

Dr P left a wife & two children - a son and daughter. Her daughter had been a widow for some time. Dr P. was always seeking for something to live his daughter - he was always seeking for something delicate for her.

Dr P. was most peculiar man I ever saw. It was difficult to induce him to be for home for any length of time.

X He was peculiar in all his appointments.

I could not have suspected the man was the body of Dr P. if I had not known him to be missing - I don't know why I should have thought it to be him if he had not been missing.

I took the mortgage which I now possess the day before I appeared before the Jury of Inquest. I read it of Mrs. Pughman at her house.

Plan of streets made by Wadsworth - admitted by Dr. Council to be correct without calling Wadsworth to prove it.
