White Owls Attack a Boy.—A lad employed upon the C. M. Heald estate, near Port Deposit, was viciously attacked by five white owls. The boy had to rush into a corn field in order to evade them. The incident was reported to Edwin Boynton, manager of the estate and he went to the scene. After patient waiting two of the owls appeared, which he immediately shot. They are pure white and exceedingly beautiful. They have been sent to a taxidermist to be stuffed. Mr. Boynton is a nephew of the late J. A. J. Creswell, postmaster-general under President Grant.

Accidentally Drowned. — While a party of young people were out sailing last Wednesday on Harris' Creek, Miss Wilson, a fourteen year old girl of Newark, New Jersey, granddaughter of the late Henry Wilson of Talbot county, and a niece of Mrs. S. H. Seth, was knocked overboard by the jibbing of the sail. Her cousin, Louis H. Seth, who was in the boat jumped overboard to her assistance. He reached her, but in her excitable condition he could not manage her and she kept pulling him under the water. He struggled with her to his utmost, and at one time when she had him under the water he came near drowning before he could free himself from her. Her body was recovered in a short time and a part of Mr. Seth's clothing was found in each hand. Everything was done to bring life back to Miss Wilson's body after recovery but without avail.

Solomon Pippin's Will.—The will of Mr. Solomon Pippin who died in Easton last week has been filed for record. It devises to his widow an annuity of $800 a year and any or all of the personal property she may select, and to Judge Wm. R. Martin, he leaves his mare Belle Gamble, with a request that he keep her as long as she lives. All the balance of his property, both real and personal, he leaves in trust of his five children, Dr. W. R. Pippin, Isaac R. Pippin, Mrs A. L. Nichols, Mrs. T H. Swank and Mrs. Homer Roe, during the life of his widow. At her death the trusteeship is to be dissolved, and the property divided, except in the case of Isaac R. Pippin. If living his portion is to be held in trust still, and, if dead, in trust for his child, until he reaches the age of 21 years. The trustee is requested to purchase the blacksmith shop, on West street, now occupied by Mr. W. Roger Rice, as soon as he can do so at a reasonable price, and to either add the lot to his two adjoining properties, build a dwelling upon it or sell it to someone who will erect a dwelling on it. Mr. James Dixon is named as executor and trustee. Mr. Pippin carried two policies of $5,000 each, on his life, one for the benefit of his children and one for the benefit of his creditors.

"LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE."

The above is a cry of despair and a groan from the politically lost. Let us see if things are "WELL ENOUGH" for the great army that compose the militant Republican-Democracy; the wealth producers and wage earners of this mighty land.

The Sugar Trust holds the legislative branch of this mighty Government in the hollow of its hand and levies unearned tribute from every State and Territory in the Union.

Keep on letting well enough alone.

The Beef Trust has made the dinner pail look like a 'shadow of a shade."

Keep on letting well enough alone.

Strikes are on the increase in the great coal regions, and coal is selling at nine dollars a ton.

Keep on letting well enough alone.

The Ice Trust puts the price on every pound of ice, and knocks off weight on every ton.

Keep on letting well enough alone.

The Grain and Flour Trust have made bread hard to get, and grain is always high when the farmers have got none to sell.

Keep on letting well enough alone.

A Republican President fought the war with Spain with Democratic sailors and generals, yet Dewey, Schley and Miles have been contumed and slandered, while Crowninshield and Corbin have been honored and condoned.

Keep on letting well enough alone.

The Declaration of Independence and the American Constitution have been revoked and trampled under foot.

Keep on letting well enough alone.

And so on to the end; so JUST KEEP ON LETTING WELL ENOUGH ALONE.—Westminster Advocate.

A TRAVELING man in Delaware broke his automobile between towns. He spied a farmer nearby repairing a mower. On reaching the fence the farmer asked what kind of a machine that was out in the road. "That," said the traveling man, "is an automobile. What do you call that thing you are pounding on over there?" "This," said the farmer, "is an outomohay, but it won't."

"Gas Man" Addicks Again on the Carpet.

President Roosevelt and the Republican party leaders have decided that the factional fight in the State of Delaware, between the Addicks and Dupont factions of the party, which has resulted in the loss of that State's representation in the United State's Senate, must, for the good of the organization, come to an end.

During the coming campaign in Delaware the strength of the Administration and the party in general will be thrown to the Addicks faction, and every effort made to secure the election of a Republican Legislature which shall be favorable to the selection of Addicks and one of his followers as the State's representatives in the upper branch of Congress. It is feared by the Republicans that if the factional fight is continued the State will be carried by the Democrats.

This decision has been reached after mature consideration of every phase of the strife in Delaware. Col. Dupont and his followers have been urged to get into line. They have refused to do so. Now they are to be combated by the Republican organization as a whole, and the President is to take a hand to the end that the famous "Gas Man," shall triumph over his old-time enemies and come to the Senate.
