

I suppose you are aware that Miss Worthington and Brian have been on a visit to our city. They spent last Thursday with me. we had quite a pleasant time. They were to return yesterday.
Prosperie left here yesterday. He had five days leave, but would have liked to stop longer. as his lady-love is in the city visiting her aunt.

I have much to tell you when we meet. Tell Mamie to hold herself in readiness for a good big laugh on several things.

Poor Mollie. I fear. would be a fearful shock to her. should she be relieved of her shocking colds. Lizzie had better sling that head of hers over the fence. and get a new one.

Has that wedding come off yet? I think generally mind up such affairs. it must be near at hand. time is rapidly passing. Tell me all!
How do you manage to survive this unpleasant weather. to me, tis an intolerable bore.
I will go out.

I see by the papers you are having lively times at the Capital. some tall speaking done.
