Poetical.

[Selected for the State Rights.] SONG OF FATIMA. Oh, sad are they, who know not love, But far from passion's smiles and tears, Drift down a moonless sea, and pass The silvery coasts of fairy isles:

And sadder they, whose longing lips Kiss empty air, and never touch Waiting, waiting, suffering much:

But clear as amber, sweet as musk, Is life to those whose lives unite: 100 They walk in Allah's smiles by day, And nestle in his heart by night.

NOT ASHAMED OF BUNDLES. - We have often heard a half grown boy say pettishy to his mother-"I don't like to be seen carrying a big buudle in the streets."

But true pride is ashamed of such littleness of mind. Mr. Astor, the wealthy millionaire of New York, once was reluctant to sell some goods to a young merchant, except for cash. The merchant paid for them, and then took them on his own shoulder to carry to his store.-Mr. Astor looked on in surprise, but before the merchant had gone many steps, he called him back, saying-"You may buy on credit to any amount. I can trust you sir A who man is not ashamed to do his own work is sure to succeed." Here is another good lesson for false pride: Chief Justice Marshall was a great man; but great men are never proud.-He was not too proud to wait upon him-The following we find in the Buffalo self. He was in the habit of going to carry home his turkey. Judge Marshall When he heard, he said:

"That is in my way I will take your turkey home for you." When they came to the house, the young man asked:

"What shall I pay you?" "Oh, nothing," said the Judge, "you are welcome; it was all in my way, and it was no trouble to me."

"Who is that polite old man who "Oh," said he, "that was Judge Mar-
