GINGER SNAPS KILL COWS.

Eleven of Mr. Gillet's Herd Die After Too Hearty Meal—Estimates His Loss at $2,750.

Mr. Edward M. Gillet, of Verona, Baltimore county, has lost $2,750 worth of prize cattle because of their inordinate appetite for aged ginger snaps, mixed and fruit cakes. Eleven of his fine herd of Hereford cows died after a too free indulgence in the American delicacies mentioned. He valued the cows at $250 each.

Mr. Gillet, like many farmers of the county, has been in the habit of buying these cakes by the ton and feeding them to his cattle and hogs in small quantities. The animals eat the food with a relish and it is claimed that the cakes are good for them as a change from other food. They are also fattening and produce milk.

Mr. Gillet recently got in a large supply of these cakes, which were secured from store stocks that had become too stale for sale He put the lot in his barn. Last Saturday night the barn door was left open and 11 of his fine cows got into the building and ate ginger snaps and cake until they could eat no more. On Monday it was noticed that the cows were acting in a peculiar manner and were staggering about the barnyard. Dr. Dickenson Gorsuch, of Glencoe was called in, but could do nothing. First one then another would fall to the ground and die. This continued until 11 had succumbed. The cows being in a dry state caused them to drink freely of water with fatal results. The fact that they had eaten the cakes was not known until too late to save them. Mr. Gillett's fine Hereford bull, valued at $1,100, was not among the cake eaters and escaped.

Latest Fashion Edicts for Women.

Fashions for women are to have a complete revolution this winter. This information comes from authorities on dress at the National Dressmakers' Convention at Chicago. In talking to the dressmakers Madame Baker gave a list of some of the things which are now out of fashion and some of the modes which are to hold sway.

Out of date are the Gibson girl, the military girl, the kangaroo walk, high heels, blouse waists, flaring skirts with trains, skirts clinging at the knees, plaited shoulders, peek-a boo waists.

The correct things are styles of 1830 in dress revived, snug waists, narrow bust, round skirts just touching the ground, elbow sleeves—full and large, fichus and other shoulder drapery. Pointed waist, girdles very deep, capes for evening.

Startling facts developed at the convention. Madame Baker makes sweeping condemnation of high-heeled shoes and incidentally accuses the American woman of poor taste in dress.

"The high-heeled shoe is vulgar," she said. "It is most wretched taste to wear it in the street. The fact seems to have been forgotten that high-heel shoes were designed for women who ride in carriages."

Bunco Steerers at Work.—Farmers beware and don't get pulled in like many of our Delaware farmers have in the last few weeks by sewing machine agents, covering this section at the present time.

Their scheme is to offer you about five times the value of your old machine, for instance, $25 to $30 for machines not worth $5. Then they charge you $65 to $75 for their machine, that can be bought of any reliable dealer for $25. Be careful and read what you sign.

Many Delaware farmers signed judgment notes when they thought they were merely signing receipts for the machine until it was called for. Instead of calling for the machine, a collector calls for the money on the note.

If you need a machine buy of our home dealers and get value received.

Good Appetite.—An American eagle was captured Friday on the Sassafras river by Captain Tarbutton, of the steamer Kitty Knight. The bird is not grown, but has a voracious appetite. It devoured two pounds of beef and three large rats. The bird will be offered to the Park Board to be placed in Druid Hill Park.
