SIMPERS BACK IN PRISON
Murderer of Mr. Constable Will be Kept In Baltimore Until Few Days Before Execution—Friend And Fellow Prisoner of Convicted Man Broods Over Part He Took In Trial.

The Constable Murder
August 18, 1904—Albert Constable held up and mortally wounded near Elkton
August 19—John Holland and William Hopps, colored, arrested as suspects.
August 23—Mr. Constable died at Union Protestant Infirmary, Baltimore.
December 27—John M. Simpers sent to the penitentiary for eight years for horse stealing.
January 11, 1905—Holland acquitted of murder of Mr. Constable and Hopps case dismissed.
January 28—Detectives Weaver and Dougherty recover Mr. Constable's watch at a Philadelphia pawnshop.
January 30—Residents of Elkton identify Simpers as a man seen in that neighborhood on day of murder.
February 2—Pawning of Constable watch traced to Simpers by pawn tickets.
February 7—Simpers confessed.
March 27—Simpers' trial began at Elkton.
March 30—Simpers convicted.

John Simpers, who was found guilty of the murder of Mr. Albert Constable, was returned to the Maryland penitentiary last Thursday night. He will be kept there until a short time before his execution, when he will again be taken to Elkton. Simpers was permitted to remain in his cell to recover from whatever the ordeal of the trial was to him.
The convict Harris, who testified against Simpers at the Elkton trial, was also returned to the penitentiary to serve out his sentence for wife-murder. Harris was said to have become somewhat morose and melancholy, the result of having testified in the case, and Warden Weyler will also give him time to recover his normal condition as nearly as possible.
When the prisoner was told to stand up to receive the verdict he evidenced anger, though he said not a word. Chief Judge Pearce than asked Simpers if he had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced, and he shook his head. The court then pronounced the following sentence:
Court Addresses the Murderer.
"John Simpers, you have been convicted of the crime of wilful and deliberate murder, and it now becomes the painful duty of the court to pronounce sentence of death which divine and human law alike declare to be your just punishment. Your crime was not done in the heat of passion; you hadn't even the poor excuse of revenge for a real or fancied injury. Your defenseless victim had never crossed your path in life. On that quiet summer evening he, within the shadow of his own home, was taking his accustomed walk on a highway which he had traveled almost daily for more than thirty years, with none to molest him or make him afraid. You were almost in sight of the home of your own innocent childhood, to which you have returned a self-confessed thief; were lurking in the fields and hedges along this highway awaiting an opportunity to replenish by robbery the fruits of your thefts which you have said you lost at the gambling table. You and he were alike in the peace of God and of the state. You ruthlessly broke that peace to obtain money for the gratification of your own desire—you slew a fellow creature who had never harmed you in any way and who in the course of time had before him many years of happiness and usefulness. Without a moment's hesitation you sent his soul to eternity, and now the inevitable law brings its heavy hand upon you and tells you your soul must join his there. Make your peace with God for His goodness and mercy.
"The judgment of the court is that you, John M. Simpers, be taken hence and be remanded to the custody of the warden of the Maryland penitentiary, in the city of Baltimore, until a date not more than three days before the date which shall be hereafter set by the Governor of Maryland for your execution, and on such date no more than three days before the date so set for your execution you be by the said warden of the penitentiary transferred to the custody of the sheriff of Cecil county, and be by him transferred to the Cecil county jail, there to be kept in colse confinement until the day so set for your execution, when you shall be hanged by the neck until you are dead, and may God have mercy on your soul."
After receiving sentence the prisoner was taken to the Elkton Station and brought to Baltimore.
Still After The Reward.
The police authorities of Wilmington, Del., who claim part of the reward offered for the arrest and conviction of Simpers, will enter suit for the share that is due them.
