You Mr Editor have won our highest Esteem.
Your heart has never failed. your hands have never grown weary when advancing interest of our people. May heaven give you your reward, and grant to you for your deeds of Charity, the boon of a heavenly Crown. To the contributors to our paper we express our heartiest thanks and we thank you too kind friends present, for your respectful attention and your wellwishes for our future happiness.
Dear teachers it now becomes our sad task to leave the fond relations which we have held for the past few months. Rarely have teachers won so deep a place in hearts of their pupils as you have done in our hearts.
Our beloved principal has never shrank from the performance of your duty. With firmness but not with anger you have given rebuke with a cheerful face you have encouraged us. With an untiring zeal have always done what was for our best good. Your example has lighted up our way in the difficult path of knowledge and
