WHAT IS THE CHURCH?

The Church is a means to an end, and does not exist for its own sake. The church is a college in morals, a university of right living, a culture room, where the laws of life are studied and practised. It is a school to which men are admitted because they are ignorant and want to become wise, weak and want to become strong, bad and want to become good. A church is like the steps leading into a beautiful mansion, but you do not sit down on the steps, you do not set up a tent on the steps, you do not live on the steps; the steps lift you to the level of the warm room, the blazing winter's fire, the bower of home that receives you out of the driving rain or pelting snow. All the ordinances of the Church are steps that lead to the house of character, adorned with all those rich treasures named truth, gentleness, meekness, justice, sympathy. The Church is a hostelry in which man stops for a night on his journey home. The end of the Church is character, likeness to Christ, automatic goodness and weight of character.

Why Some Are Offended.

Some men of high ideals are offended by the mistakes and sins of those within the Church just as once men we offended at Peter's denial, and Judas' treason, and John's cowardice, and Saul's cruelty. Now, I hold no brief to defend every man who has joined the church. I only ask whether, in fair play it is in order to rail at any institution because of the blunders of some identified therewith. Of course there are men in churches who stumble and fall prostrate. Of course, also, there are bankers and cashiers who have stumbled, and a hundred and fifty of them last year made their way to Mexico or Africa. There are jurists who are tempted and fall; there are more than a hundred lawyers from Manhattan and Brooklyn who are now living at State expense in Sing Sing. There are merchants who crowd their shelves with empty pasteboard boxes, and then suffer a fire. Do you feel it is necessary to withdraw from business because there are dishonest men in it? Suppose the youth should refuse marriage and the obligations of husband and father, because some men and women quarrel in the home!

Others there are who have accepted the philosophy of Rousseau. They wish to cast the reins loose upon the neck of passion, and permit their appetites to carry them whithersoever they will. "I want to be free to lead my own life in my own way," they say, "the real life is the untrammeled life—the bird life, the wild horse life, that never takes on the yoke, or feels the whip, or endures the scourge." They talk about the return to nature, and point to the Bohemian career. But stop and reflect. Consider that no man ever added to his obligations to gravity by acknowledging gravity, or escaped the law of gravity by refusing obedience thereto. Natural laws do not ask whether or not we give allegiance to them. Duty is something that must be done. No man increases his obligations by joining a church, and no man lessens his obligations by refusing that allegiance. We owe obedience to the laws of God, not because we are church members, but because we are men. All who are born into a cradle and die into a grave are in God's great world, under the sway of his laws, open to his rewards, incident to obedience, and subject to the penalties of disobedience and sin.

Nature is a very severe teacher and a stern judge. Whether you promise to obey the laws of God or not, Nature will deal out her judgments impartially. You escape no law by refusing obedience; you escape no duty by remaining without the Church; you cannot escape from God's world until you can lift yourself out of the all-encompassing air. There is no land to which you can flee, that you may have license to be lawless. Freedom comes through obedience to law; happiness follows the surrender of the will unto God. The path of duty is the path to glory without and to peace within. Remember that every man without the Church is under every obligation of the man within the church; for duty is not binding upon us as churchmen; duty is binding upon us because we are in God's world, supported by his bounty, and under the obligations incident to his mercy and love.

NOT AT SUNDAY SCHOOL; DEAD

Roy Stevens Visited Neighbors, Got A Pistol And Was Shot.

Preston, Md., Feb. 20.—Roy Stevens, the 15-year-old son of Mr. Tilghman Stevens, a farmer living two miles west of town, was accidentally shot and killed Sunday afternoon.

The boy's parents thought he had gone to Sunday School, but instead, he went to visit the sons of William A. Roe, a neighbor. Mr. Roe was away and the boys got his loaded revolver. While in young Stevens' hands, it was accidentally discharged, the bullet striking him beneath the eye, and, taking an upward course, lodged in his brain. Death secured about an hour after the accident.

Washington College Celebrates

Long live Washington College! This venerable institution, named with his consent after the Father of his Country, befittingly celebrated his birthday on Wednesday last. The exercises in the morning at William Smith Hall were particularly interesting and impressive. The speaker of the day was James Middleton Monroe, Esq., of Annapolis, whose subject, "American Citizenship," was certainly very appropriate to the day. His address was a feast of solid matter for thought and emulation from beginning to end. We wish we could publish the whole address for our readers. Our institutions, our ballot box, our religion and the memories of such men as Washington, Lincoln and Lee, the speaker said, should all be held sacred. The inclination of people toward the cities was regretted, and with the big foreign population the voters of these densely inhabited centres was a paradise for demagogues. Mr. Monroe was emphatic in his opposition to the plan of giving the cities representation in the Legislature that would give them the balance of power and making the other parts of the State a mere nonentity.

Mr. Monroe was accompanied to Chestertown by Harry J. Hopkins, Esq., a Washington College graduate and member of the Board of Visitors and Governors, and Mr. Hall, both well-known citizens of Annapolis.

Addresses were also made by Mr. Jas. L. Madden, '11, on "The Spirit of Washington," and Mr. Roland Homer Crew, '11, on "Washington, the Man Among Men."

Dr. James W. Cain presided over the exercises of the morning and made a short address.

The 64th annual banquet of the Mt. Vernon Literary Society in the evening was one of the most successful ever held by this venerable society Beautiful ladies, gallant gentlemen, a sumptuous repast, sweet music and the brilliant wit of the speakers, all tended to make the evening long to be remembered. About 140 persons were present. Caterer Geo. E. Lambert and his able assistants served the banquet in as able and efficient a manner as any affair every held in this vicinity. The following was the menu:

Blue Points,
Olives, Gherkins, Oysterettes,
Baked Salmon Hollandaise,
Potato Apples, Cheese Straws.
Roast Young Turkey,
Cranberry Sauce, French Peas, Celery,
Chicken Salad,
Tomatoes and Lettuce,
Individual Ices, Assorted Cakes,
Mints, Assorted Almonds,
Coffee.

Mr. Harland W. Huston acted as toast master and in a pleasing and affable manner announced the following toasts:

Washington's Relations to Washington College, Dr. James W. Cain.
Reminiscences of College Life, Dr. Edward J. Clarke.
A New Mt. Vernon Home, Charles H. Gibson, of Frederick, Md.
Mt. Vernon, Calvin T. Ryan.
