

THE HOTEL IMPERIAL,

Hubbard Building, Chestertown, Md., is a modern up to-date hotel, conducted by Mrs. J. B. Burchinal; everything new and first-class. Mr. W. W. Hubbard occupies one half of the first floor for his suit of beautiful offices

FAIRLEE NOTES.

Mr. Wm Getshell had a fine lot of fish stolen from a live box in Fairlee Creek last week, mostly pike.

It is estimated that the fishermen's loss along the bay shore from Worton Point to Hodgers bar one mile and a half below Tolchester, amounts to at least one thousand dollars, caused by the last freeze of the winter.

Mr. James L. Beck bought a fine young horse at the sale in town last Tuesday and from his color calls him Buck Skin.

Mr. Hoover, of Baltimore, visited his daughter who teaches the school near St. Paul's church and boards with Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Lamb on last Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Hoover has been negotiating for some real estate near our village and we hope he may be able to buy.

Our pastor will be away at conference next Sunday. The regular Sunday School service will be held followed by a song and prayer service.

Mrs. Crouch, with her son Bertie, has been very sick but she is improving at this writing.

Mr. Crossley has moved from here to Chestertown.

More chickens are around at this time than were the middle of April last year.

Farmers are getting down to work in earnest, plowing.

We gladly report that our Postmaster, Mr. R. A. Smyth and Mr. L J. Keyser are able to be out again in good weather.

Mr. C. B. Lamb is giving Mr. Wm. G. Smyth's residence a fresh coat of paint and the colors blend nicely and are very tasty and pleasing to the eye.

Mrs. Wash G. Skirven is still suffering very much from the effects of an extracted tooth at her home "Tulip Forest" near Fairlee.

BOY WAS A BORN DIPLOMAT.

He Refused a Gratuity, But Found a Way to get the Cash.

A little youngster sat in his express wagon at the bottom of the hill at Twenty-third and Prospect yesterday afternoon. At his feet lay a half dozen or more of crushed eggs in a torn paper sack. He was so busy studying the little ruin that he neither saw nor heard the man who asked about his troubles.

"What's the matter, sonny?" asked the man. "Did you drop the eggs out of the wagon? Well, I wouldn't cry about it."

"I just wanted to coast down the hill once and them eggs fell out the back when I comed down this last time," answered the boy as he rubbed his coat sleeve across his eyes and tried to look cheerful. "I ain't got no more money to get some other eggs and I don't know what my maw'll say when I get home. I guess—well, I'm afraid to go back."

"How much were they?" asked the man as he went down into his pocket

"Thirteen cents, but you mustn't give me no money 'cause I ain't allowed to take none. Lots of people have stopped and offered to give me money, but I can't take none."

"Oh, nonsense!" said the man. "Here take this 15 cents." But he stood and thought while he held out his hand. The boy seemed to be thinking, too, and the coins seemed to be very tempting. It was the boy wo broke the silence.

"Say, Mister, maybe you'd like to buy them broken eggs," he said, and the bargain was sealed.—Kansas City Journal.

A Great Store.—On the fifth page of to-day's News will be found Wm. Medders & Co.'s big advertisement. This Still Pond store is a wonder and its gaowth more wonderful. This firm has purchased Still Pond Hall and opened therein a large carriage bazaar, while in the Annex is a matting department filled with one of the largest stocks ever shown in Kent. They have just opened a beautiful line of Spring dress suitings, white goods, laces, &c., while wall paper, &c., occupy a prominent place in the main building. The News takes great pride in the growth of Wm. Medders & Co. It is another proof of what judicious advertising will accomplish.

A VALUABLE RECEIPT.

Here is a receipt worth several years' subscription to the Kent News to any farmer or hog raiser: Thos A. Kasey's and Major's cure for hog and poultry cholera, patented January 11th, 1887. "Bluestone, Copperas, Alum, Sulphur, Carbt, Soda, Assafoetida, Salt.

All of the above named ingredients can be mixed in a slop bucket. Say, for ten or fifteen hogs put in about three tablespoonfuls of each of the ingredients except the Assafoetida, only one-half of that, then put in one-half gallon hot water, stir until it stops fermenting, then add water to the amount of one and one half gallons in all, when it is dissolved it is then ready for use. Then put in about one gill of the solution for each hog in any good slops, and give them twice a day for five or six days, then discontinue. When used as a preventative give twice a day for three or four days every two months.

When they will not eat or drink, fill a bottle with the solution out of the bucket, take them between your legs, put a stick in their mouth and pour it in until it is full, then take it out and let them swallow, repeat five or six times, let him go; do that twice a day until he will eat, then continue his food for several days. Be sure and keep them in a dry lot in all cases while treating them.

Treatment of Poultry.—Keep them up so they can't get any more water than what you give them, let that be very little. Make the solution as mentioned for the hogs, put in about half enough in the meal to mix the quantity desired for the number of fouls and then put water to make the dough and feed to them occasionally. When they will not eat, drench them or give them the dough in pills, use every month or two."
