HOW WE CATCH A COLD.

A cold is sometimes contracted while remaining enactive for a while in an uncomfortable room or a cold draft and by failing to sleep under like conditions. But most colds are caught while sleeping too cold at night. Deep sleep causes sluggish circulation which renders the system susceptable to change of temperature. To prevent colds, sleep under plenty of cover. To cure colds use Rydales Elixir it lessens the severity and shortens the duration of a cold and prevents pneumonia, Bronchitis and Consumption.

Iceboat Annapolis Succeeds In Saving Imperiled Oystermen—Burnt Huts to Keep Warm—Could Not Have Held Out Much Longer—Fifteen Taken From One Place and Sixteen Found Elsewhere.

A special dispatch to The Sun from Princess Anne Saturday night stated that all of the men who were imprisoned by ice on the Great South marsh and who have been for days in peril of their lives from the cold and lack of food were rescued Saturday afternoon by the iceboat Annapolis which left the capital city at an early hour Friday morning to render what aid was possible. Not only the men, whose distress signals were first noted by the people on Deal's Island were rescued by the Annapolis, but a number of others in a similar perilous situation were discovered and taken back to the mainland, where they got food and comfort.

Thrity-one in all were rescued from different points, and it is reported that none of them have been seriously disabled by their experience, although the suffering from privations and hardships undergone was most intense.

Rejoicing On Deal's Island.

With this party of half starved and half frozen men on board the Annapolis reached Deal's Island about 9.30 o'clock Saturday and their was great rejoicing among the whole population, which has been greatly excited and alarmed about the fate of the marooned men during the past week.

All of the men, it was stated, are well, although some of them are exhausted from the lack of food and the bitter cold. They had been on the flats ever since Jan. 23, their provisions were nearly exhausted when help arrived and for three days they had subsisted on bread and water. Their water supply had also given out, and the men resorted to the expedient of melting snow. The scarity of drift wood and the necessity of having to keep from freezing to death compelled them to demolish several small boats and one or two of the shanties on the Island for fuel.

To their rescuers on board the Annapolis the imprisoned men expressed the deepest gratitude and declared that they would not have been able to hold out longer than a few days more. They were royally welcomed upon their arrival at Deal's Island by their friends and relatives, and the men on the Annapolis were congratulated upon their success.

Annapolis In Heavy Ice

On the way down from Annapolis Friday the iceboat encountered extremely heavy ice in the bay, and upon entering Hooper strait, went aground in the shallow water about three o'clock in the afternoon. The most strenous efforts during the night failed to release the big boat, and she was not floated again until high tide Saturday morning. Undaunted by the difficulties in the way and relying upon the pilot taken down with him, Edward Wilson, colored, Captain Griggs ran down to Kedge's straits signals of distress were given by a small fleet of boats anchored near Mussel shoals, and these signals were promptly answered by the iceboat and the fifteen men in the boats taken on board. They were caught solidy in the ice and could not have gotten away but for the rescue party. They were anchored in the sound and asked to be taken on board and carried ashore.

The Annapolis then proceeded up the sound and soon discovered the signals of the men on Rock Island City, whom they had come to rescue. These signals were in form of coat and blanket raised on a pole and stuck up on the shore. As soon as the iceboat got within hailing distance of the men a small boat was pushed out from the shore to the steamer by one of the men and the Annapolis promptly sent two lifeboats for the others.

Other Oystermen Adrift.

A special dispatch to The Sun from Crisfield says:

"A number of Crisfield oystermen are adrift in the sound and it is feared that they are sharing the same fate as the Deal's Islanders. The schooner Jerome, of Dame's Quarter, near Deal's Island, was dragged out into the sound on Wednesday with one man on board. The man took to a small boat and after a desperate struggle for life managed to get to another schooner which was anchored under Piney Island. He boarded the schooner and is being cared for and fed by the crew of the boat.

"Captain George Tyler, of this city, who left Crisfield several days ago in a small oyster boat, was carried away by the ice and has not been heard from, and as his fuel and provisions was very short it is feared that he is in great distress. Several points in this section where it is likely Captan Tyler would have anchored have been communicated with, but no trace of the missing man has been found. His relatives and and friends here all fear for his welfare.

"A large two-topmast schooner has been seen for the past three days about two miles from Crisfield flying distress signals, and fruitless attempts have been made by citizens here to get to her.

There were men aboard and she was carrying some sail. She is thought to be a vessel from the Western Shore of Maryland. A large number of small boats belonging to Crisfield haye been carried away by the ice and much loss has been caused.

Smith's Island Cut Off.

"As all traffic is closed and has been for some days it is probable that the inhabitants of Smith's Island are in distress and are out of provisions. All of the provisions for the island are secured from the wholesale houses here, and it is learned that it is about time for the people of that place to lay in a large supply of food. As there are no means of communication with the island the condition of affairs at that point can not be ascertained until the freeze is over.
