Are You An Up-To-Date 20th Century Farmer?

IF SO, YOU WILL USE

T. R. HUBBARD & SON'S

MODERN FERTILIZER BRANDS

MANY cannot understand why, after so many years doing business here, that T. R. Hubbard & Son's Fertilizers are more extensively used year after year. But the mystery is solved by a visit to our factory, which is always open for inspection to the public, and those who go down to our works marvel at the pains taken in manufacturing the goods.

"First, the bone is shoveled in the crusher with a scoop shovel and prepared for the Denmead mill, then it is dissolved, and after getting in good mechanical condition, if making dissolved bone goods, so many pounds of bone is put in the mixer. The nitrate of soda, fish and high grade potash are added, the whole thoroughly mixed, passed through a phosphate mill and screened and thrown up in bulk, to remain until it is shipped, and then it is bagged in new treated acid-proof bags, and sent out in splendid shape. We are often asked, "Why don't you run the goods when first mixed, right in the bags, and not go to the expense of treating the bags, as do other manufacturers?"

"We are often asked if this is not a needless extreme, but we reply—it pays to make the best.

Whilst there is some loss by evaporation by bulking, an additional expense in rebagging and an expense to treat the bags, when we remember that a farmer appreciates a good goods and in first-class mechanical condition, it pays to go to extremes, as it is impossible to make a first-class fertilizer otherwise; and by treating our customers right in their purchases, making the time of payment of the bill to suit them, we have gotten a personal hold upon our trade.

"Now, in order that we might continue to be an up-to-date concern, it was necessary to have our own acid chambers and an acid phosphate plant, so as to be entirely independent of the trust, and we have gone in with another concern and erected one of the most modernly equipped phosphate factories in the East, located at Canton. This will make our and supply the Chestertown factory, and instead of closing up our old factory, as many supposed, we will be in better shape than ever before, and will be worked harder than ever. We tell you all this, for when you know what we know about our business, you will not buy any ordinary fertilizer, but Negro who Trained Jim Key is Rich But Grateful.

The many persons who at different times have seen in this city Jim Key, the wonderful horse, will be even more interested in the history of the old negro who attends the horse than they were in the intelligent animal.

This negro is William Key, and he was formerly the owner of the horse. Some time ago he sold the horse for $10,000, but the new owner soon discovered that the wonderful horse was of little use without William, as no one can make the animal do the tricks as William can. Accordingly the new owner engaged William at $50 a month, and he is now with the horse at Atlantic City. The history of William Key, as he told it when last in the city, reads like a romance.

When the Civil War broke out, 42 years ago, William was a slave on the plantation of the late John W. Key, of Bedford county, Virginia. Mr. Key was too old for military service, but his three sons espoused the Confederate cause, and when they rode away from home William went along with them as their servant.

At Fort Donelson, when the Confederates were forced to surrender, William built a bastion of logs and rocks, behind which the wounded were sheltered. "Fort Bill," as the soldiers termed it, saved many a wounded man's life. When Fort Donelson surrendered William took on his back one of the three brothers, who had been badly wounded, and evading the pickets carried him beyond the enemy's line.

While with his masters at Shelbyville, Tenn., William voluntarily went to Murfreesboro to recover for a Confederate officer a large sum of money, which had been left behind in the retreat. After being about Murfreesboro for a few hours William was arrested as a spy. He was made to wear a ball and chain for three months before he had a final hearing. He was condemned to be shot. But William did not want to die that way, and as the ball and chain had been taken off of him the night before he was to be executed he succeeded in escaping and got back within the Confederate lines.

When the war was over William was free to go or stay. When assured that his old master wished him to go out for himself William, who was a good blacksmith, set up a shop. In a few years he branched out, and he began raising fine horses. In this he was also successful, and it was apparent that William was growing rich.

Being a great lover of horses he began to train a young horse to do various things generally thought to be beyond the capacity of an animal. This horse he named Jim Key. From his knowledge of horses William managed to obtain a degree from a veterinarian school and he prepared a liniment for horses which is said to have an excellent sale. William then called himself Dr. William Key.

William saved his money and is now the owner of several fine houses in Shelbyville and also of a large stock farm. But amid his prosperity he has never forgotten his old masters. Recently he wrote to one of the sons of his former master offering him a beautiful home, to be his while he lived. He closed the letter with the following pathetic reference to the old days:

I made your father a good servant. I love the graves where the family are laid. Your father and mother were good to me. I remain, as ever, your faithful servant until death.

WILLIAM KEY.

$100,000 Damage at Ocean City.

Ocean City was entirely under water at one time. All the inhabitants of the island, of which there are about 600, including many women and children, with great difficulty and danger succeeded in getting to the mainland.

Many of the houses were wrecked, and nearly all were more or less damaged when the last person left the island at 6 o'clock in the evening.

Many of the women and children were loaded into empty cars of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railroad Company, and scores pushed the cars across the long trestle and to the highlands, a mile back in the country. Others were placed on handcars and transported to safety by this means.

The waters from the ocean swept over the town so suddenly that in many cases the inhabitants could not escape, but were compelled to take refuge in the upper stories, from which they were taken by the rescuers.

Residents of the coast declare that they never witnessed such a storm. Capt. Christopher Ludlam, who was formerly in the life-saving service, is now a fisherman and has lived on the coast for 50 years, says he never witnessed anything as terrible.

$3,000 a year is the salary paid a Goldey College graduate of twelve years experience.

WARFIELD will get the solid Democratic vote in Kent and, we hope, many Republicans. ATKINSON and BRYAN are also universally popular. The election of all three is certain. The Republican leaders know this as well as we do, but it is not good policy for them to acknowledge it.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Ten Thousand Churches

In the United States have used the Longman & Martinez Pure Paints.

Every Church will be given a liberal quantity whenever they paint.

Don't pay $1.50 a gallon for Linseed oil (worth 60 cents) which you do when you buy thin paint in a can with a paint label on it.

8 & 6 makes 14, therefore when you want fourteen gallons of paint, buy only eight gallons of L. & M., and mix six gallons of pure linseed oil with it.

You need only four gallons of L. & M. Paint, and three gallons of Oil mixed therewith to paint a good sized house

Houses painted with these paints never grow shabby, even after 18 years.

These celebrated paints are sold by
