

I saw the person in the laboratory.
I should think the head might be removed in it in course of two or 3 hours. —

I can state how long it would take to burn off the remaining portion of the body.
What was not found - i.e. arms, legs & feet —

I should not think any thing about the remains would indicate the age within a yr.

The ^{in lower limbs} muscular development was more than I should have expected in a body of that size. The lower limbs looked as if they had been well exercised —

If a blow - stab - had been made in side of a person between 6 & 7th ribs, the blood would have likely flow internally. —

Blood would have a flow from arteries perhaps in 24 hours - very slowly - but would form the clots.

I compare the statements made in that report - they are correct.
