

received by this...
By the Steamer Orlin last evening we received the following items of news.
RIODE ISLAND.—The New York Tribune gives returns from all but one town. Jackson, for Governor, and in favor of the unconditional liberation of Mr. Dorr, is elected over Fenner (regular Whig) by about 150 majority!
The Legislature is, however, anti-Dorr. Messrs. Cranston and Arnold elected to Congress.
Hon. Jacob Thompson has been appointed U. S. Senator for Mississippi by the Governor, in the place of the Hon. R. J. Walker, appointed Secretary of the Treasury.
AN EXTRAORDINARY CASE.—A MURDERER WHO MURDERED.—We learn from the Hillsborough (Me.) Recorder, of the 20th ultimo, that at the Superior Court, held at that place the preceding week, a most extraordinary case was tried before Judge Caldwell, which is perhaps as singular in its details as any that have yet been recorded.
A little girl, exactly twelve years of age, and described as really beautiful in features, form and figure, was arraigned for the murder of her father. There was no one present at the time the deed was done, except two small children—no competent evidence—and consequently there was no evidence against her but her own confession, and the fact of her father being found dead in his own house, and no one there but herself, and it could not be proved, although exertion was made to do so, that any person else had been there on the night of the murder. The father was a drunken wretch, and the mother was known to have a paramour, to whom suspicion was attached, but he proved clearly that he was somewhere else on the night of the murder.
It was proved that the father was at a grozshop on the evening of the murder, that he became so intoxicated that the keeper of the grozshop had to put him on a horse and send him home. On the morning after the murder, the owner of the house happened to pass near the door, and discovered the corpse lying there. The man was lying on a pallet before the fire, with one arm under his head, in a sleeping position. The head was severed as with one blow of an axe, and the severed part had rolled down, exposing the brains and the whole interior of the skull, the axe having gone through the head, through three thicknesses of the skull and half an inch into the floor! The owner of the house above mentioned, immediately summoned the neighbors, and held an inquest over the body—the girl and two children being there all the time. The mother of the girl, and a son, nineteen years of age, had left home the evening before, and stood all night at a neighboring house.
The girl immediately confessed that she had killed her father. Her first confession was that her father came home drunk, and went to bed with a knife. She told her mother she would not find a knife. On being asked to show the stick with which he beat her, after looking about, she pointed out one which one of the neighbors had brought, and, on examining her body, no bruises were found, which showed that that part of her story was untrue. She then said that he came home and laid down, and told her to kill him; and on her refusing, he swore he would kill her if she did not; that she went and got the axe, and he laid down, but she still refused to kill him, and he swore he would kill her, as if to get on his feet, and she raised up she said she struck him the neck, but the evidence proved that the blow must have been given when the head was on the floor, thus proving more untruth on her part. The variations in her evidence are singular and excited much speculation. They are the effects of a disturbed and excited state of mind, produced either by fright or an over anxiety, possibly, to excuse the real murderer, if she did not commit the deed herself.
She further stated, that having committed the act, she felt sick, and to avoid fainting, she threw a part of the quilt over the corpse and went to bed; first, however, telling her younger sister, that she had killed her father, and the child immediately started up and went and laid in her dead father's arms all night. The murderer slept!
The evidence of medical gentlemen was that a girl of her age and size had not strength to strike such a blow. This leads many to the belief that the real murderer is yet undiscovered.
While one can scarcely realize that a child would or could commit such a deed, it is seen, on the other hand, that she confessed from the first moment that she did it, and no entreaties could make her alter her statement; not even the wholesome solicitude of a durgoon, through night and through day, or the persuasion of her counsel to disclose the truth, if she had not done it, and their solemn admonitions that the gibbet awaited her unless she recanted. Nothing could move her.
The jury retired but a few minutes, and returned a verdict of "not guilty." The case has produced much excitement and speculation. She was released immediately. The heartless mother left town and went home after the trial was over, and before she heard the verdict of the jury!
SALLY RATNS.
"Dick," inquired the maid, "have you been after the saleratus?"
"No, I hain't."
"If you don't go quick I'll tell your mistress."
"Well, tell mistress as soon as you please. I don't know Sally Ratns, and I won't go near her—you know well enough I am engaged to Ded."

By the Steamer Orlin last evening we received the following items of news.
RIODE ISLAND.—The New York Tribune gives returns from all but one town. Jackson, for Governor, and in favor of the unconditional liberation of Mr. Dorr, is elected over Fenner (regular Whig) by about 150 majority!
The Legislature is, however, anti-Dorr. Messrs. Cranston and Arnold elected to Congress.
Hon. Jacob Thompson has been appointed U. S. Senator for Mississippi by the Governor, in the place of the Hon. R. J. Walker, appointed Secretary of the Treasury.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CASE.—A MURDERER WHO MURDERED.—We learn from the Hillsborough (Me.) Recorder, of the 20th ultimo, that at the Superior Court, held at that place the preceding week, a most extraordinary case was tried before Judge Caldwell, which is perhaps as singular in its details as any that have yet been recorded.
A little girl, exactly twelve years of age, and described as really beautiful in features, form and figure, was arraigned for the murder of her father. There was no one present at the time the deed was done, except two small children—no competent evidence—and consequently there was no evidence against her but her own confession, and the fact of her father being found dead in his own house, and no one there but herself, and it could not be proved, although exertion was made to do so, that any person else had been there on the night of the murder. The father was a drunken wretch, and the mother was known to have a paramour, to whom suspicion was attached, but he proved clearly that he was somewhere else on the night of the murder.
It was proved that the father was at a grozshop on the evening of the murder, that he became so intoxicated that the keeper of the grozshop had to put him on a horse and send him home. On the morning after the murder, the owner of the house happened to pass near the door, and discovered the corpse lying there. The man was lying on a pallet before the fire, with one arm under his head, in a sleeping position. The head was severed as with one blow of an axe, and the severed part had rolled down, exposing the brains and the whole interior of the skull, the axe having gone through the head, through three thicknesses of the skull and half an inch into the floor! The owner of the house above mentioned, immediately summoned the neighbors, and held an inquest over the body—the girl and two children being there all the time. The mother of the girl, and a son, nineteen years of age, had left home the evening before, and stood all night at a neighboring house.
The girl immediately confessed that she had killed her father. Her first confession was that her father came home drunk, and went to bed with a knife. She told her mother she would not find a knife. On being asked to show the stick with which he beat her, after looking about, she pointed out one which one of the neighbors had brought, and, on examining her body, no bruises were found, which showed that that part of her story was untrue. She then said that he came home and laid down, and told her to kill him; and on her refusing, he swore he would kill her if she did not; that she went and got the axe, and he laid down, but she still refused to kill him, and he swore he would kill her, as if to get on his feet, and she raised up she said she struck him the neck, but the evidence proved that the blow must have been given when the head was on the floor, thus proving more untruth on her part. The variations in her evidence are singular and excited much speculation. They are the effects of a disturbed and excited state of mind, produced either by fright or an over anxiety, possibly, to excuse the real murderer, if she did not commit the deed herself.
She further stated, that having committed the act, she felt sick, and to avoid fainting, she threw a part of the quilt over the corpse and went to bed; first, however, telling her younger sister, that she had killed her father, and the child immediately started up and went and laid in her dead father's arms all night. The murderer slept!
The evidence of medical gentlemen was that a girl of her age and size had not strength to strike such a blow. This leads many to the belief that the real murderer is yet undiscovered.
While one can scarcely realize that a child would or could commit such a deed, it is seen, on the other hand, that she confessed from the first moment that she did it, and no entreaties could make her alter her statement; not even the wholesome solicitude of a durgoon, through night and through day, or the persuasion of her counsel to disclose the truth, if she had not done it, and their solemn admonitions that the gibbet awaited her unless she recanted. Nothing could move her.
The jury retired but a few minutes, and returned a verdict of "not guilty." The case has produced much excitement and speculation. She was released immediately. The heartless mother left town and went home after the trial was over, and before she heard the verdict of the jury!
SALLY RATNS.
"Dick," inquired the maid, "have you been after the saleratus?"
"No, I hain't."
"If you don't go quick I'll tell your mistress."
"Well, tell mistress as soon as you please. I don't know Sally Ratns, and I won't go near her—you know well enough I am engaged to Ded."

It was proved that the father was at a grozshop on the evening of the murder, that he became so intoxicated that the keeper of the grozshop had to put him on a horse and send him home. On the morning after the murder, the owner of the house happened to pass near the door, and discovered the corpse lying there. The man was lying on a pallet before the fire, with one arm under his head, in a sleeping position. The head was severed as with one blow of an axe, and the severed part had rolled down, exposing the brains and the whole interior of the skull, the axe having gone through the head, through three thicknesses of the skull and half an inch into the floor! The owner of the house above mentioned, immediately summoned the neighbors, and held an inquest over the body—the girl and two children being there all the time. The mother of the girl, and a son, nineteen years of age, had left home the evening before, and stood all night at a neighboring house.
The girl immediately confessed that she had killed her father. Her first confession was that her father came home drunk, and went to bed with a knife. She told her mother she would not find a knife. On being asked to show the stick with which he beat her, after looking about, she pointed out one which one of the neighbors had brought, and, on examining her body, no bruises were found, which showed that that part of her story was untrue. She then said that he came home and laid down, and told her to kill him; and on her refusing, he swore he would kill her if she did not; that she went and got the axe, and he laid down, but she still refused to kill him, and he swore he would kill her, as if to get on his feet, and she raised up she said she struck him the neck, but the evidence proved that the blow must have been given when the head was on the floor, thus proving more untruth on her part. The variations in her evidence are singular and excited much speculation. They are the effects of a disturbed and excited state of mind, produced either by fright or an over anxiety, possibly, to excuse the real murderer, if she did not commit the deed herself.
She further stated, that having committed the act, she felt sick, and to avoid fainting, she threw a part of the quilt over the corpse and went to bed; first, however, telling her younger sister, that she had killed her father, and the child immediately started up and went and laid in her dead father's arms all night. The murderer slept!
The evidence of medical gentlemen was that a girl of her age and size had not strength to strike such a blow. This leads many to the belief that the real murderer is yet undiscovered.
While one can scarcely realize that a child would or could commit such a deed, it is seen, on the other hand, that she confessed from the first moment that she did it, and no entreaties could make her alter her statement; not even the wholesome solicitude of a durgoon, through night and through day, or the persuasion of her counsel to disclose the truth, if she had not done it, and their solemn admonitions that the gibbet awaited her unless she recanted. Nothing could move her.
The jury retired but a few minutes, and returned a verdict of "not guilty." The case has produced much excitement and speculation. She was released immediately. The heartless mother left town and went home after the trial was over, and before she heard the verdict of the jury!
SALLY RATNS.
"Dick," inquired the maid, "have you been after the saleratus?"
"No, I hain't."
"If you don't go quick I'll tell your mistress."
"Well, tell mistress as soon as you please. I don't know Sally Ratns, and I won't go near her—you know well enough I am engaged to Ded."

It was proved that the father was at a grozshop on the evening of the murder, that he became so intoxicated that the keeper of the grozshop had to put him on a horse and send him home. On the morning after the murder, the owner of the house happened to pass near the door, and discovered the corpse lying there. The man was lying on a pallet before the fire, with one arm under his head, in a sleeping position. The head was severed as with one blow of an axe, and the severed part had rolled down, exposing the brains and the whole interior of the skull, the axe having gone through the head, through three thicknesses of the skull and half an inch into the floor! The owner of the house above mentioned, immediately summoned the neighbors, and held an inquest over the body—the girl and two children being there all the time. The mother of the girl, and a son, nineteen years of age, had left home the evening before, and stood all night at a neighboring house.
The girl immediately confessed that she had killed her father. Her first confession was that her father came home drunk, and went to bed with a knife. She told her mother she would not find a knife. On being asked to show the stick with which he beat her, after looking about, she pointed out one which one of the neighbors had brought, and, on examining her body, no bruises were found, which showed that that part of her story was untrue. She then said that he came home and laid down, and told her to kill him; and on her refusing, he swore he would kill her if she did not; that she went and got the axe, and he laid down, but she still refused to kill him, and he swore he would kill her, as if to get on his feet, and she raised up she said she struck him the neck, but the evidence proved that the blow must have been given when the head was on the floor, thus proving more untruth on her part. The variations in her evidence are singular and excited much speculation. They are the effects of a disturbed and excited state of mind, produced either by fright or an over anxiety, possibly, to excuse the real murderer, if she did not commit the deed herself.
She further stated, that having committed the act, she felt sick, and to avoid fainting, she threw a part of the quilt over the corpse and went to bed; first, however, telling her younger sister, that she had killed her father, and the child immediately started up and went and laid in her dead father's arms all night. The murderer slept!
The evidence of medical gentlemen was that a girl of her age and size had not strength to strike such a blow. This leads many to the belief that the real murderer is yet undiscovered.
While one can scarcely realize that a child would or could commit such a deed, it is seen, on the other hand, that she confessed from the first moment that she did it, and no entreaties could make her alter her statement; not even the wholesome solicitude of a durgoon, through night and through day, or the persuasion of her counsel to disclose the truth, if she had not done it, and their solemn admonitions that the gibbet awaited her unless she recanted. Nothing could move her.
The jury retired but a few minutes, and returned a verdict of "not guilty." The case has produced much excitement and speculation. She was released immediately. The heartless mother left town and went home after the trial was over, and before she heard the verdict of the jury!
SALLY RATNS.
"Dick," inquired the maid, "have you been after the saleratus?"
"No, I hain't."
"If you don't go quick I'll tell your mistress."
"Well, tell mistress as soon as you please. I don't know Sally Ratns, and I won't go near her—you know well enough I am engaged to Ded."

It was proved that the father was at a grozshop on the evening of the murder, that he became so intoxicated that the keeper of the grozshop had to put him on a horse and send him home. On the morning after the murder, the owner of the house happened to pass near the door, and discovered the corpse lying there. The man was lying on a pallet before the fire, with one arm under his head, in a sleeping position. The head was severed as with one blow of an axe, and the severed part had rolled down, exposing the brains and the whole interior of the skull, the axe having gone through the head, through three thicknesses of the skull and half an inch into the floor! The owner of the house above mentioned, immediately summoned the neighbors, and held an inquest over the body—the girl and two children being there all the time. The mother of the girl, and a son, nineteen years of age, had left home the evening before, and stood all night at a neighboring house.
The girl immediately confessed that she had killed her father. Her first confession was that her father came home drunk, and went to bed with a knife. She told her mother she would not find a knife. On being asked to show the stick with which he beat her, after looking about, she pointed out one which one of the neighbors had brought, and, on examining her body, no bruises were found, which showed that that part of her story was untrue. She then said that he came home and laid down, and told her to kill him; and on her refusing, he swore he would kill her if she did not; that she went and got the axe, and he laid down, but she still refused to kill him, and he swore he would kill her, as if to get on his feet, and she raised up she said she struck him the neck, but the evidence proved that the blow must have been given when the head was on the floor, thus proving more untruth on her part. The variations in her evidence are singular and excited much speculation. They are the effects of a disturbed and excited state of mind, produced either by fright or an over anxiety, possibly, to excuse the real murderer, if she did not commit the deed herself.
She further stated, that having committed the act, she felt sick, and to avoid fainting, she threw a part of the quilt over the corpse and went to bed; first, however, telling her younger sister, that she had killed her father, and the child immediately started up and went and laid in her dead father's arms all night. The murderer slept!
The evidence of medical gentlemen was that a girl of her age and size had not strength to strike such a blow. This leads many to the belief that the real murderer is yet undiscovered.
While one can scarcely realize that a child would or could commit such a deed, it is seen, on the other hand, that she confessed from the first moment that she did it, and no entreaties could make her alter her statement; not even the wholesome solicitude of a durgoon, through night and through day, or the persuasion of her counsel to disclose the truth, if she had not done it, and their solemn admonitions that the gibbet awaited her unless she recanted. Nothing could move her.
The jury retired but a few minutes, and returned a verdict of "not guilty." The case has produced much excitement and speculation. She was released immediately. The heartless mother left town and went home after the trial was over, and before she heard the verdict of the jury!
SALLY RATNS.
"Dick," inquired the maid, "have you been after the saleratus?"
"No, I hain't."
"If you don't go quick I'll tell your mistress."
"Well, tell mistress as soon as you please. I don't know Sally Ratns, and I won't go near her—you know well enough I am engaged to Ded."

It was proved that the father was at a grozshop on the evening of the murder, that he became so intoxicated that the keeper of the grozshop had to put him on a horse and send him home. On the morning after the murder, the owner of the house happened to pass near the door, and discovered the corpse lying there. The man was lying on a pallet before the fire, with one arm under his head, in a sleeping position. The head was severed as with one blow of an axe, and the severed part had rolled down, exposing the brains and the whole interior of the skull, the axe having gone through the head, through three thicknesses of the skull and half an inch into the floor! The owner of the house above mentioned, immediately summoned the neighbors, and held an inquest over the body—the girl and two children being there all the time. The mother of the girl, and a son, nineteen years of age, had left home the evening before, and stood all night at a neighboring house.
The girl immediately confessed that she had killed her father. Her first confession was that her father came home drunk, and went to bed with a knife. She told her mother she would not find a knife. On being asked to show the stick with which he beat her, after looking about, she pointed out one which one of the neighbors had brought, and, on examining her body, no bruises were found, which showed that that part of her story was untrue. She then said that he came home and laid down, and told her to kill him; and on her refusing, he swore he would kill her if she did not; that she went and got the axe, and he laid down, but she still refused to kill him, and he swore he would kill her, as if to get on his feet, and she raised up she said she struck him the neck, but the evidence proved that the blow must have been given when the head was on the floor, thus proving more untruth on her part. The variations in her evidence are singular and excited much speculation. They are the effects of a disturbed and excited state of mind, produced either by fright or an over anxiety, possibly, to excuse the real murderer, if she did not commit the deed herself.
She further stated, that having committed the act, she felt sick, and to avoid fainting, she threw a part of the quilt over the corpse and went to bed; first, however, telling her younger sister, that she had killed her father, and the child immediately started up and went and laid in her dead father's arms all night. The murderer slept!
The evidence of medical gentlemen was that a girl of her age and size had not strength to strike such a blow. This leads many to the belief that the real murderer is yet undiscovered.
While one can scarcely realize that a child would or could commit such a deed, it is seen, on the other hand, that she confessed from the first moment that she did it, and no entreaties could make her alter her statement; not even the wholesome solicitude of a durgoon, through night and through day, or the persuasion of her counsel to disclose the truth, if she had not done it, and their solemn admonitions that the gibbet awaited her unless she recanted. Nothing could move her.
The jury retired but a few minutes, and returned a verdict of "not guilty." The case has produced much excitement and speculation. She was released immediately. The heartless mother left town and went home after the trial was over, and before she heard the verdict of the jury!
SALLY RATNS.
"Dick," inquired the maid, "have you been after the saleratus?"
"No, I hain't."
"If you don't go quick I'll tell your mistress."
"Well, tell mistress as soon as you please. I don't know Sally Ratns, and I won't go near her—you know well enough I am engaged to Ded."

From the New World (neutral.)
THE PRESIDENT AND THE CABINET.
There is one great advantage in "extending the area of freedom," which should go far towards reconciling candid and moderate men of all parties to the acquisition of Texas. It is this: As the country grows larger, and embraces a greater number and variety of conflicting interests, political parties must become less fiercely partisan. There is a democracy of the South, and a Democracy of the North, and a democracy of the West. In order to form one party, these must compromise, and their compromise constitutes a party, more moderate and less ultra than either of the sections which compose it.
This view is verified, in no small measure, by that which has already come to pass since Mr. Polk's election. The President doubtless intends to carry into effect the opinions of the masses of men who elected him. Yet, coming into office, as a party candidate, he has certainly opened his administration in no spirit of jealousy or partisanship. His cabinet is a compromise, almost the best of the cabinet, the very best one that could be formed, only the representation of all the leading interests and elements of a single party, yet how wide a diversity of opinion does it embrace! Contrast Mr. Bancroft's philosophic and uncompromising democracy with the practical tact and dexterity of Governor Marcy. Compare Mr. Buchanan's view of the tariff policy with Mr. Walker's. Nay, on the Texas question itself—the very test question of the cabinet, the principle of which was certainly settled, if anything was settled, by Mr. Polk's election—it is most manifest that the views of the cabinet will be widely at variance when the complicated negotiations come up, which are to adjust the terms of annexation. On this subject, it will be found, we think, that Marcy, Bancroft, Buchanan, and Walker, represent quite different latitudes in opinion, as well as in geography.
Personally considered, the members of the cabinet seem admirably chosen to represent the various shades of opinion in the democratic party of the country, without committing the administration to the whole policy of any single democratic clique.—Bancroft, better than any other man in the nation, perhaps, embodies the democratic theory of politics. Marcy, on the other hand, stands for that conservative element in the party which moderates its large theories and adapts them to existing facts. Buchanan—holding the department to which belong the foreign relations of the country, while on the Oregon and Texas questions he stands, as a democrat, fully committed—seems fully chosen to pursue the firm policy of his party with the prudence and steadiness suited to the peaceful policy of the country. And Walker, coming into a Texas administration as the originator of the Texas movement and placed at the head of the treasury as a guaranty to the South that her anti-slavery interests and claims shall not be lost sight of, presents, in his northern origin and associations, a warrant that, so far as cabinet influence extends, those claims and interests shall not be pushed too far.
In one respect, we cannot but hope that the composition of the present cabinet argues a change at hand in the distribution of the public employment and patronage. Hitherto the South has offered the navy of the United States, while the North has only named it. We hope Mr. Polk's administration will fully inform the country that our navy is not the property of Virginia, to be used as a house of refuge for the younger sons of her leading families. If Mr. Bancroft shall be able to bring about this reform, he will, in so doing, have done the country such good service as a statesman, as almost to compensate the irreparable loss which every scholar must feel, in the temporary cessation of his labors as a historian.

JONAH AND THE WHALE.
"My son, hold up your head, and tell me who was the strongest man?"
"Jonah."
"Why so?"
"Cause the whale couldn't hold him after he got him down."
"That's a man—you needn't study the catechism any more at present."
An honest son of Erin, green from his peregrinations, put his head into a lawyer's office, and asked the inmate, "and what do you sell here?"
"Blockheads," replied the limb of the law.
"Och! then to be sure," said Pat, "it must be a good trade, for I see there's but one left."
"What's the matter, my dear?" said a kind wife to her husband, who had sat for half an hour with his face buried in his hands, and apparently in great tribulation.
"Oh, I don't know, I've felt like a fool all day."
"Well, returned the wife, consolingly, "I'm afraid you'll never feel any better; you look the very picture of what you feel!"

Health and its attendant blessings can only be secured by a proper attention to the symptoms of disease as they occur, and which, if left unattended to, result in the most fatal consequences. How often is it that a neglected cough terminates in consumption, when a few of Sherman's Cough Lozenges, given in time, would have prevented the evil. And worms, too, these destroyers of the rising generation, are permitted to pursue their ravages, when a box of Sherman's Worm Lozenges would have banished them entirely, and rendered the sufferer hearty and happy. And how frequently we see many around us bowed down under a dreadful headache, or hear them complaining of faintness or palpitation, when if they only knew how quick Sherman's Camphor Lozenges would relieve them, they would suffer no more. Dr. Sherman's remedies are no humbug, nor is there any quackery about them. Try them and you will be satisfied. They may be had at his warehouse, 106 Nassau, N. Y.
For sale at the Drug Store of Messrs. E. M. Dawson & Brother, Easton, and by agents at other stores in the country.

THE SUBSCRIBER informs his constituents that he has just returned from Baltimore with an extensive assortment of DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARDWARE, QUEENSWARE, &c. Also, BALZARINE AND CRAPE LAWN. A GENERAL ASSORTMENT OF BOOTS AND SHOES. MEN'S AND BOY'S HATS, together with a great variety of other articles, all of which will be sold cheap for cash, or on short credit to punctual customers. He returns thanks for the patronage heretofore received, and hopes his old customers and the public generally will not neglect to favor him with a call previous to purchasing elsewhere. W. M. WHEELER. Easton, April 8, 1845.—1f

CANTON CHINA.
J. S. HASTINGS, Jr. has just received a large invoice of CANTON CHINA DINNER WARE, which can be sold in lots or separately. This is a good opportunity for Families using the article to make up their orders. Also, a beautiful assortment of CHINA, GLASS & QUEENSWARE, of the most recent patterns, which will be sold very low at No. 9 South Charles St. MRS. STILSON'S.

TO COUNTRY MERCHANTS.
A complete assortment adapted to every section of country at Philadelphia and New York prices. Packing warranted. JOS. S. HASTINGS, Jr. April 8, 1845.—3m

"MR. AND MRS. ARCHER'S ACADEMY
YOUNG LADIES.
No. 40, Lexington Street, Baltimore.

THIS INSTITUTION has been in successful operation for several years, and at present numbers about one hundred pupils. All the branches of a finished female education are taught under the personal superintendance of the Principals, assisted by the ablest Professors of the country. For particular information as to terms of board, tuition, &c. address the Principals. The following gentlemen form the most part have daughters in the school and may be referred to:—
Gen. Winfield Scott, U. S. Army. Rev. Dr. Wyatt, Rev. Jno. M. Duncan, Rev. Mr. Hammer, Rev. Thos. Atkinson, Hon. Simeon Archer, Baltimore city, Sam. L. Donaldson, Baltimore city, J. H. Bernard, Virginia, Dan'l. Lloyd, Talbot county, Md.

* Mr. Archer, graduate of the West Point Academy. [Apr 8, 1845.—6m

WANTED.—The subscriber wishes to employ a youth to attend in his store. One that can come well recommended can obtain a situation on application to—
April 1—3w SAM L. PARSONS

Baltimore Market.
GRAIN & SEEDS.—The supply of Wheat has been limited, and prices have improved; sales of Pennsylvania (and there has been little of any other description brought forward) which have been made at 86c. to $1 for red, and $1 15 for prime white. Some few parcels of Maryland have been received by wagons, which were taken by millers about the foregoing rates.
Rye has declined, and we are hardly able to quote a price, but think that not over 61 to 62 cents can be obtained.
Corn may be quoted at 42 cents for white, and 44 to 45 for yellow.
Oats are steady at 25 to 26 cents.
Clover seed is almost or quite out of the market, and so little is the demand for it, that a quotation would be merely nominal.

MARRIED.
In Dorchester, by the Rev. R. E. Kemp, on the 30th ult. Mr. William Lumbdin to Mrs. Jane Works, formerly of Talbot county.

DIED.
In Baltimore, last week, Wm. C. Ridgway, formerly of this county.
In Baltimore on the 21st inst. Mr. Joseph Robinson, aged 50 years, formerly of Talbot county.
In this county a few days since Mrs. Mary Caulk, consort of Capt. John H. Caulk.

NOTICE.
RETAILERS, Traders, Ordinary Keepers, Victuallers, and all other persons, bodies corporate or public in Talbot county, and all persons whom it may concern are hereby cautioned to obtain a License, or renew the same according to the provisions of the Act of Assembly entitled "An act to regulate the issuing of Licenses to Traders, Keepers of Ordinaries and others," before the 10th day of May ensuing.
W. M. WILLIS, Sheriff.
N. B.—The owners of Stallions &c. are required to license the same before commencing the season.
April 8, 1845.—3w

NOTICE.
THE POST OFFICE is removed to the house lately occupied by T. C. Nicols, Esq., opposite the Market, where persons will please call for their Letters and Papers.

53—I have just returned from Baltimore with a small stock of DRY GOODS, Groceries and Queensware, selected with great care and of sup. quality. ALSO, LADY'S AND CHILDREN'S SUMMER GAITER BOOTS, MOROCCO SHOES, &c. all of which will be sold at the lowest prices for cash only. A share of public patronage, particularly from the Ladies, is respectfully solicited.
E. HUSSEY, Easton, April 8th 1845.—3f

NEW SPRING GOODS.
J. M. H. & P. GROOME have just returned from the city with a general assortment of Goods, suited for the present season, and respectfully invite the public to call and examine them.
Easton, April 1st, 1845.—6f

NEW SPRING GOODS.
THE SUBSCRIBER has just returned from the city with a complete and extensive assortment of DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARDWARE, QUEENSWARE, &c. Also, BALZARINE AND CRAPE LAWN. A GENERAL ASSORTMENT OF BOOTS AND SHOES. MEN'S AND BOY'S HATS, together with a great variety of other articles, all of which will be sold cheap for cash, or on short credit to punctual customers. He returns thanks for the patronage heretofore received, and hopes his old customers and the public generally will not neglect to favor him with a call previous to purchasing elsewhere.
W. M. WHEELER. Easton, April 8, 1845.—1f

WANTED.—The subscriber wishes to employ a youth to attend in his store. One that can come well recommended can obtain a situation on application to—
April 1—3w SAM L. PARSONS

NOTICE.
Judgment before Solomon Mullikin Esq. (Magistrate) for $133.73 etc. debt, with interest from 26th day of February 1842, and 65c. costs.
James Chaplain, deceased, having in his lifetime purchased the real estate of the above named Defendant at a sale thereof in virtue of an Execution issued upon the foregoing Judgment, made on the 27th day of January in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and forty four, by Lewis P. Ross, (Constable,) the subscriber hereby gives notice that he intends to apply to the Judges of Talbot county Court at its next session, to be held in Easton on the third Monday of May next, for a confirmation of said sale; when and where the said Defendant or his creditors or any other person claiming an interest in the matter, will have an opportunity of stating their objections, if any they have, why the sale should not be confirmed, and for that purpose are hereby warned to appear.
The property purchased by James Chaplain consists of all right, title, interest and claim of the said Isaac Mackery of, in and to a Tract or parcel of Land situated, lying and being in Talbot county on the main road leading from Easton to Aere's Ferry, and near the village of Trappe, and on which Isaac Mackery resides, containing the quantity of twenty-six and a half acres of Land, more or less, and was struck off for the sum of $310.00.
JNO. F. CHAPLAIN, Ex'r.
April 8, 1845.—3w of Jas. Chaplain.

NOTICE.
THE COMMISSIONERS for Talbot County will meet at their room in the Court House in the town of Easton on Tuesday the 6th, Thursday the 8th, and Friday the 9th, of May ensuing, and on each subsequent Tuesday, Thursday and Friday in said month, for the purpose of hearing appeals, making transfers and abatements; and for the transaction of such other business as may be connected with the assessments of real and personal property in Talbot county.
By order,
GEO. W. SHERWOOD, Ck.
April 8th, 1845, 11—G 3w.

CLOTHING
Cheap for Cash.
The subscriber has returned from Baltimore with a fresh supply of CLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS, which he will make up in the most fashionable style at very reduced prices for cash. He solicits a continuation of public patronage.
T. D. YALANT, Easton, April 1st, 1845.—3w

NEW SPRING GOODS.
J. M. H. & P. GROOME have just returned from the city with a general assortment of Goods, suited for the present season, and respectfully invite the public to call and examine them.
Easton, April 1st, 1845.—6f

NEW SPRING GOODS.
THE SUBSCRIBER has just returned from the city with a complete and extensive assortment of DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARDWARE, QUEENSWARE, &c. Also, BALZARINE AND CRAPE LAWN. A GENERAL ASSORTMENT OF BOOTS AND SHOES. MEN'S AND BOY'S HATS, together with a great variety of other articles, all of which will be sold cheap for cash, or on short credit to punctual customers. He returns thanks for the patronage heretofore received, and hopes his old customers and the public generally will not neglect to favor him with a call previous to purchasing elsewhere.
W. M. WHEELER. Easton, April 8, 1845.—1f

WANTED.—A WOMAN who can keep, will hear of a good situation by applying at this office. To reside in Miles River Neck.
Feb 25—1f

MEDICINES.
R. F. HEMSLEY has just returned from New York with a stock of superior MEDICINES, selected with great care as to purity and genuineness.
—ALSO—
Phalada, Pure White Lead, Lined Oil and Lamp Oil at reduced prices;—Egg Brushes, Tery and Buffalo Tooth Brushes & Combs, Fancy Soaps, Perfumery, &c. etc.
Easton, April 1st, 1845.—4f

NURSE FOR SALE.
A NEGRO WOMAN, twenty years old, with one child. She is a first rate Nurse, Chambermaid and Waiter. Her owner having no use for her she will be disposed of on reasonable terms to a good master who will not remove her out of the State.
Enquire of the Editor of the Easton Gazette. [Apr 1—3f

Medical Notice.
THE Medico-Chirurgical Board of Examiners for the Eastern Shore will meet in Easton on Wednesday the 10th of April next, for the purpose of granting licenses to qualified applicants to practice Medicine and Surgery in the State of Maryland.
By order, S. M. JENKINS, Sec'y. Easton, mar 18, 1845.—1m

For Annapolis, Cambridge and EASTON.
The Steamer MARYLAND will leave Baltimore on Tuesday the 18th March at 7 o'clock on her usual place of stopping, lower end of Dargun's wharf, being the commencement of her regular trips on Tuesdays and Fridays.
L. G. TAYLOR. mar 18, 1845.

Farmers' Bank of Maryland, Branch Bank at Easton.
The President, Directors and Company of the Farmers' Bank of Maryland have declared a dividend of 3 per cent. on the Stock of the company for the last six months, which will be payable to the Stockholders in the Branch Bank aforesaid, or by their legal representatives, on or after the first Monday in April, retaining one half the State Tax for 1845 on all the stock, the dividend for which is payable at this Bank as required by law.
Per order,
W. M. TILGHMAN, Ch'. April 1st, 1845.—3w

LIST OF LETTERS remaining in the Post office at Easton, Md. March 31st, 1845. Persons calling for these letters will please say they are advertised, otherwise they will not receive them.
A.—Akers Charles, Adams Joo C.
B.—Berry Fred'k. A.
C.—Clark Cain, Cunningham J. Collier Edward, Clark Jacob, Craig Louisa H.—Philemon, Clark Hester, Clements Seth, Corke Thos. Barrell Sylvia, Dickerson, D.—De Witt Moses, Dodd Alex'r., De Course Jas. Davis Henry, Dawson S. A. Davis Ed. Y.
E.—Elliott Columbus, Everett William, Edmondson H. L.
F.—Furnam W. T. E. Fairbank Wm. Frauenfeld Wm. Faulkner Wm.
G.—Grace James, Gore W. J. N. Grace Peter, Goldborough A. J. Gaiten Lewis 2, Gosseye Richard, Gibson Jas. Gibbs R'd. H.—Holt Charles, Haddaway Danl. L. Hale Geo. Haskins Barclay, Hopkins R. G. J.—Jackson Deborah.
K.—Kennard Saml. Kemp Wm. Kirby Benjamin.
L.—Larimore Wm. Lloyd Dan'l, Leonard Ann, Leonard T. H.; Lounds C. 3.—Lecompte E.
M.—Martin Mrs. J.; Manship B. H. Morling Wm. H.; Meconekin E. 2.—Melville Jno. B.; Miller Daniel; Morling Geo.; Martin J. L.; Mاستر Severn; Millington Benjamin.
N.—Nabb E. H.; Noble George.
O.—Ogden H. A.
P.—Plater C. M. 2.—Pearson Joseph, Price M.
R.—Richardson M. A. 2.—Roe Edward, Roszell Enalls, 3.—Rice Wm. Ridgway Jas. A.; Roszell Jas.; Ray J. B.; Ray H. A. S.—Smith Sam'l.; Sherwood T.; Skinner E.; Sherron S. L.; Shehan M.; Scott R. M. 2.—Spelden A.; Skinner E. G.; Sollers H. R.; Spence E.; Stitcheberry S.; Skinner W. C.; Starkey S. A.; Snow Thomas; Stewart Charles; Steele S. A.; Sylvester Thomas. T.—Tilghman Jno. C.; Thompson Jos. Todd P.
V.—Vazzy S. W.; Valiant John.
W.—Wrightson S. A.; Wrightson Jere, Willoughby Mary; Willson C. P. Ap 1—3f E. HUSSEY, P. M.

FOR RENT, for the ensuing year, THE FARM CALLED OAKLAND, now in the tenancy of Mr. Gore;—also, the adjoining farm called GOCK HOPE, in the tenancy of Mr. Driver; also, the farm called MOUNTAINS, in the tenancy of Mr. Braico. As the term of the present tenants on the farms will expire with the present year, they will be let to good tenants for one or more years, as may be preferred.
A HOUSE & LOT, situated on the Perry Hall farm, will be rented to a skillful Carpenter. Apply to Mrs. MARIA ROGERS, March 11—1f or to P. F. THOMAS.

MEDICINES, Drugs, Dye-stuffs, Paints, &c.
THE subscriber keeps constantly for sale on the most reasonable terms, an assortment of Medicines, Drugs, Dye-stuffs, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, &c.
Being largely engaged in grinding such articles as Ginger, Mustard and Pepper, he has them for sale, of a superior quality, below the market price.
He would mention that he has a Patent Machine, worked by steam-power, which enables him to sell PUTTY of the best quality for 3c. a lb. in Bladders and Sacs. in Bulk.
He confidently asserts that his prices are such as to give satisfaction to those who may favor him with a call.
J. W. W. GORDON, No. 152, West Pratt St. Baltimore, opposite Balt. & Ohio Rail Road Dept. N. B.—No charge made for delivering Goods in any part of the city. March 11, 1845.—3m$3

CHEAP DRY GOODS,