TWENTY-NINTH CONGRESS

SENATE.

With the exception of the following, which took place in the Senate on the 21st instant, the proceedings in Congress of the past week have been almost devoid of interest.

Mr. Bagby, on leave, introduced a joint resolu tion to amend the Constitution of the United States in reference to the election of President and Vice President and other officers.

The amendments provide: 1. That the President and Vice President of the United States be elected for a term of six years, and be ineligible for a re-election. 2. No member of either House of Congress shall, for the period for which he is elected, or for four years thereafter, be eligible to fill the office of President or Vice President. 3. No member of either House of Congress shall, for the period for which he is elected, be eligible to command 9 cts.

committee on Naval Affairs, was taken up. Mr. Speight said he was opposed to the bill. If we were really going to war he was ready to go the whole hog in the way of preparation. He thought it, however, improper to pass such a bill as this until we knew whether we were going to have a war or not .- He, therefore, moved to lay the bill upon the table. The motion was lost, 12 to 23. Mr. Sevier moved that the bill be postponed un-
