and not many trees or bird choirs, but such a wealth of hyacinth gardens and tulip fields, whole miles of colors. Just think of riding for hours in the train along acres and acres of blue, pink, white, purple masses of flowers and the perfume from these fields of bloom. It was a veritable fairy land and if one wishes to see pictures, just go to the flower market in Amsterdam and watch the boats come up the canals to market laden with bushels of hyacinths and the flower girls with flashing eyes and red cheeks, dressed in the Holland peasant costume so charmingly picturesque with white bonnets and long gold ear rings, heirlooms, (for generations) and offtimes in French and sometimes in English you would be asked to buy a bouquet, so politely, that to refuse would be impossible. Holland is most charming in Springtime with her renown gardens of bloom, but Kent is charming also with miles of pink and white blossoms, blushing under the sunshine of April.

ROSALIE MITCHELL SCHUYLER.

ONE OYSTER FEEDS 75 MEN.

From the Chicago Inter Ocean.

A most remarkable oyster has recently been taken from Niagara river by two Buffalo fishermen.

The shell alone without the meat weighed 212 pounds and is 2 feet 8 inches across and 16 inches broad. It contained 50 genuine pearls.

That it might be proven that this wonderful tale was no "fish story" the oyster was placed on exhibition for a week at a Buffalo saloon, where the public was bidden to come and see it.

The meat was cooked and made into a stew, which filled to the brim two eight-quart pails. Seventy-five men partook of the repast it furnished.

The fishermen made the find when their net caught on a snag of some sort and was held fast. As the water was shallow, not more than waist deep, one of them jumped from the boat to investigate and found the net attached to what seemed to be a rock.

It was covered with a white substance resembling lime, and its peculiar appearance induced the fishermen to take it ashore with them. There, when it was washed off, they discovered, to their amazment, that they had a mammoth oyster.

Boston Colored Churches.

"There are now fifteen independent colored churches in Boston, where thirty years ago it was difficult to support one," says the Boston Transcript. "The colored people are not crowded out of the white churches, although very few attend them now, but they prefer to worship by themselves. One reason for this is that education has fitted more colored people to be leaders of their own people and pastors of their own churches."
