THE VACATION OUTFIT

Things That Fit In For Any Occasion—New Silk Waists—High Summer Shoes.

SILK SHIRT WAISTS.

This year the regulation shirt waist, as much like the masculine garment as possible, is very smart if made of striped or plain China Silk, and as these take practically no room, don't muss, are cool and nice looking and can be laundered in a wash bowl with cold water and soap, and need only to be pressed when dry with a warm iron, not a hot one, they are practical and easy to keep in order even if one is travelling constantly. Another new waist is equally practical for dress wear and is the latest Paris fad. This is made of plain Brussels net tucked more or less in quarter inch width, and has very full fluffy frills at one side of the front. These if made detachable can be easily replaced by a fresh ruffle. This waist goes anywhere and is suitably worn with a skirt of wool, satin or linen.

THE TRAVELING RIG.

Few things have been smarter this year than the well made coat dress of linen, serge or mohair and any of these are admirably adapted to journevs, short or long. A few little gamps with or without attached collars, and some side frills that can be pinned over on one side with a pretty stick or handy pin.

4155
4123

The above designs are by The McCall Company, New York, Designers and Makers of McCall Patterns.

The girls are all crazy over side frills, and are making them with colored hems and stitchery to match the pretty striped waists of dimiry, muslin or silk that are all faddish.

A LONG OVER COAT.

The indispensable long coat that every one carries may be of many different styles, weights and materials. Something rainproof is desirable though not necessarily rubber. Very smart coats are of checked Scotch tweed that sheds rain yet is warm enough for comfort when one feels the need of extra clothing in some of the sudden changes of temperature that frequently occur in traveling. Black and white checks with touches of bright red or royal blue or purple in the trimmings are liked by young and older women. Double linen coats with quiet outside color and rose, green or blue linings and trimmings are excellent for motor trips, since they are dressy and dust does not penetrate them. A long wrap of black satin or unlined cloth or silk is nice to have packed with one's preteiest dress ready for emergency party wear, or one of the new little fussy coats of changeable taffeta that are cut off at the waist in front and in the back have long sashlike coat tails, and are used with all the sheer and delicate dresses. Slipped over an evening gown it becomes suitable for any semi-dress occasion. These youthful coats are extremely popular for veranda wraps between dances, though the various pretty scarfs are not yet out of the running.

THE HAT.

For short trips or continuous travel most people manage to dispense with the extra hat, but it becomes in this doubly important that the one hat should be stylish and becoming. One can always cover a traveling hat with the ample veil of automobile type, that everyone finds a necessity these days. One of the various folding hats or bonnets that will slip into the pocket of one's traveling coat is desirable if it can be had not only to save the better headgear but for comfort.

VERONA CLARK.
