LOOKING TO THE SENATE.

Jackson, It Is Said, Will Oppose Governor Smith.—A Combination of Wealth.

An interesting story of political planing for the future was brought to the city last week from the Eastern Shore, the pivotal feature of which is an alleged combination or agreement between ex-Gov. Elihu E. Jackson and his brother, Congressman William H. Jackson, with the ultimate aim of securing for one or the other the next United States Senatorship from Maryland. A third person on the Eastern Shore who, it is stated, will likewise be an important factor in the selection of the next Senator, and who, it is believed, will cast his fortunes with the Jackson-Jackson combination, should such an one be effected, is State Senator Applegarth, of Dorchester county. The idea that a combination will be effected between these three men seems to be extensively accepted, and certain well-informed politicians from the First Congressional district frankly avow their belief that the next Senator will be a Jackson, no matter which party gains control of the Legislature in 1904, when the successor to Senator McComas is to be chosen. Here is the way, according to those who vouch for the story as founded on fact, in which the scheme is to be managed.

Have Millions.

Ex-Governor Jackson is a Democrat, while his brother William H., is a strong Republican and at present the representative of his party in Congress from the First district. The combined wealth of the two brothers is estimated at considerably more than $2,000,000 and is greatly in excess of that of any other two men in the nine counties comprising the district. With the exception of the Jacksons there are few richer men on the Eastern Shore than Senator Applegarth, and it is well recognized and an established fact that money means as much, if not more, politically on the Eastern Shore as in any other section of the State Should these three men put their hearts into the fight next fall there is little doubt of their ability to control a considerable number of votes in the next General Assembly. No matter which party has a majority on joint ballot in the next Legislature, in all probability that majority will be exceedingly, small, and the Jacksons, with Senator Applegarth, could easily hold the balance of power.

Antagonistic To Governor Smith.

Now, it is said, ex-Governor Jackson is politically at odds with Governor Smith and looks with extreme disfavor upon the ambition of the Governor to wear the Senatorial toga. The antagonism between the two, it is stated, dates back a number of years and they are now politically wide apart. On the other hand, Congressman Jackson has no love for Senator McComas, his political faith and friendship for that gentleman, his friends claim, having been irretrievably dissipated in the fight for Federal patronage some months ago. As a result of the feud over the offices Mr. Jackson, it is said, felt that he had been humiliated in the eyes of his district and laid the responsibility at the door of Senator McComas. He was at that time as bitter against the Senator as was Mr. Mudd, and the truce that had been patched up now between the three is generally regarded as a temporary affair, only intended to last until after the Congressional election.

Friends of the two Jacksons admit that for years both have had the ambition to represent Maryland in the United States Senate and claim that one or the other will realize this ambition next fall. Last year at Annapolis Mr. William H. Jackson put up a strenuous fight for the empty honor of the caucus nomination for the Senatorship by his party and it was plainly understood at the time that he made the contest with a view of being in a position to more logically demand the nomination at the next opportunity. Such being the case, say the wiseacres, it is logical to infer that the two Jacksons are as a unit in their opposition to the selection of either Senator McComas or Governor Smith by the Legislature of 1904.

Senator Applegarth's Attitude.

As to Senator Applegarth it is believed that he is hostile to Governor Smith at this time and holds that most of his troubles in Dorchester county were inspired by the friends of the Governor for political reasons. He is a hold-over Democratic State Senator and a powerful factor in both his own county and on the "Shore." With a narrow margin for either party in the next General Assembly the possibitities of a combination between these three gentlemen are wide, and persons who know the two brothers look to see them fighting side by side next fall for a common purpose. Practical politicians of both parties agree that Congressman Jackson's victory on the Eastern Shore last Tuesday has greatly strengthened his hands for the fight next fall.

Mr. Mudd A Possibility.

Another figure in the Senatorial contest will undoubtedly be Congressman Sydney E. Mudd, who controls from 8 to 16 votes from Southern Maryland in the next General Assembly, is absolutely conceded, and whose habit it has never been to kiss the hand that smote him. Already his friends say he is looking ahead to the fall fight with a view of evening up his score against Senator McComas.

The claim is made that Senator Applegarth would rather see either one of the Jacksons land the prize than have it go to Senator McComas or Governor Smith, while next to landing it for himself each of the Jacksons is thought to entertain a preference for his brother.
