Husking Corn Crop.—Among farmers there is much talk about high wages and especially the prices for husking corn. The prevailing cool and frosty weather has driven many to early husking and the day worker has sprung his prices with good effect for himself. Farmers say it is not scarcity of labor now that justifies high wages but its dollar wheat and big peach money in the minds of laborers, who think shoold be shared with them. At 2½ and 3 cents per bushel basket for husking every shelled bushel costs approximately 5 and 6 cents, and when the land owner delivers his corn on the market his expense per bushel will have been eight to ten cents, and a tenant in delivering his and landlord's shares will have been eighteen to twenty-two cents expense per every shelled bushel of his own is the way farmers are figuring on the wage question. The demand for corn on the cob seems steadily growing however, and this may to some extent help the farmer.

Kennedyville W. C. T. U.

An exceptionally interesting meeting of the Kennedyville W. C. T. U. was held last Saturday evening in the M. P. Church. With Miss Nellie Barwick at the organ the meeting opened with singing 'Blest be the tie that binds' followed with prayer by Mrs. Jarrell and scripture reading by Mr. Jas. Weer, and then singing. The president, Mrs. Shafer, referred to the State convention to be held in Centreville, and as two of the delegates formerly elected found they could not attend, Mrs. Ida Scotten and Mrs. Emma Strong were elected and both left Tuesday for Centreville. The White Ribbon Herald was presented by Mrs. Shafer and Mrs. Jarrell supt. It was decided that the Union present each new member with one year's subscription free and six additional copies were taken for distribution. Mr. Fred. Numbers and son, of Millington, favored the audience with very fine instrumental music with cornet accompaniment by Mr. Albert Willis. One new member was secured and the meeting closed with music by Mr. Numbers and son.

Boat News.—A meeting of the Chester River Steamboat Company was held Thursday at which time the resignation of Mr. George Warfield and directors took effect. The stockholders of the new steamer syndicate, it is expected, under the provisions of the Chester River Company's charter, made perpetual by the Legislature two years ago, will elect a board of five directors. Captain Willard Thompson, who will be the executive head of the new steamer syndicate, left for the world's fair at St. Louis Monday night, and left orders to continue schedule as at present until his return.

It is understood that the Chester River Company and the Queen Anne's Railroad Company will be merged under the name of the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia Railway Company as soon as the necessary legal proceedings have been completed for the transfer of the property of the latter company. Not until the merger of all of the three big steamboat properties acquired by the syndicate is complete will a permanent organization be effected. It is reported that the last steamboat deal resulted in a 25 per cent. decrease in wages of all employes. The policy of the new management is being anticipated with much concern. As a reward for many years of faithful service the oldest employes of the Weems Steamboat Company will receive $25,000 of the $1,000,000 paid for the company's property by the new syndicate of Northern capitalists last Monday. This money has been turned over to Mr Henry Williams, president of the Weems company, to be distributed as he deems is the best.
