The Milking Maid in the Morning. When the dew is on the clover, And the gorse in Autumn bloom, And the primrose-beds all over With acorn oups are strewn; And the lazy rooks sit cawing High up on the tallest tree, I lead my heifers, lowing, To the milking, through the lea.

Then calls to me The cuckoo free; Sings clear and ripe, With his golden pire,

When the bloom is on the bean-stalk, And the hare in green hedge-rows Washes her face with the dew-drops, I call to my new milch cows. The partridge springs, on dewy wings, And the pheasant, under the bough, Flashes the sheen of his purple rings, As my milk-white heifers low. And sings for me, In green-wood tree,

And the skylark, he
