SATURDAY, - DECEMBER 10, 1904

ATTORNEY GENERAL BRYAN, of Maryland, thinks the new road act unconstitutional.

SENATOR PLATT has introduced a bill to reduce the representation of Southern States. The bill originated in a "black and tan" club in New York.

THE Mrs. Chadwick case in New York is one of the most remarkable on record. She is charged with having swamped a National bank at Oberlin, Ohio, and secured over one million dollars by fictitious endorsements. The woman has been arrested, but that is cold comfort for the depositors of the wrecked bank.

THE President insists upon foisting upon the people of Charleston, S. C., a negro official for the highest office in that city—that of Collector of the Port. He has now renominated this man who has been refused confirmation three times. This is a great outrage but President Roosevelt doubtless considers his emphatic re-election as a full justification of his drastic policy, and the negro will now be confirmed. The humiliation is seen in the fact that only white people have business with that office.

THE President's message is long enough and "black" enough for those who voted for him surely. There is no reason for forcing the Crum incident but it only shows the vindictive and kingly spirit of the President. He recommends federal laws to control the great corporations and check abuses which is a wise thought as is also that of supervision of insurance companies. He says not a word about the tariff nor about the extravagance of his administration. The receipts of the government are shown to be over six hundred million while the expenditures are over seven hundred million! This is an awful reflection on our Republican managers.

A NUMBER of representative Republicans of the Eastern Shore gathered at the Hotel Rennert Wednesday night and discussed before Congressman Jackson, and his attorney, Mr. John C. Rose, and several of the Republican managers, the evidence which will convince, Mr. Jackson as to whether or not he desires to contest the seat of Congressman-elect Thos. A. Smith, of the First district. The conference continued until an early hour in the morning, and at its conclusion Attorney Rose stated that no decision would be reached in the matter until the facts and evidence had been carefully scanned and gone over by him.

It is believed that no action will be taken for several days at least. Among those present from Kent were Messrs. Sidney P. Townshend, Wilbur Eliason and Fred Wilson. Mr. Jackson will be surprised at some of the evidence produced against him if he does make the contest.

He is treading on dangerous ground and the Representatives from Kent know it as well as anyone. Be a man, Congressman Jackson and take your defeat like Hon. James E. Ellegood and other good Democrats have done. You were defeated in a fair contest where the man beat the money!

BARGE SUNK!

Oakum in Side of Gladiolus Cut Out Off Betterton and Water Poured into Her Hull—Could not be Beached in Time.

That ice had formed in the Upper Chesapeake Bay thick enough to cut down and sink a big barge may be surprizing news to the dwellers in this city, but not to the mariners who have been breaking through it. The first disaster because of ice was the cutting down and sinking of the barge Gladiolus early Tuesday morning, near Turkey Point. The Cladiolus was in tow of the tug W. W. Curtin, bound from Philadelphia to Norfolk, with 500 tons of stove coal. Off the Sassafras River the tow met ice, but the powerful tug pulled the Gladiolus through it.

Just as they were dropping Turkey Point astern the oakum in the vessel's side was cut out and water poured in her hull from starboard and port, bows. The tug was signalled and came alongside to render assistance; but, in spite of the best efforts of the crews, the barge leaked so badly it was seen she could not be kept afloat.

The tugboat captain headed the disabled barge for the south side of Sassafras River, intending to beach her in hoal water, but before he could make his point the leaking vessel gave a surge and disappeared in 18 feet of water, allowing just time enough for the escape of the crew and the casting off of the lines of the tug to save her from going down with the wreck.

The Gladiolus is one of the larger class of Bay barges. She was built in 1897 at Elkton, and is owned by Philadelphia people. She is of 405 tons register.

SOME distant friend who may have at some time resided within the boarders of old Kent would welcome as a weekly guest the KENT NEWS for 1905. It would make a valuable and inexpensive Christmas present, an unmistakable token of friendship and an investment that will merit your friend's approval. Let us put him on our list. 52 issues for one dollar.

MR. W. H. JACKSON is still talking of contesting Congressman Smith's seat. After his brazen attempt to buy this district—boldly and infamously throwing his thousands of dollars in every county and voting precinct to debauch the voters—it would be unseemly in the extreme for him to be charging anybody else with wrong. It looks like the case of the thief who runs crying "stop thief!" when he himself is the guilty man.

THE proposition to do away with gasoline stoves and discard that dangerous fluid altogether by our city solons, may be a good thing, but the rights of the poor housekeepers who find such stoves so convenient in preparing quick meals should certainly be considered. The thousands who have invested in such stoves will have an absolute claim upon the city for indemnity. It will be a simple act of justice for the City Council to accompany their proposed abolition ordinance with a substantial appropriation for each of the families affected.

THE first rural free school delivery of children in this state is now in effect in Talbot county, having been put in operation at Tunis Mills, Miles River Neck, last week. A man visits the homes of all children living at a distance, carries them to the schoolhouse, and, after the afternoon session of school, returns the children to their homes. By this means many children who were unable to attend school, owing to the long distance which they had to travel and the dangers, are now enabled to attend the school in larger numbers and with safety. This experiment has proven a success.

READY FOR CHRISTMAS.

Kent Merchants Getting In Their Stock And Preparing For a Large Trade.

"Don't leave your Christmas shopping until the last week before Christmas day, or until the last minute." This is the cry of Kent's retail merchants and the appeal of retail stores everywhere. This week will see the entire stock put on the counters and shelves and ready for buyers. Then why not make your selection and, if desired, have the articles put aside until a day or so before they are wanted? All the merchants will be glad to accomodate in this respect and such a plan will aid everybody—the buyer and the seller and the employees who have the work of shipping and delivering. Keep this in mind and make this resolution without waiting for January 1st.

The merchants of Kent in the big stock of staple goods they are offering, and in their selections especially for Christmas trade are more than maintaining their reputation of previous years. The beautiful articles that are bewildering in their variety and delight the eye of the beholder. Any and every thing that could possibly be thought of for a Christmas gift may be had in the stores of Kent county from a diamond necklace worth thousands of dollars down to a five cent pound of candy. In fact, there is no doubt an order for a white elephant even would not phase the big department stores. All the purchaser has to do is make out a list of the things they want to buy and then call on the fine Kent stores and get them. The prices are guaranteed to be right and the excellence of the goods equally so.

It is not necessary for the buyers to take the trouble to think up their gifts, as a matter of fact if they prefer not to, the clerks will help choose them. And any one not satisfied when they look over what these clerks have to offer would be hard to suit.
