

Nothing attracted my attention except the oil & whitening which I found upon the handle. I supposed it was whitening which had been used to clean the handle.

The accompanying winged anthracite coal.
I could not tell how long the polish had been on the body, it could not have been on it long - not a great while. A few minutes of the action of polish upon wood would produce the effect which I noticed in softening the body
- there was very little time - of asking Smith.

I tried the effect of Miral of Copper on pieces of the steels, & it produced the same color which I found upon them.

There were pieces of Cheeswood in the ashes, showing that wood had been burnt there.

Richard Cropley, I made report on blood reports at request of Dr. M. Gay to ascertain if they had been digested with arsenic ^{and chloride} & a ^{small} quantity & they had not been -

Last Monday I made a further examination of blood reports which were brought to me by Dr. Jackson.

I examined the green fluid with Dr.
Jackson & came to same result - there it was indicative of Copper.
